ROOSEVELT SEES ANCIENT TOMBS

Draws Lessons from Pictured Records of the Civilization Which Existed 5,000 Years Ago.

CAMEL TRIP TO SAKARA.

Cinematograph Whirs as the Former President Delves Among Antiquities of Egypt.

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

CAIRO, Egypt, March 25.—Theodore Roosevelt considers this the final day of his sightseeing among the antiquities, in some respects the most remarkable of his trip. It gave him, he said, a remarkable appreciation of the sweep of the ages.

The tombs at Sakara, 5,000 years old, continued to present records of a civilization exactly like when the Greeks, Romans, and Israelites were savage, nomadic tribes.

Then, to cross the desert on a camel and be entertained at luncheon on the Nile socially in as delightful manner as could be served in any occidental city offered a striking contrast in the life of the human race.

The colonel has been impressed by many antiquities, but those which will remain especially in his memory are the tombs of the kings at Luxor and Carnak and the Sphinx in moonlight.

It was easy to see that while interested profoundly in the monuments of the past he really is most deeply appealed to by present political, social, and economic conditions. An instance of this was seen in a tomb. A beautifully engraved story on a wall showed a court of law with a native undergoing a beating by officers of justice to induce him to testify.

"The worst corruption of Tammany Hall," said Col. Roosevelt, "was nothing compared to the corruption and tyranny recorded as a matter of course in these hieroglyphics."

One of the correspondents suggested that perhaps the Pinchot investigating committee might adopt this method to extort testimony favorable to Secretary Ballinger.

The colonel merely smiled and turned the conversation upon another representation.

Col. Roosevelt was particularly interested in the exploration of the tombs of the Apis or sacred bull of the god Ptah, which lie in Stygian darkness below the Memphite desert wastes.

Vast Necropolis in Ruins.

The great necropolis of Sakara, six miles in extent, once was covered with temples of huge proportions and superb decorations, but the immensity of the magnificence availed nothing against the assaults of time. They have crumbled and merged into the sand of the desert, leaving only the giant pyramids as monuments of the wonderful architecture of the past. And these pyramids, once ornate and beautiful as well as impressive, now have taken on the mournful color of the yellow sand for centuries rolled against them, relieved in the distance by the rosette hues of the Gizeh triangles and the green crowns of the date trees along the Nile.

Col. Roosevelt arose early in the morning and after breakfast received Maj. F. K. Watson, pasha, an aid de camp, who brought the compliments of the khedive and placed at his disposal a special camel corps. The animals were of the best Bishareh breed and there was an accompanying guard of soldiers in sand colored uniforms, with cartridge belts over their shoulders and rifles pendent from their saddles.

Roosevelts Ride Camels.

Col. Roosevelt and Kermit mounted camels while Mrs. Roosevelt and her daughter were assisted into a sand cart with broad tires. Preceded by two soldiers on Arabian horses and followed by the camel corps the party proceeded to the necropolis.

The sky was unlike that hitherto seen. Circles were scurrying across the heavens and a light wind made the journey comfortable.

Soon the sphinx which was seen last night in the more attractive light of the moon faded in the distance and the pyramids of Ghizeh alone stood out in the immense waste of sand.

Arriving at the tombs the party was met by a government Egyptologist and a cinematograph which immediately was set in motion.

Descending a narrow sloping passage cut in the sand Col. Roosevelt entered a dark doorway from which came blasts of hot air as from a furnace.

Plunges Into Stygian Darkness.

Across the threshold the colonel plunged into the stygian darkness and silence of the dead.

Each member of the party was furnished with a sputtering candle and then conducted through narrow corridors over flag stones and around fallen débris past a huge block of granite intended for a sepulchre and evidently dropped pellmell when the worship of Ptah suddenly ceased.

Coming to the caverns the guides lowered their candles to show the sarcophagi within which had been interred the sacred bulls in plates of gold.

Col. Roosevelt entered one of these vaults, mounted a ladder, and peered into the black interior. The enormous labor involved in its construction can best be appreciated when it is understood that the coffins are twelve feet in length and ten in height and weigh between sixty and seventy tons.

Col. Roosevelt was impressed by the engineering capacity of the people who brought these mammoth blocks to the cave and conveyed them along the narrow corridors to their final resting place.

Next to the Tomb of Thy.

The party left the darkness to apis and emerged once more into the kindly light of day. At the entrance were waiting ambassa-

Washington, D. C., March 25.—The general heat wave over the eastern part of the United States today will be succeeded by cooler weather tomorrow. The unseasonable hot weather of the last few days has been due, according to the weather bureau, to the general stagnation of the atmosphere, the ground and air being unusually dry for the season. By tomorrow, it is predicted, the temperature will be back to the average of the present season, which has been slightly above the usual average.

A Horse Market

One of the most interesting places in any town, large or small, is the horse market. Smaller towns usually have one day and place—perhaps Thursday, at the town hall. Chicago has a great horse market every day in the Classified Columns of The Tribune. Here one selects driving or saddle horses or horses for teaming purposes. The list is large and the sales quick. BALLOT TO OMIT SALOON QUESTION

Election Commissioners Hold That Petition of "Drys" Has Too Few Valid Signatures.

THREAT BY THE "WETS."

Levy Mayer Intimates Grand Jury Investigation of Charges of Forgery Will Be Asked.

SUMMARY OF THE "DRY" PETITION.

Names on the petition	76,026
Signers not registered	26,128
Leaving balance of	47,898
Subtract as doubtful	3,620
Leaving unquestioned signers	44,278
Petition requires	63,511
Petition "short"	19,233
Deduct the doubtful	3,620
Final minimum shortage	15,613

The local option question was barred from the spring election ballot yesterday by decree of the election board. In their ruling the commissioners held that, after giving the "drys" the benefit of the doubt as to 3,620 names, their petition still lacked 15,613 signatures necessary to make it valid.

A meeting of the local option campaign committee was at once called for this afternoon in the Methodist Book Concern building to decide on the next steps, and especially whether to take the matter into the courts. Every indication at night was that no mandamus would be asked owing to the brief time in which to obtain a final adjudication.

For this spring, therefore, the war over Chicago's saloons is ended. Both sides prepared to turn their attention to the coming statewide campaign to control the election of legislators. Owing to legal doubt as to the law's permissive scope the "drys" probably will make no attempt to place the saloon question before the city's voters this autumn, but promise that a new petition will be circulated for the election next spring.

Points Made Against the Drys.

The decision of the election board, which embodied the legal opinion of Attorney Frank D. Ayers and was signed unanimously by Commissioners Judge, Bach, and Hudson, held adversely to the "drys" on these two main points:

First—That no signature on the petition was valid if signed by any one who was not properly registered at the time he signed. Names of persons who had moved since the registration of last spring were thus eliminated, although they had had no opportunity to reregister.

Second—As a corrollary to this ruling it was held that the petition was lacking in the law's requirements of 63,511 names. The shortage was given as 15,613, even if every doubtful name was counted for the petition Out of the 74,026 names on the petition, only 44,278 were held to be unquestioned.

The "unquestioned" names were those to which the United Societies had raised no objections. If the further claim of Attorney Levi Mayer as to 6,700 other signatures should be established, the residuum of valid names should be reduced to about 37,500

Text of the Board's Opinion.

The opinion of the election board follows:

"This is a petition filed under and by virtue of an act entitled 'An act to provide for the creation by popular vote of anti-saloon territory, within which the sale of intoxicating liquors and the licensing of such sale shall be prohibited, and for the abolition by like means of territory so created,' approved May 16, 1907, and in force July 1, 1907. The purpose of which petition is to have placed upon the ballots at the next ensuing election to be held in this city on April 5, 1910, the proposition, 'Shall this city become anti-saloon territory?'

"Section 4 of said act in part provides: 'A petition for submission of said proposition shall be in substantially the following form.' (Then follows the form of the petition.) 'Such petition shall consist of sheets having such form printed or written at the top thereof and shall be signed by the legal voters in their own proper persons only, and opposite the signature of each legal voter shall be written his residence address (stating the street and the house number, if there be such), and the date of signing the same. No signature shall be valid or be counted in considering such petition unless these requirements are complied with. . . . At the bottom of each sheet of such petition shall be added a statement, stating that the signatures on that sheet of the said petition are genuine, and that to the best of his knowledge and belief the persons so signing were at the time of signing said petition legal voters (and in cities . . . in which voters are or may be required to be registered, that they were at the time of signing said petition duly registered legal voters) of the said . . . city . . . ; that their respective residences are correctly stated therein, and that each signer signed the same on the date set opposite his name.

"Legal Voter" Is Defined.

"Section 1 of said act provides in part that 'In the provisions of this act applicable to or within such city, village, or incorporated town "legal voter" shall mean a duly registered legal voter.' The petition in question was filed Feb. 4, 1910, and purports to be signed by 74,026 duly registered legal voters of the city of Chicago.

"As to the number of signatures required, section 2 of the above act provides that 'Upon the filing . . . of a petition . . . containing the signatures of legal voters of any political subdivision in number not less than one-fourth of the total vote cast. . . at the last election therein . . .'

"One-fourth of the total vote at the last election in the city of Chicago for city officers is 63,511; consequently a like number of duly registered legal voters would be required under the law upon the petition before this board would have jurisdiction to submit the proposition upon the ballots to be printed and distributed at public expense.

"Written objections to said petition were filed on March 18, 1910, by twenty-one legal voters and taxpayers of the city of Chicago,

NOW WHO DID KILL THE BEAR?

"I Did," Says Sergeant Duffy; "'Twas I," Says McCarthy.

ANYWAY, BRUIN IS DEAD.

Animal Escapes from Crate and Police Go a-Hunting.

Local history regarding "the last bear killed in Chicago" will have to be revised.

Alexander Beaubien and John Sweeney, both of whom are dead, were rivals for the honor, and many a wordy battle they engaged in as each claimed that to him belonged the credit of putting the last bruin off watch.

Now there are two new claimants for the honor—Sergeant John J. Duffy and Detective Dan McCarthy of the Harrison street police station. Yesterday afternoon Duffy and McCarthy killed a Rocky mountain black bear in State street, between Polk street and Peck court. Each fired twelve shots at the beast, but only three or four of the bullets took effect. As was the case with Beaubien and Sweeney years ago the two latest bear killers are rivals for the honor. Duffy says it was a chunk of lead from his revolver that ended the animal's career, while McCarthy is equally as positive that it was he who fired the shot that did the business.

Was to Be Served at Banquet.

The bear was one that was sent from Idaho to Irwin Bros., dealers in meats, at 449 State street. It arrived in a crate last Tuesday and was destined to be served at a banquet next Monday night. The crate was put into the basement, and in some way unknown to Irwin Bros. the bruin escaped from the pen.

The discovery that a wild bear weighing about 250 pounds was roaming around the basement of the establishment was made at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when an employé went downstairs to feed the beast. Owing to the darkness of the basement the employé was not aware of the bear's escape from the cage until he stood in front of it. A strange growl that came from behind a pile of boxes was all that was needed to send him up the stairs three steps at a bound.

"The bear's loose!" he shouted as he ran into the office, his hair standing on end. "I heard him growling behind some boxes and beat him to the stairway. Me for the street."

Police Are Called Upon.

The Harrison street police were notified and Sergeant Duffy and McCarthy were sent to the butcher shop to conduct the bear hunt. On arrival they found the employés in a state of terror, expecting to see bruin break in on them at any moment. Duffy and McCarthy descended to the basement, and by cautious maneuvering got behind a barricade of boxes from which they opened fire. A dozen shots were sent in the direction from whence came the growls, and one of them finally hit the beast. It was driven from its lair, and the policemen were than given an opportunity to get a bead on it.

By this time the bear hunters had become accustomed to the semi-darkness and were able to see better. Their revolvers belched a rain of lead and bruin was driven to cover. Moving their barricade so as to get in position for another fusillade, the policemen succeeded in again driving the beast into the open. Two more shots and the bear rolled over dead with a bullet through the heart.

"I killed the bear," said Sergeant Duffy.

"That is not so," said McCarthy. "It was I who killed it."

The same old fight that was begun in October, 1834, between Alexander Beaubien and John Sweeney over who killed the last bear in Chicago will be fought over again between Duffy and McCarthy.

YOUNG MOTHER AND HER BABY BURNED TO DEATH IN HOUSE.

Mrs. Agnes Guirma and Infant Perish While Twenty Escape South Ashland Avenue Fire.

A 17 year old mother, Mrs. Agnes Guirma, and her 3 months old baby were burned to death early this morning in a fire which destroyed a frame house at 4254 South Ashland avenue.

The other occupants, the husband, Frank Guirma; his brother, Paul; three small sisters of Mrs. Guirma, and fifteen boarders, escaped.

Policemen Lyons and Fitzpatrick of the New City station were the first to arrive and were told by Paul Guirma, who had reached the street by that time, that several persons were trapped in the building. Hurrying upstairs, they found the body of Mrs. Guirma clasping her dead baby in her arms, on the floor of a room off the head of the stairs.

The three sisters of Mrs. Guirma jumped from the second story window on to a mattress that the police had carried from a saloon. They ran away from the scene while the policemen went into the building in an effort to rescue others.

The boarders made their way down the stairs.

SAYS ALPHA RAYS OF RADIUM SOLVE NAVIGATION OF AIR.

William Sidis, Prodigy, Asserts Power Generated Will Send Airship to the Planet Venus in 20 Minutes.

Boston, Mass., March 25.—[Special.]—William Sidis, the 11 year old mathematical prodigy at Harvard, has not been confining his attentions alone to the problems on the fourth dimension and other equally simple matters, but has been delving into the mysteries of aerial navigation. From one of the instructors it is learned that Sidis believes he has solved the problem of navigating the air.

His plan has to do with the alpha rays that are given off from radium. These rays are small particles of matter which leave the radium with great force. Working upon this basis, Sidis believes that by attaching a block of radium to the stern of his airship the propelling power will be derived from the force with which the alpha rays leave the radium in the same manner that a skyrocket is propelled through space.

Sidis declares such a terrific speed will be generated that it will take one to the planet Venus in twenty minutes.

Assistant Chief of Police Edwin Jameson of Evanston has been granted a ninety days' leave of absence. He will spend the time working in a plumbing shop in South Evanston. He said he "wants to do some real work and get hardened up."

12 DEAD IN FIRE; INQUIRY STARTED

Authorities Begin Investigation into Responsibility for Tragedy in Store.

MORE VICTIMS IN THE RUINS?

Flames Sweep L. Fish Furniture Building After Gasoline Is Ignited by an Employe.

WORK OF RESCUE IS THWARTED.

Legal investigation to establish the responsibility for conditions which permitted the sacrifice of the lives of at least twelve persons—eight women and four men—yesterday morning in the fire which swept the store of the L. Fish Furniture company, 1906-1908 Wabash avenue, was initiated in the afternoon by Coroner Hoffman.

In the evening there appeared good grounds for the belief that more than twelve persons perished in the fire. Twelve bodies were recovered and all but one were identified. It was reported, also, that only one employé of the store was unaccounted for—Miss Mary Wargo. Friends of Miss Wargo and her brother were positive, however, that the remaining body was not hers.

Shortly after this development inquiry was made at the undertaking rooms for Margaret Wilson, 3253 Vernon avenue, said to have been employed at the Fish store. The woman with whom she boarded said she had not returned from work. This woman said the unidentified body was not that of Miss Wilson.

Horan Gave Campbell Warning.

While a coroner's jury was being impaneled to sit at an inquest April 2, Fire Chief Horan declared that seven months ago his department notified Building Commissioner Murdoch Campbell in writing that a fire escape was necessary upon the front of the building. Horan said failure on the part of the building department to require the L. Fish Furniture company to obey the notice resulted in the fire victims meeting death. The Fish company under the terms of its lease of the building is responsible for "fire protection."

Tributary to the charge of negligence leveled at the building department are charges and counter charges exchanged between Chief Horan and Isaac and Sigmund Fish. Sigmund Fish charges the fire department with slowness in getting into action. Horan retorts that had the ladders of the firemen been unobstructed by the cumbersome cables holding the canopy and the sign in front of the Fish building the firemen could have effected rescues.

Stoeckel Taken Into Custody.

In the meantime, Leo Stoeckel, 21 years old, 2358 Indiana avenue, has been taken into custody by detectives and booked at the Twenty-second street police station upon the charge of manslaughter. It was in Stoeckel's hands that a cigar lighter exploded, starting the fire. Stoeckel confessed frankly to his part in the explosion of benzine which started the fire.

It was about 8:20 a. m. when H. M. Mitchell, brother-in-law of Sigmund Fish, handed Stoeckel, who was employed as an office assistant, three patent cigar lighters on the sixth and top floor. Mr. Mitchell told Stoeckel to take the lighters to the fourth floor and fill them with alcohol or benzine. Mitchell wanted the lighters for use while automobiling.

According to his own story, told to a representative of THE TRIBUNE, Stoeckel had filled two of the lighters and was pouring benzine into the third one from a five gallon can. Stoeckel believes that accidentally he pressed the igniting button on the side of the lighter, because the lighter flared up and set fire to benzine which was upon Stoeckel's right hand.

Gasoline Explodes; He Flees.

Stoeckel dropped the lighter and waved his blazing hand in the air. Either the blaze on his hand or the blaze from the cigar lighter ignited the can of gasoline. There was an explosion. Red flame blazed to the ceiling, filling the room in an instant. As Stoeckel rushed, half blinded and terrified, for the stairway a great sheet of flame shot across the oily floor.

Stoeckel found himself in the alley, wandering in a dazed condition and intent upon finding a dressing for his smarting hand. It appears from his story that he took no action to warn the 125 persons in the Fish building whose lives had been put in jeopardy by the explosion.

"I didn't think there was any danger," said Stoeckel before being led away to the police station to be held in bonds of $10,000. "I was filling the third lighter when the button must have gone home and set fire to the oil on my hand. Then the explosion came and some way I got out into the alley."

John Schmidt, 619 West Division street, employed upon the fourth floor where the fire started, turned in a still alarm of fire a trifle before 8:20 o'clock, according to his own story. Schmidt also told of seeing two men—strangers to him—fighting for possession of a cigar lighter at the benzine can when the fire started—a point that will be inquired into in the official investigation.

Sigmund Fish Caught in Shaft.

About the same time, Sigmund Fish was ascending in the elevator between the third and fourth floors. The thermostatic apparatus controlling the doors opening into the elevator shaft was released by the heat. Fish heard a click. The doors crashed shut. Fish and the elevator man were prisoners.

The sliding elevator doors jammed when Fish tried to open them. In the frenzy of his excitement Fish tore one of the doors from its fastenings, burst open a fire door, and ran through the third floor, shouting an alarm. The employés of the three lower floors escaped into the street, while flames shut off escape from the sixth, or office floor, and the fourth floor, which was used as a finishing room.

William Carter, the negro elevator man, staid with his car, and ran it up to the fourth floor with intent to rescue the girls. Here the elevator struck a patent appliance known as an underwriter's hatch, a heavy iron door which had shut down on the elevator shaft as soon as the flames started. When he saw that his efforts were useless he fled.

Awed Crowd Fills Street.

The succession of alarms which brought the fire engines, and about which there is spirited controversy, sped over the wires. Before the fire engines arrived Wabash avenue was jammed with awe-struck people, gazing upward at the front windows of the upper floors of the building. The upper half of the building roared with flame. Through a curtain of hot smoke could be seen the pale faces of the doomed girls on the sixth floor.

"Save us, save us!" they called, their voices sounding faintly to the crowd in the street below. Women fainted in the street as they saw the girls extend their hands. Fifteen more fortunate employés were escaping at the time from the rear of the sixth floor by means of the fire escape.

And into the midst of the waiting crowd the fire engines plunged through the lanes of humanity which opened for their passage. Chief Horan and Assistant Chief Seyferlich arrived twelve minutes after the 4-11 alarm was sounded at 8:48 o'clock.

By this time the tracks of the South Side elevated road in the rear of the burning building were enveloped in gusts of flame. Cars were sealed and plunged through the flames with their loads of terrified passengers, while firemen played a stream of water upon the structure. Women were fainting in the cars as well as in the street in front of the building.

Call for Rescue of Girls.

Third Assistant Fire Marshal Thomas O'Connor, under Horan and Seyferlich, placed men with lines of hose upon buildings adjacent to the fire. Huge streams of water hissed into the flames in the upper stories of the burning building. The crowd shouted for the rescue of the girls at the windows. One girl, Ethel Lichtenstein, was hanging far out of one of the windows.

Fire Marshal Horan ordered that ladders be placed at the front windows. When the firemen attempted to carry out instructions they found that the cables supporting the big sign and the heavy awning over the street were in their way. A ladder was placed at the extreme southeastern corner of the building, but it was impossible for the firemen under the conditions existing to make lateral progress to the northward with it to reach the girls.

Second Ladder Comes Short.

Another ladder was mounted upon the top of the awning, but its top did not come within about fifteen feet of the girls at the windows of the sixth floor. Several employés of the Fish firm were shouting suggestions to the firemen. One citizen mounted the ladder planted upon the awning by the firemen and ascended it until he was driven back by the flames.

While the firemen were struggling against the cables, the flames and smoke overpowered the girls at the windows and the men who undoubtedly were with them. The faces disappeared while the crowd grew sick with horror.

Then, through a rent in the rush of smoke, could be seen Ethel Lichtenstern alone upon a window ledge. She was screaming. For perhaps ten minutes she clung there while tongues of fire ate into her flesh and bits of her clothing crumbled into ashes. Finally she hurtled downwards thrown the fire and smoke, crashing into the midst of the group of fire fighters upon the awning.

She lay there, bleeding, upon the metal ribs of the awning which had bent under the force of her fall until Dr. William Ivanhoe Kinsley, 1903 Park avenue, ran up the stairway, crawled out through a window of the second floor, and picked her up.

Dies on Reaching Hospital.

Dr. Kinsley was burned slightly about his face and hands while getting the girl. With the assistance of firemen, he carried her down the ladder from the awning and placed her in the auto patrol wagon of the Thirty-fifth street station. A hurry up run was made to the hospital, but the girl died there from internal injuries and burns a few minutes after her arrival.

M. D. Viner, 4238 Indiana avenue, escaped by sliding down an elevator cable.

Mrs. Isaac Fish arived in an automobile while the fire was at its height. She sprang from the machine and rushed at the building, shouting the name of her husband. In her excitement she tripped and fell headlong in a pool of water from a leaking hose and fainted.

Inside the building, Jack Teed, a member of fire patrol No. 8, who had hopped from a street car in time to reach the fire, was having a tussle with a woman weighing 200 pounds. With Teed was a mounted policeman, who had left his horse on State street. They reached the building before a fire company arrived, and had mounted to the third floor.

The woman was what firemen call "fire crazy." She was trying to get into the flames instead of out of them.

"You've got to stun her," said the mounted policeman to Teed.

Seeing that it was a matter of life or death Teed raised his fist and stunned the woman

Responsibility for Loss of Life in the Fatal Fish Furniture Fire.

Last year Mayor Busse sent a communication to the city council asking for the transference of fire escape inspection from the building department to the fire department on the ground that the public's safety would be increased thereby.

The communication was referred first to the building committee and then to a subcommittee on the general provisions of the building code. After hearing several architects who criticised the plan, and after finding that a special appropriation to the fire department would be required, the subcommittee referred the matter back to the building committee, which placed it on file.

On Aug. 16, 1909, the following letter was sent by Capt. Patrick J. Deasy to Fire Chief Horan:

"Chicago, Aug. 16, 1909.

"JAMES HORAN, Fire Marshal.

"Dear Sir: I respectfully report on inspections and find the following buildings in need of fire escapes on the front of buildings, and recommend that they be installed:

"Goldberg's Furniture Store, 5 stories high, State and Nineteenth streets.
"Alhambra Hotel, 3 stories high, Nineteenth and State streets.
"Columbus Theater Hotel, Nineteenth street and Wabash avenue.
"Fish's Furniture Store, 6 stories high, Wabash Ave. and Nineteenth St.
"Fish's Furniture Store, State and Nineteenth streets.
"The latter is heavily laden with furniture of inflammable nature.
"Respectfully submitted,

"PATRICK J. DEASY."

Chief Horan said yesterday that this letter was forwarded to Building Commissioner Murdoch Campbell.

Building Commissioner Campbell said he could not find the letter in his files and did not recall receiving it. The records of his office showed no action on the complaint by a blow in the back of the neck. Then Teed and his fellow rescuer carried the woman into the open air and left her to revive while turning their attention to more rescues. Teed saw two other frantic women at the windows on the third floor, apparently planning to jump.

Teed beckoned to the women to stay where they were, and wait for him to reach them. Teed got them out, but to use his own description, they were "just like horses in a fire. You couldn't do a thing with them." Teed ended his work of rescue by helping to carry Ethel Lichtenstein to the wagon after her fall to the awning.

While the firemen fought the flames, and the police held back the crowd which paralyzed traffic on Wabash avenue, the sixth floor collapsed and fell to the fifth. The walls trembled as more crashes inside the building told the crowd that the fifth floor had collapsed and fallen to the fourth.

The fire was out at 11 o'clock, and members of engine company No. 104 and truck No. 31 began searching the hot ruins for the bodies of victims. The first three were taken out shortly before noon.

First Bodies Taken Out.

The crowd gasped with horror as the first blackened yellow bundle wrapped in a yellow blanket was swung over the top of the Wabash avenue wall and lowered slowly to the street. More women fainted and were carried into nearby drug stores to be revived. Others wept at the grewsome sight displayed to them in the sunshine of the warm spring morning.

The bodies were hurried to the undertaking establishment of J. Whittier Buffum, 1722 Wabash avenue, a little way north of the burned building. Shortly after 1 o'clock the eleventh body was found in the ruins, making, with the body of Miss Lichtenstein, a total known death list of twelve.

The bodies were all found huddled together in the southeast corner of the wreckage. They were burned so badly that the only hope of recognition rested in dentistry, jewelry, buttons, or bits of clothing. Several were in a kneeling posture, indicating that perhaps at the last moment the victims had sunk to their knees in prayer. Some of the bodies were tied to planks and then lowered horizontally to the street by ropes placed at either end of the planks.

Impanels a Coroner's Jury.

The pathos of the fire reached its fullest expression during the succeeding hours at the improvised morgue in the rear of Buffum's undertaking establishment. The charred bundles of flesh and bone were laid out wrapped in sheets for identification.

Chief Deputy Coroners Jones and Conrad arrived at 2 o'clock and impaneled the following jury:

Allison, J. E., 1818 Wabash avenue, Standard Laundry company.
Clayton, E. G., 1810 Wabash avenue, foreman.
Collins, Fred, 909 West Madison street, clerk.
Flynn, Joseph, 1805 Wabash avenue, hotel clerk.
Jackson, Leonard, 1816 Wabash avenue, hardware company.
Koenig, Rudolph W., 3653 Indiana avenue, clerk Pennsylvania railroad company.

After viewing the bodies at Buffum's, the jurors went to McNally & Duffy's undertaking rooms to view the body of Miss Lichtenstein. Deputy Coroner Jones questioned relatives and friends of victims who appeared for purposes of identification. Fire Attorney Frank Hogan was there, questioning young Stoeckel.

Tell of Escape from Death.

Employés who escaped and spectators gave graphic accounts of the tragedy.

"I staid on the car and ran it up to the fourth floor," said Carter, the elevator operator, "but I couldn't get any higher on account of the hatch, and couldn't bring down any of the occupants of the upper floors."

One of those who narrowly escaped death was M. B. Zeiner, 4832 Indiana avenue, a salesman, who was on the sixth floor when the alarm was sounded. He saw the others rush to the front of the building, and was about to follow when he remembered the freight elevator at the rear of the building. He broke open the frail door, glanced down the shaft, and saw the car platfrom far below him, jumped out to the center cable and slid down, landing two floors below with no injuries save to his hands. He made the rest of the trip by the elevator.

"The only reason I can give for my escape," said Zeiner, "is that I kept my head. Yet with those five windows opening on the next lot with a roof only a few feet below I can't see how they all missed it. Still I never thought of it myself, but took the nearest way, taking a chance at a broken neck.

"Just before I leaped I called to the others, but they all kept on to the front, and I supposed they had found another exit, probably the firemen's ladders.

"I remember seeing Mr. Mitchell somewhere, but where it was I don't know, for I was filled with smoke, and almost everything is now a blank. I recovered as soon as I reached the air, hurried to telephone my wife that I was safe, and then went back to help save the papers."

Boy Gives His Experience.

Julius Jeschke, 17 years old, was working in one of the offices of the sixth floor near the girls who were trapped.

"I think there was six or seven girls working up in the offices on that floor," young Jeschke said. "All of a sudden I heard one of the girls yell fire. I ran out and saw big balls of fire going up past the front windows and a lot of smoke. The girls began screaming and running about.

"I remember Rosie Brunke, the stenographer, was up there, for she lives in the same house where I live. She worked in one of the offices. I didn't know what to do, but I saw all the fire in the front and I didn't see any in the rear, so I ran back there.

"The girls were up in front screaming and hanging on to each other when I started back. I got to one of the windows all right, but I felt weak and sick.

"I broke out one of the windows where I saw a fire escape and crawled out on that and climbed down. There were a lot of people in the alley, shouting something to me, but I couldn't hear what they were yelling, and I kept on going down until I got to the first floor, I think, and then I dropped into the alley.

"I landed on my back, and some men picked me up, and that was the last I remember until I came to and found myself in a store about a quarter of a block away.

"All the girls lost their heads, for they were screaming fierce when I started back to the rear. I didn't see what happened to them.

While firemen were lowering a body from the ruins, Detectives Flaherty and Nagle of the Central station arrested Henry Lewis, 2906 Archer avenue, and William Lee, 2204 Wabash avenue, both colored, alleged pickpockets, who were jostling persons in the crowd. Lewis, the police say, has a police record. Two pawn tickets were found in Lee's posession. They will be held pending an investigation.

Will Search for More Bodies.

The belief that more than twelve perished in the fire was shared by many of those investigating the case at the close of their day's labors. Deputy Coroner Jones was so firm in the belief that he tried to resume the search of the ruins late in the evening. He had to give it up, however, owing to darkness and the dangers of entering the wrecked structure. The search will be taken up early today.

This phase of the tragedy developed when a brother and friends of Mary Wargo viewed the body which was thought to be hers, and said they were positive it was not. When that one unidentified body was believed to be that of Miss Wargo she was said to be the only unaccounted for employé of the store. However, in the evening inquiry was made at the undertaking rooms for a Margaret Wilson, said to have been a Fish employé.

Miss Wargo's brother, Andrew Wargo, of Toluca, Ill., came to the city in the evening, and after visiting the undertaking rooms said:

"I do not think the body is that of my sister. The diamond ring taken from one of the fingers was not like any she owned. She had a raised oval agate ring, the only one I ever saw her wear. I could identify her positively by a gold filled tooth, the third front tooth on the left side."

This mark of identification could not be searched out last night. However, the brother will visit the morgue again this morning for a closer inspection of the body.

Sure It's Not Friend's Body.

Miss Mamie Doone, 752 Dearborn avenue, Miss Jane Bamber, 739 East Thirty-fifth street, and Miss Dorcas Stathem, the last Miss Wargo's roommate, all said the body was not that of their friend.

"Mary wore three rings, a raised oval agate ring, a signet ring, and a chipped diamond ring," Miss Stathem said. "But the diamond ring was utterly different from this one. This one has an old style setting, while her ring had a low set-in setting. On the body are black top shoes, heavy stockings, and heavy underwear. Mary had only one pair of high black shoes, and these are at home in the closet. She always wore light weight stockings and underwear."

After these visitors at the undertaking rooms had satisfied themselves, the body was not that of Miss Wargo, Mrs. Mae Jones, 3253 Vernon avenue, called and asked if a girl of the name of Margaret Wilson had been killed in the fire. She said a girl of that name, 18 years old, had been rooming at her house about three weeks, and last week had told her she had begun working in the Fish store. She did not return for dinner last night as was her custom, and Mrs. Jones became worried.

The fire loss was estimated at $300,000, divided equally between building and stock. The stock of the Fish firm in the State street store was uninjured.

Bodies Placed in Basement.

The back room in Buffum's undertaking rooms, in which bodies usually are received, was too small to permit the placing of the remains there. At the rear of the undertaking rooms stands a dilapidated, deserted wooden structure, and into the basement of this building the charred bodies were carried. With the exception of one, that of Mrs. Hannah Burden, only particles of clothing remained on the limbs. The bodies were numbered, No. 1, No. 2, and so one up to eleven.

Trinkets, a particle of clothing, and teeth were practically the only means of identifying the bodies.

Scenes, pathetic and heartrending, marked each identification. After each man and woman left the improvised morgue, he or she was led to the desk of Chief Deputy Coroner Jones and Deputy Coroner Conrad, where, still overcome with grief and horror, they told what they knew of the victim.

Pathetic Tale Is Revealed.

This examination revealed one of the strange and pathetic tales of the tragedy. It was disclosed during the identification regarding Miss Ethel Anderson. Her father, a carpenter, had staggered naif fainting from the morgue, resting on the arm of the Rev. A. F. Bergstrom, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran Tabernacle church. The girl was a member of the church choir, had practiced ardently for the Easter service, and was a teacher in the Sunday school.

In the spring of 1907, according to the Rev. M. Bergstrom, twelve girls, all 16 years old, were confirmed in the little South Chicago church. Last November Agnes Ortengren, 7559 Bond avenue, died of tuberculosis. As she lay on her deathbed she gazed into the face of her chum, Elizabeth Anderson, 7834 Sherman avenue, then healthy and robust, and remarked:

"Elizabeth, you'll go home to God next."

Deathbed Prophecy Fulfilled.

The dying girl's words proved true. On Jan. 16 Elizabeth Anderson was buried from the little church in which she was confirmed. While she was ill she gave the same warning to Ethel Anderson, her friend, but no kin.

While the Rev. Mr. Bergstrom sat in his study yesterday word was sent to him that Ethel Anderson was among the dead, and again the strange warning was fulfilled.

"There were only twelve girls in the class," said the pastor. "Death has taken three. What next? God alone knows."

Anderson raised his head and listened till the story had been finished, then buried his face in his arms and wept.

Alexander Bush, who was to have married Rose Brunke several days after the close of Lent, returned late in the afternoon to gaze for the last time upon the blackened body of his fiancée.

"I guess the furniture in our little flat at 344 West Seventy-sixth street never will be used," he said, brushing tears from his eyes. "I saved my money and spent it to make her happy."

Parents Find Daughter Dead.

Mrs. Sophie Lichtenstein, mother of Ethel Lichtenstein, who leaped from the sixth story window, wept hysterically when she entered the undertaking rooms. With her was her husband, August Lichtenstein, a soapmaker.

"Where is my daughter? Is she dead?" she asked breathlessly.

A policeman, ignorant of her death, called to Deputy Coroner Conrad.

"No. 12, Ethel Lichtenstein. Body, McNally & Duffy's," the latter shouted through the verbal din.

"Dead! She is dead! O, Ethel, my darling Ethel," she screamed. Then she burst into tears, refusing for a time to leave the rooms.

A brief dispute arose over body No. 9, which proved to be that of William Green, the negro bill clerk. Harry Woods, in the theatrical business, said he felt positive that the body was that of Harry Darlington, a sign painter for the Fish concern and his roommate at 518 North Clark street.

Jewelry Identifies One Body.

A birthstone ring, lodge book, and watch, the latter two containing Green's name, cleared the dispute. When the ring was removed from the charred finger and handed to Mrs. Matty Green, his wife, she placed it to her lips, and then passing it to her little daughter, too young to realize her sorrow, buried her face in her handkerchief.

Meantime, others with faces reflecting the horror of the possibilities were hurrying through the crowd. A stolid looking boy in a black sweater came in and sank into a chair in the back room. Nobody paid any attention to him until a visiting nurse happened to see him and asked him whom he had lost. Then this self-contained boy, who probably never had acknowledged the existence of emotion before, broke down and wept.

"It's my sister, it's my sister," was all that he was able to say at first. In a few minutes he confessed that he was sitting there trying to key himself up to the pitch of going out there into that shed to try to find her. Agnes Lee was her name.

Woman Waits for Truth.

And all the while Mrs. Minor Bell, calm but tear stained, was present in the undertaking rooms. The men respected her grief and treated her with gentle gravity. She waited for long minutes to know if her husband was among the living, and then when it was found he was not, they did not tell her for a little while. Perhaps they dreaded the outcry. At length they brought his card, his papers, and his pocketbook to her. But she did not faint, she did not scream, she did not protest. She merely looked up into their faces defenselessly, took the little belongings, and folded them to her breast.

During the rest of the afternoon she staid there.

"They said I mustn't look at him," she repeated. And she did not. "They say I must sit here during the inquest." And she did. But although she was composed, her face disclosed a woe settled too deep for utterance or tears.

"My husband," she said proudly, "was one of the heroes of the fire. He rescued three girls before he was burned. My children will be so proud to remember that always. I am waiting here now because I havn't the heart to go and tell them. But I suppose they have heard it before this, and need their mother's comfort. I have three: 8, 10, and 12 years old."

Boy Ignorant of Father's Fate.

Meanwhile William Bell, her 8 year old son, entered the undertaking rooms, accompanied by a friend, strayed about the undertaking rooms, gazing curiously at the scene. When the man emerged the little lad asked:

"Is papa hurt much?"

His companion did not answer.

Body No. 11 was identified as that of Banford T. Sinclair, who was assistant advertising manager of the L. Fish company. His body was identified by L. J. Marx, 3124 West Twelfth street, an uncle, and by John E. Evans, brother-in-law, 1021 Ayers place, Evanston.

Leo Hess, son-in-law of H. M. Mitchell, told Deputy Coroner Conrad that Mitchell attended a grand ball Thursday night and returned home at 2 o'clock yesterday morning in a happy state of mind. Mitchell's body was removed later to Furth's undertaking rooms, 356 East Thirty-fifth street.

George J. Tennison, fiancé of Miss Gertrude Quinn, who perished, told Mr. Conrad the young woman's home was in Evansville, Ind., and that he had sent a telegram to her parents.

Before he identified the body he gazed on others, deciding they were not Miss Quinn's.

"You see all of these have some little pin, or necklace, or jewel to identify them by," he said. "Gertrude was not that kind of a girl." He spoke almost proudly of the fact. "She was so modest and retiring she never thought of wearing ornaments to work. And she was so orderly that she probably put her purse and gloves away as soon as she got to work and never picked them up again. So there is not even that to go by."

SAD SCENES AS NEWS IS TOLD.

"Rose—my little Rose! My little girl who went away two hours ago so gay and happy. She can't be dead."

With her head bowed upon the luncheon table Rose Brunke's grandmother clasped her crucifix and prayed in mingled German and English when the tidings of her grandchild's death were brought to her.

The room had been swept and prepared for the observance of Good Friday and the table had been laid in preparation for Rose's home coming. The girl's chair was in its place and a vase of flowers had been placed by her plate.

"O, Good Friday, day of grief!" sighed Mrs. Brunke. "Twelve years ago this day I lost my daughter. Now her child is taken—the last of them all."

Rose Brunke had been the sole companion and support of her grandmother. She had left their house, 3112 Wall street, in the morning, after attending early church, with the intention of coming home to pass Good Friday with her grandmother. The house was one of many of those visited on their sad mission by the identifiers of the dead.

Little Brothers Wait in Vain.

Ethel Lichtenstein's two little brothers were alone at her residence, 7133 Peoria street, when confirmation of the news was brought. Mrs. Sophie Lichtenstein, her mother, had left them in the house while she went downtown in the vain hope that her daughter might not be one of the lost.

"We were going to have such a good time today," said one of the little boys. "We were going out to play ki-yi on the sidewalk and at night sister was to take us all to the roller skating rink. Now we'll never see her again.

"We were out only a little while this morning when mamma called us in. She told us not to go out until she came home. She was crying all the time. What will we do without Ethel?"

"I couldn't recognize her except by a little piece of lace her mother made," said the father of Ethel Anderson, 8048 Escanaba avenue. "Her mother knows no English. That is good. She shall never know the truth."

Mr. Anderson walked up and down the parlor in an effort at self-control while the mother sat with questioning eyes, muttering to herself in Swedish. Beneath Ethel's confirmation picture on the wall hung a motto with the words, "He suffered for our trespasses."

"That is all I have left to remind me what she looked like," said the father. "She was one of our Swedish girls, with long fair hair, but even that was gone. 'The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away.' She was my only daughter."

Her brother Albert, 15 years old, who had been standing dumbly by his mother, broke into sobs at the words, but his father checked him.

"Think of your mother, my son," he said. "We must be strong for her sake. Men do not weep."

A mother's intuition told the worst to Mrs. Frank J. Sullivan, 646 West Sixty-first street, as soon as she heard there had been a disastrous fire at the Fish store.

"My daughter Lillian was killed. I know it," she said.

Mrs. Sullivan was informed that the list of dead was not known, but that her daughter was among the missing. "That means that she is gone," she insisted. "I always knew in my heart that something terrible would happen there after the experience Lillian had with an alcohol stove near the benzine tank.

Feared Daughter Would Be Burned.

"One of the girls there touched a match to the stove and a flame shot out. Her dress caught fire and Lillian tried to put it out with her hands, but failed, and in the effort singed her hair and face. Then she grabbed a pail of water and threw it over the girl.

"Now, you can see why I am afraid my daughter is dead. Ever since she told me about that stove I felt some day a fire would break out from it. Somebody should have thrown that stove into the ash heap and removed the benzine tank away from the danger it was exposed to.

"When Lillian told us about her experience we became more alarmed than ever. Every morning when she left we told her to be careful about that stove."

Mrs. Sullivan put on her coat and hat, then took it off, declaring her daughter Florence, a telephone operator, who passed the building during the fire, would notify her if any harm befell the younger daughter.

At Mercy home, Twenty-ninth street and Wabash avenue, where Miss Mary Wargo had been living for the last eight months, there was almost complete silence, the sisters and the girls rooming at the home talking in whispers and crying softly. Miss Wargo occupied a fourth floor room with two other girls, Miss Dorcas Stathun and Miss Alice Callebert.

Girls Planned Happy Easter.

But at St. Joseph's orphan asylum, Thirty-fifth street and the lake, were the girl's best friends in Chicago, and there was a pitiful scene when the news of the tragedy was told.

"O, poor little girl," sobbed Mother Superior Ambrosia. "She came to see me every Sunday and was like one of my own family. I can't break the news to Jane, for she loved her so."

As Mother Ambrosia was trying to stop her tears Jane Bamber, one of the girls at the asylum and an intimate friend of the Wargo girl, came in, and seeing the nun hurried to ask what was the trouble.

"Mary—Mary," whispered Mother Ambrosia, with her arm about the girl, "Mary's dead."

"My very dearest friend," she said. "And we were both looking forward to Easter so much. It was only Sunday that she and Mamie Doone and I decided to go out for a long walk together and to have our pictures taken—the first since we were little children. I know she had not seen her mother for a long while and was hoping to go home in the spring."

Miss Wargo was the eldest of nine children, living with their mother, Mrs. Mary Wargo, at Toluca, Ill. Her younger sisters, Rose and Anna, attended St. Agnes' convent at Chicago Heights until recently. The oldest girl had been employed at the Fish establishment since last July. She was 21 years old.

Somewhere in Chicago two grandparents and her little son are mourning for Mrs. Hannah Burden. Mrs. Burden had been working in the Fish store for two years and recently had been made forewoman of the folding department. To save expense and be nearer her work she had taken a little room at 514 East Twenty-eighth street.

"Nobody here knows where her parents live," said Mrs. W. Sternby, with whom Mrs. Burden lived. "I only know she was taking care of her little boy, Andrew, and her two old parents. Her chief concern seemed to be to earn money for them.

"Andrew came to see her often. He will come here soon perhaps without knowing what has happened to his mother. I hope some one else will tell him."

A little old fashioned melodeon was the one luxury in Mrs. Burden's room. On the music rack was a cheap copy of "Home, Sweet Home." A picture of a child hung over the narrow bed and on the dresser was the beginning of a letter of which the first words were: "My little man. On Sunday——"

Reads Own Death Announcement.

To Harry Darlington, 518 North Clark street, befell the experience of reading his own death announcement. W. G. Woods, clerk at the Palace hotel, where Darlington lives, was notified early in the day that he was among the missing. Later information came that Darlington was one of the dead. Woods prepared telegrams to Darlington's relatives in New York City, reading: "Harry Darlington killed in Fish fire today."

"I had just called a messenger when Darlington appeared," said Woods, "and I guess we were pretty glad to see him."

Darlington had been working with firemen at the ruins.

John Schmidt, 619 West Division street, walked into his kitchen at noon so disguised by burns and soot that his mother, who had given him up for dead, did not recognize him.

GENERAL VIEW OF FIRE

12 LIVES PAY FOR SPURNED ADVICE

Mayor's Suggestion in Regard to Inspection Would Have Prevented Disaster.

KILLED BY A COMMITTEE.

Two important disclosures last night pointed blame for the fatalities to two sources. One of those to come in for attack was the building department under Commissioner Murdoch Campbell. Another was action taken by the city council building committee about a year ago in failing to adopt a suggestion of Mayor Busse.

With Fire Marshal Horan the mayor was sitting in his office one day last spring when the fire chief, looking out of the window across the street and pointing to a certain fire escape, remarked:

"That fire escape isn't worth a cent. It ought never to be allowed in the city."

Mayor Busse took the matter up, discussed it with Fire Marshall Horan, and subsequently addressed a communication to the city council. He recommended that the matter of inspecting fire escapes be taken out of the hands of the building department and be given over to the fire department, inasmuch as he believed such duties could be more properly attended to by Chief Horan and the fire department.

Change Opposed by Architects.

The mayor's communication went to the building committee, and from there to a subcommittee on the general provisions of the building code. Ald. John A. Richert of the Fourth ward was chairman of this subcommittee. He explained the disposition of the mayor's suggestions as follows:

"We took up the proposition and discussed it at some length. Several architects, including, I believe, Allen B. Pond, Robert Schmidt, and Dwight Perkins, came before us and advised against the removal of fire escape inspection to the fire department.

"They argued that the matter essentially was a building department affair and should be left to that department, and that the fire department's duties were to fight fires.

"We asked Fire Marshal Horan to come in, and he talked to us of the proposition. Some of those in the committee opposed to the idea brought out that Horan would have to have additional men to inspect fire escapes and that the council would have to vote an additional appropriation for such work.

"Well, the matter was voted down. It was reported back to the building committee and placed on file. That was the end of it."

Report on Fish Building.

The attack on Commissioner Campbell came after Fire Chief Horan had made an investigation to ascertain if any member of the fire department had inspected the Fish building. He learned that Capt. Deasy had visited the structure last August and had reported it needed a fire escape on the front of the building.

This letter was sent by Capt. Deasy to Fire Marshal Horan, and the latter declared that he in turn sent it to the building department for consideration, or action, as he did many other similar reports from captains that came to him from time to time.

"Why shouldn't we hasten to send such a letter to the building department?" Chief Horan asked. "Why should we hold it? Capt. Deasy had made the inspection, and reported what he found. He sent his recommendations to this office, and it then remained for the building department to take action."

Mr. Campbell refused to admit that he had received any such letter.

"I have never received any such letter," he said. "There is nothing in the records of myoffice to show that I have received any such complaint. If I had got it—and I open all the mail that comes into this department—I would have remembered it."

Mr. Campbell put a half dozen of his inspectors and clerks to work among the files of his office, but after an hour's search nothing was found to indicate either that he had received the communication or that he had acted upon any matter relative to the Fish building in Wabash avenue, the Fish building in State street, or three other buildings named in Capt. Deasy's report.

His clerks were able to find only one record of any sort concerning the Fish building in Wabash avenue in which the fatalities occurred. They were unable to find:

If a permit ever was issued for the building which was erected in 1882.

If the structure ever had been inspected by the building department to ascertain its safety.

The only record relative to the Fish building was a permit issued in 1904 to change the front of it.

"I remember plainly that we had a report on this Fish building within the last half year," said Assistant Fire Chief Seyferlich, who watches the clerical details of the fire marshal's office.

To make sure he went to the telephone and called up Capt. Deasy.

"Did you ever inspect the Fish building?" he asked Deasy.

The latter told him he had.

"Have you got a copy of the report?"

Deasy said he thought he had and would look up his records. In a few minutes he read the report over the phone to Seyferlich.

Custom of Fire Department.

Assistant Chief Seyferlich when informed that Commissioner Campbell had denied having received it, said:

"Why, it was sent to his office. There certainly would be no object on our part not to send it to the building department. It is the policy of the fire department, although it is not required by ordinance, to have each captain make an investigation from time to time of buildings in his district to see if they need fire escapes, have sufficient stairways, and are safe generally.

"These reports come in right along and we turn them over, as I say, to the building department. We never keep a copy of them. We seldom send a communication attached to these reports."

Secretary Slattery of the building department at first took the stand that the head of the building department would not consider that he had received any such report unless the fire department officials could show a copy of the communication from the fire marshal himself. Later he admitted that the fire department reports to the building department office seldom are accompanied by attached communications from the fire marshal.

"We don't get many such reports from the fire chief," he said. "They come here sometimes by messenger from the fire chief's office and sometimes Horan himself sends in a communication embodying the report."

Campbell Waits for Complaints.

With reference to failure to have the building inspected to ascertain its safety, Commissioner Campbell said:

"We don't inspect many old buildings unless we have a complaint that it is unsafe. As near as I can find, this building never has been inspected. You know the building code says we don't have to inspect such buildings unless we have a complaint. We have never had a complaint on this building."

Building Inspector James A. Short, in whose inspection district the Fish building is located, was sent by Commissioner Campbell to the scene of the fire to make a report. In his statement to Mr. Campbell, Mr. Short said:

"I found the building had a rear fire escape of the ladder kind, and that there were two stairways—at least from the first floor up as far as the third. These stairways were only three and one-half feet wide and were of wood.

"Now, it seemed to me, although I would not say for sure, that one of the stairways was blocked with merchandise. This was the one in the rear. I could not tell whether the furniture and stuff had been thrown there by firemen or whether it was left by the Fish people.

Thinks Code Was Violated.

"I could not tell if the stairways ran all the way up to the top floor. It is my belief that only one of them did. In this case the building was in violation of the city ordinances. But if the stairways—two of them—ran all the way up to the third floor and with one fire escape the building was within the code."

On Jan. 14, last, Elevator Inspector John P. Grace of the building department visited the Fish building and inspected the two elevators in the building. One of them was used as a freight and the other as a passenger elevator. That is the way they are scheduled in the records of Chief Elevator Inspector J. B. Taylor.

On the freight elevator Grace reported it fireproof and the condition good. On the passenger elevator the report was the shaft was not fireproof. A thirty day warning was written on the certificate to make the shaft fireproof, but across the certificate was stamped the following:

"This certificate is issued subject to the litigation involving the validity of the ordinance passed Jan. 25, 1904, and will be revoked if that ordinance is held to be valid."

"About sixty big property owners are fighting this matter out in court," said Mr. Taylor, "and it is my belief that it will go to the Supreme court of the United States before it is settled."

Ladders Not Fire Escapes.

Patrick J. Miniter, who has charge of the bureau for inspecting all hotels and apartment houses more than three stories high, said the term "fire escape" for structures of the ladder type is a misnomer.

"Take a building 50 feet wide by 100 long, and six stories high," he said, "and I should say it should be equipped with a stairway fire escape and two good inside stairways, reaching from the bottom to the top. The only escape this had was of the ladder type, which is no fire escape at all.

"That's been the trouble for the last twenty-five years. They call these vertical ladders fire escapes. They never were fire escapes, and never were intended to be. They were intended for use by firemen to aid them in getting up with a chemical extinguisher. They called it a fire escape, and that caused the trouble.

"The great trouble we have found is that the public don't complain as much as it ought to. If this building wasn't right some one should have written a letter to the department. Then an inspector would have been sent there immediately."

Inspections Ordered by Downey.

Inspection of all buildings was ordered by former Building Commissioner Joseph Downey in June, 1907, following the collapse of the Swigert Paper company's building in Franklin street. The work was divided among different bureaus and has been proceeding since. With only a small force of assistants, the bureau chiefs have adhered to a rule of making the general inspections when not occupied with complaints that a structure is extremely hazardous.

Judge Thinks Firemen Slow.

Municipal Judge William N. Gemmill, an eyewitness of the disaster, criticised the firemen.

"I was passing in a street car, saw smoke issuing from the fourth and fifth floors of the building, and left the car with other passengers to hurry to the scene," he said. "Ten or fifteen minutes later a truck bearing a long combination ladder arrived. Two girls were sitting up in a window on the sixth floor screaming for help. The firemen raised the ladder about thirty feet south of them. There it stood while we implored the men to attempt to reach the women in the window.

"They said the wires which held the big sign were in the way, but many of us thought the ladder could have been lowered and moved round the wires. A dozen of us attempted to use that ladder, but it was too heavy, and the firemen refused to aid us. Then they put up a short ladder which reached to the third story and two men climbed up, but they had no chance to reach the girls. There the poor girls sat and screamed. Then one fell to the pavement and the other fell inwards into the roaring furnace."

Fish Blames Fire Department.

Sigmund Fish criticised the fire department and laid the blame to the door of Chief Horan, asserting the fire department was slow in arriving.

"I shall certainly make charges against the firemen who appeared here," he said. "I believe there would have been no loss of life if the firemen had responded promptly.

"When the fire started I was in the State street building. I gave the alarm and hurried over there. It seemed an awful long time before the firemen appeared. They did not raise ladders for a long time and when some of our employés started to raise ladders from the top of adjoining buildings the firemen drove them away. It was an outrage."

Chief Horan emphatically denied that the firemen were slow in arriving or that they used poor judgment in attempting to rescue the imprisoned employés of the company. He declared the stairways in the furniture store were of light and inflammable material, that there was only one fire escape on the building and that the girls on the fifth and sixth floors had little chance of leaving the building in case of a fire.

Little Chance for Escape.

"If the Fish people had been as particular about their building as the firemen were about getting to the scene of the fire and making every effort to save persons in danger, the fatalities today would have not occurred," said Chief Horan. "There was only one fire escape on the building in the first place, when there should at least have been two. It was an old style type of escape and barely complied with the ordinances.

"In most large buildings today we have modern fire escapes—stair escapes that frightened people can run down and not strive to climb. The stairways inside were wooden and inflammable. The employés of the fifth and sixth floors had little chance to escape in case of a fire.

"The first alarm turned in was a still alarm. It came from Nineteenth and State streets. I don't know who turned it in. That was a block from the scene of the fire.

"When the companies reached the scene, which was not twenty or twenty-five minutes after the alarm, as one company came only five blocks—from Fourteenth street and Wabash avenue—they had considerable difficulty in getting ladders up.

Obstructed by Big Canopy.

"What was the reason? Why, there was a great big canopy that spread all the way over the sidewalk to the street. We couldn't raise ladders up in the building over that thing.

"Then again there was a great big electric sign on the third floor. This had some guy ropes, and before we could get ladders up past this we had to cut those cables. As a matter of fact there were only two side windows on the front that we could reach at all. That is a fierce condition."

Fire Marshal Horan and Assistant Chief Seyferlich left the fire chief's office when the 4-11 alarm was turned in at 8:48 a. m.

"We got a 'still' alarm at 8:39," said Seyferlich. "At 8:42 the box was pulled, and at 8:48 the 4-11 was turned in. Horan and I got there about twelve minutes after that.

"Now there was a night blaze at a candle factory at Twenty-sixth street and Archer avenue, and two of the companies that might have been at the Fish fire were still over there at the candle factory blaze. One engine and one truck company were needed to respond to the first alarm.

Says Firemen Were Prompt.

"Three engine companies and one truck company were there inside of six minutes. A good many people have said it was twenty or twenty-five minutes before a single company arrived. That is not so. The company from Fourteenth street and Michigan avenue got there in three minutes after they got the alarm.

"Capt. O'Connor tells me the Fish people delayed turning in the alarm. If that is so the Fish people are much to blame, for the fire department doesn't know by instinct when fires break out.

"We had a stack of trouble with that canopy and the sign with the ropes and the cables in the front of the building.

"I am told that on all the floors the ways leading to the fire escape were blocked with merchandise and on the top floor girls' lockers blocked the passageways to the fire escape."

O'Connor Replies to Criticism.

Chief O'Connor of the Ninth battalion was the hero of the St. Luke sanitarium fire at Twenty-first street and Wabash avenue, two blocks distant from the scene of the Fish fire. The sanitarium was conducted by "Dr." O. E. Miller.

O'Connor rescued a number of persons from the burning building. Among those who were killed in the sanitarium fire was "Blind Billy" Kent, a former alderman.

"If anything was impossible," said Chief O'Connor, "it was impossible to go through the walls of flame to the top floor of the Fish building, where we realized those girls were facing death. The ladders would have caught fire had we placed them against the building, for the whole front was a mass of flames.

"I encountered a howling mob of people on the front sidewalk. I looked up and saw a woman standing on the outer ledge of one of the sixth story windows. I at once directed my men to raise ladders and rescue her. Our progress, however, was impeded by wire used to hold up signs across the front of the building and by the big canopy over the front entrance. If it had not been for these wires we might have saved the woman. We had to cut the wires to get up ladders against the Fish building. Before we could get the ladders up the women leaped and struck the canopy.

"It is true we drove a howling mob of men away from ladders. They didn't know what they were doing and were interfering with our work.

"They say we should have directed our attention to the south side of the building. This is untrue. There were women in the front windows of the sixth floors and it was our duty to give them first aid."

UNKNOWN MAN KILLS HIMSELF WHILE ON DOWNTOWN STREET.

Shoots Self Through Head—Had Removed Traces of Identification—Woman of 70 Thought to Be Suicide.

An unidentied man about 30 years old shot himself through the forehead while at La Salle and Madison streets about 9 o'clock last night and died an hour later at St. Luke's hospital. He took pains to remove every mark of identification from his person, but the trademark on his shoes indicates that he came from St. Louis.

Several persons saw him take the revolver from his hip pocket and fire, but none was close enough to stop him. He was unconscious when picked up. Policeman L. C. Peters was standing on the opposite corner talking with former Inspector Backus when the shot was fired, and summoned the patrol wagon. Dr. J. B. Howard, who was passing along, examined the injured man and pronounced him beyond medical aid.

The man was about 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighed about 180 pounds. He had brown hair, light blue eyes, wore two pairs of trousers, uniform coat, belt and suspenders. He had a blue check tie and cheap stick pin, a soft black hat, and No. 9 shoes, the straps of which bore the mark of Turner & Co., St. Louis. The body was taken to McNally & Duffy's undertaking establishment at 516 Wabash avenue.

The body of Mrs. Catherine Davids, 70 years old, was found in a gas filled room at the residence of her son, Nicholas Davids, 4039 Grenshaw street. The aged woman had been ill and it is thought this led her to commit suicide. The body was found by her daughter-in-law.

CALLS FLAT FOE OF CHILD'S HEALTH

E. R. Pritchard Says Apartment Houses Tend to Make Physical Wrecks.

NEED AIR, SUN, AND ROOM.

An apartment house in Chicago is no place in which to bring up a child, according to E. R. Pritchard, secretary of the board of health, who spoke last night before the Illinois society of the Sons of the American Revolution at the Great Northern hotel.

"You can't raise healthy, well formed men and women in steam heated tunnels," he said, "and if it wasn't for the great annual influx of big, red blooded young men and women from the country and suburban towns each year, Chicago soon would be a city of physical degenerates.

Need Air and Elbow Room.

"The three things needed to save Chicago from becoming a community of ailing men and women are air, sunshine, and elbow room. The best expenditure of any department in the city is for the small parks, the breathing spaces.

Ald. Bernard W. Snow spoke of other features of the work done by the board of health.

"The practice of the board ordering physical inspection of school children has in it the promise of the biggest reform undertaken by the city," he said. "In the first year of inspection 647,000 children were examined for contagious diseases and 148,000 for physical deformities. Of the latter 68,000 were found suffering from some physical imperfection.

Seek Convention for Chicago.

"It is essential that this work be extended, and while the board lacks the money at present the investment is more important than the annual expenditure of $6,000,000 in police work."

By a special vote the society instructed the Illinois delegates to the national congress at Toledo to make an effort to secure the convention for Chicago in 1911. The congress in 1912 will be in some Atlantic coast city, according to the custom.

BLAMES PATENT MEDICINES FOR TUBERCULOSIS DEATHS.

New York Health Expert Says Many Cases End Fatally Because Patient Doesn't See Doctor in Time.

New York, March 25.—[Special.]—Dr. Thomas F. Darlington, ex-commissioner of health, told a massmeeting of the drug clerks of New York held under the auspices of the National Pharmaceutical society tonight that a large percentage of the diseases of the heart in this country was due to the excessive use of coal tar products.

He declared that an equally large percentage of tuberculosis cases terminated fatally because the sufferer used patent medicines instead of consulting, in time, a reputable physician.

"The day of patent medicines," said Dr. Darlington, "is passing. More persons die of consumption as a result of taking these patent medicines than from any other cause, for they take the compounds instead of consulting a good doctor."

ESCAPES DEATH BY TRAIN.

Man Unconscious on Illinois Central Tracks Seen by Engineer Just in Time.

Charles Kane of Columbus, O., was found unconscious with his right arm broken on the Illinois Central tracks at Eighteenth street by Engineer Fred Graham, who saw him just in time to avoid running over him. He was taken to St. Luke's hospital by the police. His identity was established by papers in his pockets. He had no money. He was not drunk and was well dressed.

GIRD LOINS ANEW IN COUNCIL RACE

Candidates for Aldermen Will Begin the Real Fight for Victory Today.

COLOR LINE IS OPPOSED.

Dewey-Shufelt Managers Make Attack on Wright, Who Seeks Negro Vote.

Elimination of the saloon issue, by the action of the board of election commissioners yesterday, has knocked the bottom from many of the ward aldermanic campaigns. As the situation is viewed by the politicians and the council leaders, the real fight begins this morning for control of doubtful wards, where high grade aldermanic candidates stand a chance of defeat by candidates whose fitness and honesty have not been tested.

The contest between rival aspirants for council seats has been hanging fire pending the verdict of the election board, and in only a few of the wards has there been much more than a cursory campaign started. The big guns will begin to fire early this morning.

In the Second ward the Dewey organization has taken the aggressive against E. H. Wright, the negro candidate for alderman against Wilson Shufelt. At the same time the Dewey lieutenants took a jab at E. C. Wentworth, the independent candidate, for the statement charged to him and denied by him, that $1.60 a day is enough to pay a city employé.

Want Color Line Wiped Out.

The charge made by the Dewey organization against Wright is that he has been south town clerk, county commissioner, and member of the Republican state committee, and that he has fought candidates of his own race.

The bulletin issued from Dewey-Shufelt headquarters says Saufelt never has held public office. An "Appeal to Reason," issued by the "Colored Men's Shufelt Committee," alleges that it is dangerous at this time to draw the color line in Chicago.

The Second ward campaign is approaching a degree of bitterness which had not been apprehended by any of the candidates or of their managers when the contest started. The ward is burning up politically and as spectacular an election contest as Chicago ever has known is the prophecy from the old timers as to what will be produced in the ward within the next ten days.

Charges were filed with the board of election commissioners against two colored election judges in the Second ward, with the intimation spread broadcast that more complaints are ready to be presented today or Monday.

Gray Wolves Plotting.

Considerable rumor of a concerted attempt of the old gray wolf gang and their younger allies to organize a counter movement to the nonpartisan caucus agreement made at the La Salle hotel Thursday afternoon, did not meet with serious credence, even from aldermen who have not signed with the nonpartisan majority. With twelve Democrats, who are pretty sure to be in the next council, pledged to the nonpartisan organization, the chances for defeat for the nonpartisan committee slate is held to be dubious by most of the aldermen.

Ald. Charles J. Forsberg, who is opposed for reëlection in the Thirty-fifth ward by George C. Sikes, is out in a platform in which he demands through routing of Madison street cars from the loop to the city limits, lighting of the streets with sanitary district power, and reduction of the cost of electric lighting in his ward as furnished by the Oak Park Lighting and Heating company.

The Twenty-fourth ward fight is getting red hot. Chester A. Strall is the Republican nominee against John Handerlein, Democrat. Strall is a business man who has the backing of the Republican organization led by Corporation Counsel Edward J. Brundage. A meeting is announced in his behalf tonight at 1123 Fullerton avenue at which the speakers will be State's Attorney Wayman, E. J. Brundage, B. J. Mullaney, Judge Going, and Guy Guernsey.

Meeting in Clancy's Interest.

Twenty-seventh ward Republicans will rally tonight at 4853 Milwaukee avenue in the interest of Ald. Clancy. The speakers will be Ald. Clancy, Robert N. Holt, V. P. Arnold, Harvey Strickler, and former Ald. Henry J. Siewert.

The Iroquois club will entertain all of the Democratic candidates for aldermen at luncheon at 12:30 o'clock today.

The Fourteenth ward Republican organization announces a meeting for Monday night at Republican headquarters, 2103 West Lake street, for Ald. Charles J. Lucas. The speakers will be B. F. Moseley, H. G. Parker, the Rev. R. W. Wilson, and Ferdinand L. Barnett.

Because of Good Friday there were few public political meetings at night, but in every ward there were conferences of the ward organizations and the campaign managers.

MURRAY BOOMED BY WAYMAN AS ALDERMANIC CANDIDATE.

State's Attorney Tells Voters of the Twentieth Ward That He Is the Man Needed by Them.

State's Attorney Wayman and more than half a dozen other speakers boomed Carl T. Murray as the Republican candidate for alderman, opposing Ald. Nicholas J. Finn in the Twentieth ward at a meeting last night in Oakley hall, West Madison street and Oakley avenue. Candidate Murray outlined his platform, and attacked the administration of Ald. Finn.

"You all know Murray out here," State's Attorney Wayman said. "I have come out to tell you that we know him downtown. He's the real goods, and just the man you need to clean up the filthy streets and alleys in this ward."

"If I'm elected I'll establish an office in the ward, and keep close to you and serve your interests," Mr. Murray promised. "Finn has outlived his usefulness, and should not be reëlected. Why, you never see him out here. He's never been west of Paulina street, and I think he doesn't even know that the ward runs south of Harrison street."

A permanent campaign organization was formed. C. F. Wiche, 1520 West Jackson boulevard, was elected president. Bishop Samuel Fallows, Congressman William J. Moxley, John R. McCabe, Homer K. Galpin, Herman Meyers, and John P. Stewart were chosen as vice presidents. Sol Westerfeld, 1742 Washington boulevard, was named secretary.

GIVES TYPHOID TO MONKEY.

Prof. Metchnikoff Inoculates Chimpanzee and Tells Berlin Scientists of His Triumph.

PARIS, March 25.—Prof. Metchnikoff, the famous head of the Pasteur institute here, announced to the Academy of Medicine this week that he had inoculated a chimpanzee with typhoid fever.

This is the first time typhoid has been transmitted to an animal. Metchnikoff's success is regarded as the most important step yet taken toward preventing the disease in humans, just as vaccination prevents true smallpox.

The professor said that with the help of his assistant, Besredka, he obtained a virus from a man suffering with typhoid and injected it into the chimpanzee. The animal died, and an autopsy disclosed the bacilli of typhoid in the intestines.

"The result is that by experimenting with animals we will answer the hitherto baffling questions I have put to you," Prof. Metchnikoff concluded.

BALLOT TO OMIT SALOON QUESTION

setting forth that over 35,000 of said alleged signatures were illegal, fraudulent, and not in compliance with the statute. A list of the names and addresses of the signers in question was funished with and made a part of said objections.

"This board made an examination of said petition and also a comparison of 35,222 signatures in question thereon, with the official records of this office, and as a result of such examination and comparison, the petition was found to contain the signatures as set forth in the tabulated statement attached hereto.

Petition Held to Be Invalid.

"Counsel for petitioners contend that if a signer of the petition was registered within a precinct in the city of Chicago, and has since such registration removed his residence or home from such precinct to some other precinct within such city, and signed the petition in question as a resident of said latter precinct without first having been registered as a qualified voter therein, yet the signature of such person should be considered valid and counted as a duly registered legal voter.

"It would seem to leave no room for argument, under any reasonable interpretation of the law, that a signer of said petition must be registered as a qualified voter in the precinct in which he resides at the time of signing such petition. In other words, he must be eligible to cast his ballot as a duly registered legal voter in the precinct in which he lives and also gives as his address upon the petition at the time he signs the same.

"It will be necessary for the purpose of passing upon this petition to deal with but one class of names.

"In the opinion of the board 26,128 signatures are not those of duly registered legal voters, and consequently cannot be considered valid or counted under the law. Therefore, deducting said number from 74,026, leaves upon the petition 47,898 signatures, which is 15,613 less than 25 per cent of the legal voters, or the required number. This total of 15,613 gives the 'dry' petition the benefit of 3,620 doubtful signatures.

"The number of valid signatures upon the petition being less than the number required by law this board is without jurisdiction to submit the question at the coming election, and the objections will be sustained."

Mention of Fraud Omitted.

When Chief Clerk Cannon had finished reading the opinion of the election board Harvey L. Sheldon, attorney for the Anti-Saloon league, asked for a further ruling or statement regarding the allegations of fraud that had been made by Attorney Levy Mayer for the "wets" at the public hearing.

"The opinion of the board," said Mr. Sheldon, "goes into details as much as we could expect, but there have been so many charges as to fake and fictitious names that we would like a statement by the board on that subject. I think the commissioners would be doing their consciences no violence thereby. We would like to ask this board if it does not merely find the signatures invalid, without supporting the accusations that signatures on the petition were 'fraudulent, mythical,' and subject to other innuendoes as charged."

Attorney Levy Mayer was promptly on his feet with a blistering reply, reiterating his charges, and promising that evidence would be presented to the grand jury.

Mayer Hints at Prosecution.

"If I had here a stenographic transcript of what I stated when I presented the objections," said Mr. Mayer, "I would not repeat from memory. As near as I recollect, I at that time read from the objections that there were 32,126 fraudulent, fictitious, illegal signatures on the petition.

"Since I made that statement to the commission there have been furnished to us and our various clients proofs of many hundred forged and otherwise fraudulent signatures that were not included in the 32,126 specified in our objections.

"In other words, and we think the grand jury will hear of this——"

"That is right," interrupted Attorney Sheldon. "We will aid you in any way we can."

"And some of your clients will hear of this," resumed Mr. Mayer. "The finding of this commission is that some 30,000 illegal and fraudulent signatures are on the petition. We now have proof that of the 44,000 signatures appearing upon the petition, and therefore assumed to be valid, because we did not contest them, many hundreds are forgeries or fraudulent.

"If information that we have turns out upon verification to be as reliable as the figures we presented to this commission at the start we purpose to invite the public prosecuting authorities to investigate and to prosecute the offenders."

Comment for the Drys.

In commenting on the board's ruling H. L. Sheldon, attorney for the drys, said:

"The judge of the Circuit court of Springfield, Ill., in Sangamon county, has held that the election commissioners have no right to go behind the face of the petition when it on its face complies with the law, holding that they are ministerial officers and have no authority to pass upon questions judicially. The attorney general of Illinois also has given an opinion to the same effect. The Supreme court of Michigan also in several cases has held that the officers with whom the petition has been filed, when it is verified by an affidavit, have no right to go behind the facts alleged on the petition.

"The election commissioners have held that they had a right to go behind the face of the petition to see if the parties signing were duly registered legal voters. We then hoped that they would find that parties registered anywhere in the city and having moved to some other precinct in the city might be considered duly registered voters and entitled to sign the petition. To hold that a man who was registered in one precinct and had moved to another was not qualified to sign the petition disfranchised a large number of voters

"Where printed copies of the petition are circulated and posted in the saloons, if any signers are claiming their signatures to be forgeries, it is probably to avoid the boycotting influence of the liquor men."

Sees Good in the Decision.

"The effect of the election board's decision," said Supt. James K. Shields of the Anti-Saloon league, "is all to the good for us. The benefits I see as a result of this contest are:

"First—Chicago has been prevented from colonizing parts of the state where anti-saloon contests are on.

"Second—There has been an agitation that has stirred the entire nation.

"Third—Chicagoans have been educated to the significance of the local option movement.

"Fourth—We have learned who are our friends and now can organize a stronger foundation than ever.

"Our next campaign looks to control of the legislature. It is patent to all that the liquor interests, which began by deriding us, have been scared in defeating an expression of Chicago's voters at the coming election. We will give them another battle next spring."

For Statewide Prohibition.

The Illinois Prohibition executive committee announced that petitions will be prepared today for circulation, asking that the prohibition question be submitted to the electors throughout the state at the next general election. The petitions will be headed:

"Shall the general assembly submit to the electors of the state an amendment to the constitution prohibiting the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages?"

The state law requires only 115,000 signatures in order to bring the matter before the state legislature, where a two-thirds vote of both houses is necessary to submit the amendment to popular vote.

Although the election board's decision ended the campaign so bitterly waged for months, both the "Wets" and "Drys" announced that scheduled massmeetings would be held. Gov. Stubbs of Kansas will come to speak against the saloons, and former Mayor Carter H. Harrison will deliver the address for which he has been advertised by the wets.

KANSAS ORATOR ANSWERS 'WETS'

Denies Assertions That Prohibition Laws Have Bankrupted His State.

TALKS AT WILLARD HALL

Says Providence Will Be Kind to City Which Abolishes Saloons.

John Marshall, a tall, rough, powerful Kansan, with a broad Scotch "br-r," came all the way from the office of the attorney general of the sunflower state to Chicago to "nail lies about Kansas." The "nailing" took place last night at an anti-saloon meeting in Willard hall. Appearance of the Kansans in the local option campaign comes from the "wets'" assertions that prohibition laws have almost bankrupted Kansas.

Mr. Marshall announced that Gov. W. R. Stubbs of Kansas would follow him in his mission of setting Kansas right in the eyes of Chicago and would speak tomorrow on the same subject at the Third Presbyterian church.

Mr. Marshall stated that he was a fanatic and that the tone of the people of Kansas was fanatic, but pointed out that the men and the ideas which had done great things for the world had always been considered thus. He based his plea for the extermination of the liquor traffic on the theory that it was a moral evil, and expressed his belief that God would curse the cities which did not cast it out as surely as he cursed Sodom and Gomorrah.

Thinks Providence Will Reward.

He likewise claimed that the blessing of Providence would rest on the city or state which rose in righteousness and abolished its "union with sin."

"The state has no more right to profit by this iniquitous traffic," he said, "than has a father to profit by the shame of his daughter."

In proof of the fact that civic righteousness as exemplified by anti-liquor laws had been rewarded by heaven he quoted the bank statements of Kansas, the wealth of her mines, oil fields, and manufactories, and the wealthy farms that now occupy what was once called "the great American desert."

He denied that crime or pauperism had been increased in Kansas by the abolition of liquor. He said that the figures quoted by the wets included the prisoners in the federal prison at Fort Leavenworth, to which the United States army and a score of states, including Illinois, contribute, and the prisoners from Oklahoma, which has no penitentiary.

Most Crimes Result of Liquor.

He stated that most of the prisoners were in jail for crimes against the liquor laws, and that three-fourths of them were from "wet" states and had been sent to prison before they had been in Kansas long enough to gain a residence.

That prohibition does prohibit in Kansas was his assertion. He declared that there was not an open saloon or "joint" in the whole state, and pointed to the prosecution and conviction of "bootleggers" as showing to what straits the traffic was reduced and the vigor with which it was being suppressed. He said that not five cars of liquor a week entered the state.

John W. Hill presided at the meeting and James K. Shields and Harvey L. Sheldon also spoke.

TELLS WHY "DRY" PETITION IS POSTED THROUGHOUT CITY.

Ald. Cermak Says It Will Act Against the Anti-Saloon Advocates in the Future.

Ald. Anton J. Cermak, whose position as an adversary to local option is fully established through his position as a member of the executive committee of the United Societies, revealed yesterday the reason for posting in conspicuous places in every precinct of each ward the lists of the persons who signed the "dry" petition.

It is hoped by this plan to keep the anti-saloon league from getting names to any petition which they may circulate in the future. In other words, the United Societies planned for the future when it went to this expense, and the action had no bearing on the contest, which was ended yesterday by the election commissioners.

"The fellows who signed that petition, who are known to be drinkers, and there are thousands of them, will be 'kidded,' the alderman said. "Everybody they meet will ask them about it, and they will be careful about signing any petition of that kind again.

"Then there are a lot of fellows who put their names on that petition who have business dealings with men who don't believe in prohibition. They will find it affects their deals, and that is likely to keep them from signing another petition."

OAK PARK AND EDISON PARK SPLIT BY ANNEXATION WARS.

In Former Village Women Will Electioneer Against Plan—In Latter the Whole Population Divides.

The Parents and Teachers' association of Oak Park held a strong anti-annexation meeting last night in the assembly hall of the high school building, and a permanent organization to fight the plan, with Mrs. F. P. Caldwell as president, was affected.

Mrs. Caldwell and Mrs. J. G. Broughton was appointed a committee to "electioneer" against the annexation proposition. They will visit the churches tomorrow and urge the men to vote against the scheme.

Norman F. Patton, former Chicago school architect, and Attorney N. G. Moore of the Chicago City railway, made speeches in which they pointed out that the Oak Park school system would be endangered, and taxes increased if the suburb is added to Chicago.

Edison Park also is in the throes of an annexation war. The entire population, numbering 700, is divided on the proposition. Leaders of the annexationists offer lower taxes, police service, higher grade schools, cheaper gas and water, free mail delivery, and probable electric cars as the reasons for their stand, while the anti-annexation faction gives present good roads and low taxes as sufficient reasons to retain an individual municipality.

CITY FIGHT INTERESTS DENEEN.

Governor Talks with Lieutenants in Chicago About Progress of the Aldermanic Campaign.

Gov. Deneen was in Chicago yesterday. Aside from attending to some personal affairs he talked with political lieutenants from the town of Lake wards concerning the aldermanic campaign. It is understood that satisfactory reports were made to the governor about the progress of the Republican aldermanic candidates in the Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth, Thirty-first, and Thirty-second wards. Gov. Deneen returned to Springfield at night.

SEEKS TO AVOID ANNEXATION.

Indiana Harbor Fears East Chicago and Its Civic League Incorporates for Self-Protection.

For the purpose of opposing the plans of East Chicago, Ind., which place recently took steps to annex Hammond and Whiting, the Indiana Harbor Civic league was incorporated yesterday. Articles were filed with the secretary of state at Indianapolis. It is said towns in the Calumet region will take similar measures.

INSURANCE CASE IS GROWING

"Yellow Pup" Fund in New York Expected to Total $500,000.

M'CALL REFUSES TO TALK.

Man High in Tammany Counsels Mentioned in the Case.

New York, March 25.—[Special.]—Those most informed about Supt. Hotchkiss' fire insurance investigation, which is to be continued on Monday, say that the amount included in the "yellow pup" fund for influencing legislation at Albany will be at least twice as large as the evidence thus far has indicated.

It is said, in fact, that the total will approach $500,000 for the years from 1901 to 1906. Of this sum $200,000 already has been accounted for in the aggregate of small fees for bill killing, admitted in the testimony of William H. Buckley, insurance lobbyist, and mentioned in the correspondence of George P. Sheldon, late president of the Phenix Fire Insurance company, who was supposed to represent the other companies as well as his own in legislative matters.

The Supreme court was not in session today, and Supreme Court Justice McCall did not happen to meet his friends who are anxious to have him explain away the Buckley testimony that he signed Buckley's name on the back of a $35,000 check from the Phenix company and then deposited this check to his own account in the New York Security and Trust company.

Justice McCall Is Silent.

Justice McCall still declines to make public any statement and all that Supt. Hotchkiss will say is that he is waiting to hear that Justice McCall is ready to take the stand of his own volition. Process servers said today that they had no subpœna for Justice McCall and did not expect to receive one. Assistants in Supt. Hotchkiss' office said they felt confident that the issuance of an invitation to Justice McCall to become a voluntary witness is as far as the superintendent cared to go.

In case Justice McCall does decide to appear as a witness, it is said that the legislative doings of the Munich company during the three years he was its attorney would be looked into in detail.

The first business in the investigation, when it again gets under way, will be to further jog the memory of William H. Buckley. It was pointed out today as curious, if not significant, that the big fees shown to have been paid to legislative lawyers varied with the years in fair proportion to the extent of fire insurance measures at Albany. In 1904 the year in which the Grady bill was up, Buckley received $28,500, while Sheldon collected $15,000 for specified purposes. There was distributed among the minor legislative specialists $10,350.

Many New Names Involved.

These sums are regarded as trifling compared to what are expected to show up as the inquiry continues. In some cases only the sums raised by the foreign companies are known, and it is said the fees from the local companies were more.

It is expected that names of former members of the legislature, both Democrats and Republicans, will figure in the testimony during the coming week, and one name prominently mentioned is that of a politician standing high in the councils of Tammany hall, who was in the legislature during the session of 1907 and 1908.

The mail of the insurance department has been flooded since the sensational nature of the disclosures became known with anonymous notes giving what are called "straight tips" on good evidence. Men from the superintendent's office have investigated some of these tips. They are supposed to have originated among the antagonists of certain politicians.

DISAGREE ON MINERS' WAGES; BREAK COMES IN CONFERENCE.

Members of Scales Committee Will Report No Settlement at Meeting in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, O., March 25.—The scale committee of the joint conference of the miners and operators of Ohio, Indiana, and western Pennsylvania will report to the main body tomorrow morning that it is unable to agree upon a settlement of the wage dispute.

What action the miners will take following this is a question that is troubling the mining interests here. A secret caucus was held tonight by the miners on the joint scale commission, but its result was not announced.

It is known that western Pennsylvania and Indiana mine operators have offered a 5 cent increase on pick work and that Ohio has refused every demand. It is reported that at tomorrow's meeting of the miners' convention the question will be whether to strike in Ohio alone or to refuse all offers and call a general strike. This latter proposition is thought improbable, as the miners believe if they can secure an increased wage scale in western Pennsylvania and Indiana it will be adhered to throughout the country.

Another alternative would be the dissolution of the miners' convention without definite action having been taken other than to instruct the various districts to sign new agreements, or, failing in this, to begin open warfare with the sanction of the national organization.

Philadelphia Workers Go Back?

Philadelphia, Pa., March 25.—Anticipating that the Central Labor union at its meeting on Sunday will call off the sympathetic strike, union workers in most of the trades have arranged to resume work on Monday.

The committee of ten which has had charge of the general strike met the executive committee of the striking car men today and discussed plans for the continuation of the car men's strike. They will make a full report to the Central Labor union on Sunday.

The committee says that, as a result of the general strike, more than 15,000 new members have been enrolled in local unions.

MOVE TO MAKE MOTOR CARS SHOW CITY LICENSE TAGS.

Council Committee Accepts Amendment to Ordinance in Order to Collect Tax on All Automobiles.

Members of the city council license committee decided yesterday to accept an amendment to the wheel tax license ordinance which will require all motors to carry city license tags in plain sight. Charges had been made at previous meetings that there were from 500 to 5,000 unlicensed machines running in Chicago.

The finance committee decided that the city was unable to supply Morgan Park with water. The suburb authorities asked the city several weeks ago for water, but owing to the cramped facilities of the city the request could not be granted.

Chief of Police Steward called Assistant Chief Schuettler, Capt. Wood, and every division inspector to his office and discussed with them at some length gambling, bombs, pickpockets, spitting, and vagrants. He asked the inspectors to "jerk up" the rank and file of the department.

GIVE UP BRIBERS, ORDER TO BANKS

Pittsburg Jury Demands That Directors Produce Grafters in Court.

ACCUSED MEN NUMBER 31.

Controller Will Take All of the City's Money Out of Depositaries Named.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 25.—[Special.]—The grand jury investigating the graft cases today ordered the indictment of three more past and present councilmen for accepting bribes, bringing the total number to thirty-one. The presentments also ordered the directors of the city depositories to investigate their own boards to uncover bribers, and make a full report to the court on Monday.

Immediately following the presentments of the jury came the order of City Controller Morrow for the withdrawal of all city funds from the six banks, and the practical nullification of the ordinance designating them as custodians of city funds.

There is about $3,640,320 in these banks, and this would be increased many millions during next week by taxes that are being paid. According to the controller, the withdrawals of funds will be gradual, so that the institutions may not be embarrassed, or any undue alarm caused depositors.

Even more sensational developments are expected on Monday when the bank directors, complying with the demand of the grand jury, make their report in court.

Demand Made Upon Bankers.

The extract from the presentments calling upon the bank directors reads:

"We call upon the directors of the six banks named as city depositories to investigate who paid for each of the said banks the bribes herein set forth, and report the same to this grand jury, not later than Monday, March 28, 1910. And we further demand that said report be in writing and certified to by directors of said banks individually.

"We strongly recommend and insist that the proper officials of the city of Pittsburg take immediate legal action to nullify the ordinance naming the Farmers' Deposit National bank, the Second National bank of Pittsburg, the German National bank of Pittsburg, the German National bank of Allegheny, the Columbia National bank of Pittsburg, and the Workingman's Savings and Trust company of Allegheny as city depositories, in order that the bribe givers may not benefit by reason of their own wrongdoing and criminal conduct."

Graft Plot' Details Told.

The presentments give the full details of the plot on the part of the councilmen to obtain bribes from the six banks, the means adopted for paying the bribes are related, and the story of the transfer of $45,000 by an unnamed man to former Councilman Charles Stewart in the Hotel Imperial, New York, is told.

It is related that Max G. Leslie, former chairman of the Republican county committee, received $25,000 by arrangement between E. H. Jennings and F. A. Griffen of the Columbia National bank, and that Leslie gave William Brand, who was then president of the common council, $17,500 to obtain the city deposits for the Columbia National bank. An unnamed man is said to be interested and concerned in the payment of the money by Leslie to Brand either as intermediary or principal.

It is declared that Morris Einstein received $15,000 from the Workingman's Savings and Trust company to have that bank named as a city depository, but the name of the official who paid him the money is unknown.

Think Books Were Mutilated.

It is further declared in the presentments that the members of the grand jury are of the opinion that the books of the Workingman's bank have been mutilated, three pages referring to this deal having been cut from the ledger. Einstein, it is also declared, kept $5,000 for his services in arranging the deal.

Further declarations in the presentments are that two city clerks were given $1,000 each, and that $1,750 was set apart for newspaper men, and that Henry M. Bolger, the saloonkeeper already convicted of bribery, was given $500 for his services in bringing about the meeting between officials of the German National bank of Pittsburg and the councilmen.

It is recited that John F. Klein and Joseph C. Wasson, by reason of their confessions and statements, making possible the exposure of the facts, are entitled to great consideration, and a reduction of Klein's sentence is urged.

A paragraph of the presentments that was added at the last moment declared that former Councilman Jacob Soffel refused the tender of $5,000, which was then set apart as a defense fund in case any of the members of the clique got within the grasp of the law.

Prosecutor Waits for Rush.

The only comment the district attorney would make upon the developments of the day was: "We expect pleas at any moment, and we may have to use 'rain checks' because of the rush."

Today's finding of the grand jury puts a new phase on the case of Max G. Leslie, who is now at Hot Springs. Leslie was acquitted on the charge of perjury recently in connection with the Columbia National bank matter. He had denied to a grand jury that he had ever received any money in the deal, and convinced a jury when placed on trial that on the day he was alleged to have received the money he was in New York. The present grand jury finds that he paid $17,500 to Brand, and that the bank paid Leslie $25,000 in June, 1908, but does not specify the date.

GADE TO CONTINUE AS CONSUL.

Wife of Norwegian Representative Denies Rumor About His Being Promoted to Washington.

Mrs. Alice King Gade, wife of F. Herman Gade, Norwegian consul, yesterday said that her husband's trip to Norway was not for the purpose of a conference with government officials relative to a change of diplomatic representatives at Washington. She said Mr. Gade went to Norway to settle up the estate of his father, who died last year at Christiania. Carl E. Faye, acting consul, said that the rumor that Mr. Gade may become Norwegian minister at Washington is unfounded.

CRUISER'S CREW IN MUTINY?

Inquiry Ordered Into Troubles Aboard the Salem.

NAVAL TEST IS DELAYED.

Painting of Insult on Side of Vessel Hastens the Work.

Norfolk, Va., March 25.—[Special.]—Serious trouble among the crew of the scout cruiser Salem has caused a countermanding of orders to sail from this port and the beginning of an inquiry directed by the navy department. Rear Admiral A. C. Dillingham came from Washington and ran up his flag on the vessel today and will make the investigation.

Charges of harsh and cruel treatment have been made by the men against their officers, especially Commander George R. Evans. Recently the words "Evans' madhouse" were painted on the side of the vessel. Soon afterward a seaman who had been sentenced to five years' imprisonment leaped overboard.

Vessel Scheduled for Tests.

The Salem was under orders to leave Hampton Roads to make backing tests in a nearby harbor, to show the efficiency of the turbine engine. Afterward it was to join its sister ship, the Birmingham, on a cruise to South American waters and the west coast of Africa. From those points the two ships were to conduct long distance wireless telegraphy tests with Brant Rock, Mass., during the summer.

These plans were upset temporarily, however, when officials at Washington were informed of the condition of insubordination on the ship. How long the investigation is likely to take cannot be learned.

Torpedo Boat Has More Trouble.

Vallejo, Cal., March 25.—The torpedo boat Hopkins, which broke down about twenty miles off the Golden Gate and sent a wireless message for assistance, limped into the Mare Island navy yard tonight under its own steam, but with only one boiler working. Coming up the coast the Hopkins is reported to have experienced much trouble with leaky boiler tubes. The Hopkins is the torpedo boat on which a number of men were seriously injured several weeks ago by the bursting of steam tubes while the vessel was off San Pedro.

AUTO AND OCCUPANTS SAVED FROM RIVER BY HEAVY CHAIN.

Car Containing Two Men and Woman Held at Edge of Opening by Quick Action of Policeman.

Only the drawing of a heavy chain across the street by Policeman William S. Foley prevented an automobile in which two men and a woman were riding from going into the river at the east end of the Lake street bridge early yesterday morning.

The bridge was swung to allow the fire tug Graeme Stewart to pass up the stream to a south side fire, but the red signal light and bell failed to work. The driver of the machine, a large touring car, owned by Robert E. Law, 107 South Austin avenue, Oak Park, saw the danger and turned to the right as Policeman Foley drew the chain.

The big auto struck and snapped off a guard post, stopping on the edge of the opening. The car then was driven away before the names of the occupants could be learned.

Horace Robinson, 57 East Fourteenth street, a member of the Auto Salvage and Parts company, 513 Wabash avenue, and H. H. Vantrey, chauffeur, 1425 Michigan avenue, escaped serious injury last night when their automobile crashed into the rear of a Forty-third and Root street car at South State and Forty-third streets by jumping from the machine. Each suffered cuts and bruises about the head, face, and hands.

CHURCHES MARK GOOD FRIDAY.

Catholics and Episcopalians Throughout Land Observe Day with Special Services.

All of the Catholic and Episcopal churches in Chicago and throughout the world yesterday observed Good Friday. Special penitential services were held. In the Catholic churches the sacrament was removed from each altar, and all pictures and statues were shrouded in purple coverings. This will continue until tomorrow, when the festival of the resurrection will be celebrated with brilliant pomp and rejoicing, in sharp contrast to the penance, fasting, and mourning of Lent.

AERIAL ROUTE TO PASSION PLAY

Passengers Can Make Round Trip from Munich to Oberammergau and See Play for $137.

MUNICH, March 25.—Airships carrying passengers will fly between this city and Oberammergau from May 15 to Oct. 1 next. All arrangements have been perfected. The largest type of the Purseval airship will sail on the aerial line. Passengers embarking here can witness the passion play and return to Munich for $137 for the round trip. The distance is 120 miles. If that voyage is too long those of soaring ambition can make short circular trips over this city and vicinity for $55.

YOUNG MAN IS SHOT BY HAZER.

Nebraska Lad Is Wounded at Amateur Initiation Ceremony in Rushville, Neb.

Rushville, Neb., March 25.—William Westover, 18 year old son of District Judge W. H. Westover, was shot tonight through the hand and chest by one of a party of boys of his own age bent on hazing him. The lads had organized a sort of lodge and young Westover was booked for initiation. His condition is critical.

SANTA FE HEAD IN DENIAL.

President Ripley Declares the Pennsylvania Did Not Buy Stock of His Railway.

Santa Barbara, Cal., March 25.—E. P. Ripley, president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé, tonight denied the story published yesterday that the Pennsylvania had bought a large amount of Santa Fé stock formerly owned by E. H. Harriman.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., March 25.—[Special.]—The east as well as the west is disappointed with the Aldrich-Payne tariff law, and is disgusted with Cannonism, according to several eastern Republican leaders, who today commented upon the revelations of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S poll of eastern editors on these two questions. They asserted that the poll reflected with accuracy the sentiment of that part of the country.

The details of the canvass of editors, showing of those who cast ballots, a vote of 789 to 197 against the tariff law, and 879 to 155 against Cannon for reëlection as speaker, early read by both parties to the controversy that has split the Republican membership in congress. The story of the straw vote was plumped into a situation which already was agitated by the question of attempting some kind of further tariff legislation before the session ends, and the other question of obtaining from Speaker Cannon an announcement that he will not be a candidate for reëlection to the chair.

Regulars Suggest Tariff Action.

The insurgents and near insurgents who are beginning to come out of the woods in goodly numbers in the eastern delegations said at once that THE TRIBUNE'S poll reveals a condition of dissatisfaction in the east that bodes ill for the party in the approaching congressional election unless some radical measures are adopted.

More and more of the recognized regulars are beginning to suggest that it might be a good thing to take some action on the tariff that would be along the lines demanded by the people. Just what kind of action this should be is an open question. Some want an attempt at revision, but this would be difficult to obtain and would prolong the session to an extent that would defeat its own purpose.

Some think that steps should be taken for the creation of a tariff commission which shall be charged with the duty of studying tariff problems and recommending the revision of schedules. This proposition is gaining in favor. If congress should take such action it is believed that it would help the reëlection of many Republicans who are in bad standing with their constituents on account of their vote for the Aldrich law.

Seek a Retirement Announcement.

The disclosures of the repudiation of Cannon by the eastern editors also lent additional point to the talk of forcing from the speaker an announcement that he will not be a candidate for reëlection as presiding officer of the house. As THE TRIBUNE reported several weeks ago the regulars have discussed different plans for getting "Uncle Joe" to stand aside. The feeling now, as then, is that many a district will be saved to the Republican party if it is understood that there is to be a new deal in the speakership of the next congress.

The outcome of the three days' battle last week has revived the proposition of obtaining a retirecent announcement from the former dictator of the house. It is argued that having come off with a vote of confidence "Uncle" Joe ought to be willing to disavow any ambition to succeed himself as speaker. But so far he has refused to yield to this pressure.

One of the New England leaders said today that influences outside of congress now were being brought to bear upon the speaker to obtain his consent to the proposed program. A good many members believe Cannon will announce his retirement from the field in his farewell speech of the session, which is delivered from the chair on the day of adjournment.

Regular Thinks Figures Right.

One of the regulars in the New York delegation closely scanned the returns of THE TRIBUNE poll from his state and then said he had nothing to say for publication. But when assured that his name would not be used he stated that he believed the figures accurately reflected the sentiment of the people on the tariff question.

"There always is a lot of dissatisfaction after the passage of a tariff bill," he said. "But it wears off. The Republicans with good, hard work from now till election ought to be able to counteract much of this antagonism and hold their own."

Surprise was expressed by western members that New England editors in large numbers should be found condemning the tariff. A New England Republican leader said he was not surprised. He said the people everywhere in New England are blaming the tariff for high prices. Vermont, he declared, is as insurgent as Iowa, Wisconsin, and Minnesota. Massachusetts, as indicated in the election of Eugene N. Foss, a Democrat, to congress in a normally Republican district, is seething with discontent. Senator Lodge, who is to seek reëlection by the legislature to be elected next fall, is about as badly scared as it is good form to be.

"Rock Ribbed" Challenge Accuracy.

The "rock ribbed" regulars in the house challenged the accuracy of the poll all along the line.

"I don't seem to find the kind of editors THE TRIBUNE does in its poll," said Sereno E. Payne, chairman of the committee on ways and means. "I know that there are no Republican editors against the tariff in my part of New York state. Altogether, I place no reliance on any of these polls or straw votes. They never reflect conditions accurately or even approximately.

"Why doesn't THE TRIBUNE come out and tell what it doesn't like in the tariff? I read THE TRIBUNE every day and I have yet to see any specific criticism of the tariff. It just keeps on saying that the tariff is all wrong and that the people don't like it. I challenge THE TRIBUNE to point out the alleged faults of the tariff law. I don't believe there is any such antagonism to the tariff among the people as THE TRIBUNE'S poll purports to show.

"Everybody understands why the newspapers don't like the tariff. They didn't get just what they wanted in the wood pulp and print paper schedules. It strikes me that newspaper editors ought to be about the last persons in the world to be condemning the tariff because they didn't get the concessions they demanded.

Says Newspapers Get Subsidy.

"Recent disclosures have shown that the newspapers are enjoying a subsidy from the government in the rates of postage on second class mail matter, which cover only a fraction of the cost of transporting periodicals. What manner of men are these editors who are complaining? Why, they are the same kind of men who when we were enacting anti-railroad pass legislation came to congress asking that newspaper editors be exempted from the operation of the law."

As to the poll on Speaker Cannon, Mr. Payne said he took no stock in the figures as indicating any substantial opposition to the speaker among the people.

"I consider it significant," he said, "that during all this agitation about Speaker Cannon I have received only one letter from my constituents expressing any criticism of the speaker, or of my support of him."

Representative Loudenslager of New Jersey, secretary of the Republican congressional committee, said he had not seen the figures in THE TRIBUNE'S poll and did not care to.

"It was demonstrated that THE TRIBUNE'S previous poll misrepresented conditions, and I have no faith in this one," he said.

Representative Parsons of New York said he had examined the figures, but had nothing to say.

Unimportant, Says Dalzell.

Other comments follow:

John Dalzell, Pennsylvania—I attach little importance to such polls. The previous TRIBUNE poll was shown to be inaccurate. In view of that fact I do not care to comment on the results of this one.

Arthur L. Bates, Pennsylvania—Both of those questions put by THE TRIBUNE are unfair and misleading. Cannon is not now a candidate for speaker; he was a candidate a year ago. In inquiring about the tariff, THE TRIBUNE asks the editors whether they favor the Aldrich tariff bill. The word Aldrich is used to get the answer 'No.' That is not the Aldrich tariff; it is the Republican tariff, passed in accordance with party pledge, which had two votes to one in the electoral college. I understand THE TRIBUNE has made a hue and cry over the glove and hosiery tariff, which congress refused to lower. Those articles are cheaper now than they were a year ago. The demand for the lower tariff originated with importers in New York, and was backed by business houses which advertise heavily with the daily papers. We cut the duty from hides in response to popular demand, and the price of boots and shoes has gone up instead of down.

Mr. Burke Is Surprised.

James Francis Burke, Pennsylvania—The gauging of public sentiment in these days when the world and the people in it move so rapidly is a fine art, and what is apparently the sentiment of today is the unpopular notion of tomorrow. If such an overwhelming sentiment as THE TRIBUNE'S figures disclose exists in Pennsylvania against the Payne bill and Speaker Cannon, it surprises me exceedingly. I think when the echoes of last week's storms have passed we will all be better able to judge of the real sentiment of the people, and when that is determined, act accordingly.

Cannon Vetoes Longworth?

Representative Longworth was denied a place on the new committee on rules, according to the report today, as the result of an objection made by Speaker Cannon. When asked about the matter tonight Mr. Longworth said:

"I have no comment to make on it."

Early in the week Representative Tawney announced that Longworth's name had been placed on the slate which he believed would be adopted by the Republican caucus. Tawney urged that Longworth be given this assignment on the ground that while a regular he was popular with the insurgents. When the slate was submitted to Cannon, it is stated, Cannon drew a line through Longworth's name.

"Uncle Joe" told his lieutenants, it is reported, that Longworth had been pretty free in his criticisms of the speaker and that he would not consent to Longworth's advancement to the committee on rules.

No objection was made to the assignment of Longworth to the committee by members of the Ohio delegation, and Longworth was on the slate agreed upon in advance by the regular leaders.

TAFT WITHDRAWS ACCEPTANCE.

Declines to Attend Dinner of Syracuse Alumni in Order to Avoid Controversy with Day.

Syracuse, N. Y., March 25.—[Special.]—President Taft has withdrawn his acceptance of an invitation to be present and speak next Wednesday evening before the New York City Alumni association of Syracuse university at the annual dinner of the association at the Hotel Brevoort, New York City.

When W. Ward Damon, president of the organization, sent a committee to see the president and arrange for his appearance President Taft verbally announced his withdrawal of the acceptance. The president is reported to have declared that in view of Chancellor James R. Day's recent utterances before the Pittsburg Traffic club, in which the chancellor rapped the administration, he did not feel, he said, as though he cared about entering into a controversy.

Chancellor Day, who will be the guest of honor at the dinner, refused to talk about the Taft incident.

LABOR SENDS PROTEST TO TAFT

Ohio Federation Opposes Proposed Appointment of Alexander L. Smith as Federal Judge.

Cleveland, O., March 25.—The Ohio Federation of Labor, representing 200,000 union men throughout the state, today sent a protest to President Taft against the proposed appointment of Alexander L. Smith of Toledo as federal judge for the Northern district of Ohio. The protest is on the grounds that Mr. Smith is a corporation lawyer and follows a similar communication forwarded by the organized railroad men of the state.

Latest American Coiffure and Its African Origin.

Latest Style in Hairdressing. Where It Originated.

The first of the accompanying pictures shows the up to date mode of hair dressing for American girls. The hats of today demand the style shown. The curious thing is that in appearance this band of hair exactly resembles the artificially deformed head of African girls on the Upper Changy river at Nouvelle Anvers. Fashion, however, demands from them still greater endurance of pains to adapt themselves to the mode. There is no elaborate braiding of the hair for them. The head itself is taken in hand early in life and artificially shaped. It will be seen that the coiffure of the African girl shown in the photograph is identical with the new fashion of hairdressing in vogue in America.

CANADA'S FINAL OFFER READY

Ministers in Washington to Submit Tariff Proposal to Taft.

SIGNIFICANCE IN THE VISIT.

Trade War Is Expected to Be Averted by Concessions.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., March 25.—[Special.]—The final offer of tariff concessions by Canada to the United States will be made to President Taft tomorrow by W. S. Fielding, minister of finance, and George P. Graham, minister of railways, who reached Washington today as the emissaries of the Canadian government.

The dominion ministers, with their families, were the guests of the president at an informal dinner at the White house tonight. The tariff matter was not taken up during the evening. The president will receive the ministers tomorrow at the White house, and the conferences may extend over two or three days.

Outcome of Albany Conference.

The visit of the ministers to Washington is the outcome of the conference held between Mr. Fielding and President Taft at Albany last Sunday.

The president then gave the dominion official a definite idea of what concessions the United States would consider necessary from Canada in order to make the latter country entitled to the minimum rates of the Aldrich tariff law.

While the two Canadians refused tonight to indicate the nature of the proposals they will make, it is understood they come with the authority of the dominion cabinet to offer intermediate tariff rates on a number of American exports which will not come seriously into competition with Canadian producers.

The full significance of the present visit of Canadian cabinet officers to Washington with proposals for a tariff settlement is deeper than the existing situation would indicate. The Canadians have used the present circumstances, it is understood, to renew a proposal for better tariff relations between the two countries, looking toward a reduction of duties by both nations on certain lines of imports.

Canada Has Held Aloof.

Canada has stood aloof from the frequent suggestions of Canadian reciprocity which have come from this side of the line. The latest proposal made by the dominion for a reciprocity treaty was immediately after the Laurier ministry came into power in 1896. Their efforts failed signally then, and the United States followed with the adoption of the Dingley tariff, which boosted tariff rates higher than before.

It is expected here that while the trade war now threatened between the two countries will be averted by the offer of a short list of lower rates by Canada, a tentative agreement will be reached between the president and the Canadian ministers for an attempt in the near future at a reciprocity arrangement between the two countries.

PROMOTION FOR EVANSTON MAN

Arthur Orr Goes from London Embassy Secretaryship to Greece—Another Illinoisan Gets Panama Place.

Washington, D. C., March 25.—[Special.]—Two Illinois men were appointed today to places in the diplomatic service. Richard O. Marsh of Warsaw was nominated for secretary of the legation at Panama.

He passed the diplomatic examination and was recommended for appointment by Senator Cullom and Speaker Cannon. He is a son of Gen B. F. Marsh, who was a member of congress from Illinois.

Arthur Orr of Evanston, who is third secretary of the embassy at London, was nominated for secretary of the legation for Greece and Montenegro. It is a promotion from a $1,200 to a $2,000 salary.

ASKS HEARING FOR ALL BILLS

Bennett Would Give Each Congressman Equal Right.

TAWNEY MOVE SIGNIFICANT.

Raises Question of Democratic Seniority on Rules.

Washington, D. C., March 25.—[Special.]—The first demand made on the new rules committee of the house was that members, no matter how humble in the scheme of things political, be accorded an inalienable right to be heard on the legislation they wish to propose. This petition was presented by Representative Bennett of New York.

The proposition of Bennett is that a rule be adopted providing that any member may have a hearing of at least ten minutes on a bill. If not given a hearing within the stated time the committee will be discharged from consideration and the bill automatically will go upon one of the calendars.

The new rules committee was elected in the house today. The members selected by the Republican and Democratic caucuses were named in a resolution brought in by Mr. Currier of New Hampshire.

When the election came up Chairman Tawney of the house appropriations committee wanted to know how it was that Fitzgerald's name appeared last on the list of the Democratic members of the rules committee selected by last night's caucus. He thought, inasmuch as Fitzgerald had been on the old rules committee, he should rank after Minority Leader Clark.

The action of Tawney in attempting to adjust the seniority of Fitzgerald is regarded significant. The Republican caucus provided in its resolution that the seniority of the majority members on the rules committee should be determined, first, by their service on the old rules committee and, second, by their service in the house. It seemed to be Tawney's idea to attempt to force the Democratic members into a similar procedure.

Then if the next house should be Democratic Champ Clark, in the natural course of events, would be speaker and Mr. Fitzgerald chairman of the rules committee. There are probably few Democrats the Republicans would rather have chairman of the rules committee than Mr. Fitzgerald, who helped the Cannon men win the rules fight last spring.

MARYLAND DEMOCRATS VOTE TO TAKE BALLOT FROM NEGRO.

Legislative Caucus Decides to Ignore Fifteenth Amendment in Regard to State and Municipal Elections.

Annapolis, Md., March 25.—[Special.]—The Democratic representatives in the Maryland legislature decided in caucus today to ignore the fifteenth amendment to the federal constitution by refusing the negroes the righ to register and thereby eliminating them from the voting population. Lawyers explained that, as Maryland had been one of the states, which refused to ratify the fifteenth amendment, it need not be bound by its provisions. Thus Maryland follows the example of South Carolina when it adopted the nullification act.

Following the enactment of this law there will be submitted a constitutional amendment which disfranchises the negro. It is expected to pass. This amendment also repeals the Wilson ballot laws and provides for uniform and fair elections throughout the state.

The act applies only to the state and municipal elections and becomes effective in 1912. At national elections, a different set of books are to be used, negroes being allowed to register.

GLAVIS' COUNSEL TAKES NEW TACK

Demands That Ballinger Be Called as a Witness Against Himself.

CAUSES STIR AT INQUIRY.

Morgan-Guggenheim Agent Tells of Operations of the Syndicate.

Washington, D. C., March 25.—[Special.]—Attorney Brandeis, representing Louis R. Glavis and others, sprang a surprise today at the resumption of the Ballinger-Pinchot inquiry by demanding that Secretary of the Interior Ballinger be called as one of his witnesses.

The lawyer declared at first that he wished to identify by Mr. Ballinger two letters he desired to introduce in evidence. Questioned further by members of the committee, he admitted that he desired to conduct a general examination of the accused cabinet official.

Counsel for Mr. Ballinger objected to this, and called forth from Mr. Brandeis the remark that from his letters he had always supposed the secretary to be ready to appear whenever and as often as any one connected with the inquiry desired.

Members of the committee seemed to think that Mr. Ballinger, as the person most interested in the inquiry, should have opportunity to make his statement first in his own way and not subject himself to a cross examination before being examined in chief. The matter was passed over temporarily, to be decided later in executive session.

Guggenheim Agent on Stand.

The witness stand was occupied during the entire day by Stephen Birch, managing director of the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate in Alaska, who recently made a statement before the senate committee on territories.

Members of the committee showed deep interest in the operations of the Alaska syndicate and they plied the witness with questions from every possible angle.

Much of the questioning was intended to show that the Guggenheims practically control Alaska. Mr. Birch stoutly denied this.

"Well," he was asked by Representative Graham, "if the Guggenheims got control of the coal lands in Alaska, what would there be left?"

Mr. Birch said he did not think this was a fair question to ask him. He admitted the Guggenheims' interests were large, that they had invested some $15,000,000 already and had contracted for the expenditure of other millions. There had been no returns from these investments as yet. But the syndicate "had hopes."

Birch Shows the Option.

As to the Cunningham claims, Mr. Birch produced the option which a committee of the claimants had given to Daniel Guggenheim on July 20, 1907. He declared it had been accepted by the Guggenheims on Dec. 7 of that year. The claimants, however, never had lived up to its terms.

Cunningham, the witness said, in January or February, 1908, had contended that the Guggenheims themselves had voided the option by changing their railroad base from Katalla to Cordova, and that, furthermore, the option was of no effect because a majority of the claimants never had ratified it.

Mr. Brandeis sought to show that the Morgans and Guggenheims with their "great power and influence in this country," must have brought this influencing power to bear during the last two years in an effort to get patents granted to the Cunninghams claimants. The witness declared, however, that he knew of no such efforts having been made.

Brandeis Becomes Dramatic.

"What could we have done?" protested the witness.

"Ah! Mr. Birch, you can answer that far better than I," dramatically exclaimed Mr. Brandeis.

As to his estimate that the coal in Alaska was worth 50 cents a ton, and that therefore the Cunningham claims represented an actual value of $25,000,000, Mr. Birch declared that it was just as sensible to say that the icebergs in Alaska were of inestimable value.

The icebergs, he said, would be valuable if they could be brought to market in this country. So it was with the coal, but first the transportation facilities had to be provided.

It was evident the members of the committee were growing irritable and this irritability extended to the counsel. There were frequent clashes and Lawyers Brandeis and Vertrees apologized at the close of the session for impatient remarks.

Birch Reviews Testimony.

Birch took the stand immediately after the clash over the question of summoning Secretary Ballinger as a witness. He reviewed the testimony he gave recently before a congressional committee regarding the makeup and operations of the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate.

John N. Steele, attorney for the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate, was called upon from time to time by Mr. Brandeis for statements and letters while Birch was on the stand. It was suggested that Steele be sworn. Then Chairman Nelson caused laughter in swearing the witness by pledging him to the truth of "testimony already given and to be given."

Witness Birch said that in none of his conversations with Cunningham was Ballinger's name mentioned or any promise recited as to the action of the commissioner of the land office.

Mr. Brandeis was about to question the witness concerning the report of the expert sent by the Guggenheims to examine the Cunningham claims when Attorney Steele protested against making the document public. He said it was a private matter and had nothing to do with any questions at issue.

Vertrees Claims a Point.

In the Birch testimony that Cunningham stated early in 1908 that he considered the agreement with the Guggenheims null and void, Attorney Vertrees claimed justification this afternoon for the Cunningham affidavits of March and September, 1908, in which he declared the Guggenheims had no direct or indirect interest in the claims.

There has been talk of a possible prosecution for perjury or subornation of perjury in connection with these affidavits, one of which was presented by Mr. Ballinger to Secretary Garfield.

Resuming his testimony at the afternoon session Mr. Birch said he did not know that Mr. Ballinger was commissioner of the land office in 1907.

"Mr. Birch, what is the value of this Cunningham coal property?" asked Attorney Vertrees for Mr. Ballinger.

"At the present time it has no value."

"You mean because the patents have not been issued?"

"I mean that the coal in the ground there at present has no value. There is no transportation and a market has got to be found for it."

"Is it any more problematic than it was when you testified before the senate committee on territories?"

"We were assuming transportation facilities at that time and assuming also a mining cost of $1.75 a ton and a sale price of $2.25 a ton."

"You testified that there were 500,000,000 tons of coal in the Katalla field?"

"Yes, it was estimated by the engineers that the Cunningham group contained 50,000,000 tons and represented about one-tenth the value of the entire field."

Objects to "Press Gallery."

Representative Graham asked Mr. Birch if the testimony he gave before the committee on territories was in general correct, and if it could be considered as sworn testimony in the present proceedings.

"Yes," he replied; "but I don't think I would have said as much as I did if I had realized I was talking to a press gallery."

"But the report of your testimony is a government document."

"I know it, but it has been printed in every paper in the United States. It has been abused."

Mr. Brandeis read to the witness the affidavit made by Cunningham in March, 1908, in which he declared the Guggenheims had no interest in the claims, and that there had been no written agreement with any corporation.

"Did Mr. Cunningham confer with you before making that affidavit?" demanded Attorney Brandeis.

"No, sir."

"When did you first learn of that affidavit?"

"Just now."

The Alaska syndicate, the witness continued, has no interest in any Alaska coal claims other than the interest it "may have" in the Cunningham group.

Witness as a Speculator.

Attorney Brandeis and the witness got into a wordy wrangle as to the latter's proposition to buy an interest in the Hartline group of claims. The attorneys sought to show that Birch was acting for the Guggenheims. The witness asserted he was capable financially of buying the whole Hartline group. He wanted that thoroughly understood. He was willing to take it as a speculation.

TAFT STILL LOYAL TO GOLF; BARS "MOLLYCODDLE" SPORTS

President Gets Ready for Favorite Outing, Displaying No Interest Whatever When Others Play Tennis.

Washington, D. C., March 25.—[Special.]—William Howard Taft, president of these United States, ran through the full list of mollycoddle sports in his presidential mind today and declared them no good. He wants no more of dancing, automobile riding, walking, or verbal fencing with Capt. Archie Butt.

Away to the golf links, said the president today, and half a dozen aids de camp immediately got busy. One rushed down to the tailor and lugged up the presidential golfing breeches. Another hied him out to Chevy Chase to see if the greens were firm and smooth. A third dug up brassies, cleeks, and drivers from the presidential cellar and hastily summoned Col. Bogie for a conference with the chief.

The president is determined to golf. Yesterday he gave up the key to the tennis court, which he has been carrying all winter, and let Beekman Winthrop, assistant secretary of the navy, and Jules Jusserand, ambassador of France, into the presidential lot, where they chased the elusive tennis ball for two hours right under the presidential window.

The president can't stand it any longer. His distinguished predecessor is working his way back home playing tennis with Egyptian potentates and getting in trim for athletic events as soon as he lands on home soil. Why should the president of the nation be tied down to or by the tariff, insurgents, postal banks, or battleship programs?

To Chevy Chase he will go tomorrow, if the weather is fair. Or on Monday, if business lets up. Or some day in the near future, anyway.

ETNA FIRES RAGE FROM 15 CRATERS

Lava Gushes, White and Black Smoke Hisses, and "Bombs" Explode.

LAY ESCAPE TO MIRACLE.

Deadly Stream Suddenly Changes Course and Thereby Two Towns Are Saved.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

CATANIA, Sicily, March 25.—From the top of the old crater of Mount Etna volumes of white smoke are issuing tonight, while from new craters that have formed lava is gushing and incandescent masses are exploding with detonations and emissions of black smoke.

The crater at Volta San Girolamo is still the most active of any of the openings. Besides continually emitting lava it is discharging "bombs," which are hurled high in the air, exploding with loud reports resembling a heavy bombardment.

Openings from which lava is issuing number fourteen. The heat from the current is so intense that it is impossible to approach nearer than 150 feet to them. The progress of the lava down the mountain side averages fifteen feet every seven minutes.

From Catania and along the railway surrounding Etna thousands of persons are watching the volcano, following with telescopes the progress of the eruption.

Official Reports on Eruption.

Frank A. Perret of Brooklyn, N. Y., who is attached to the royal observatory on Mount Vesuvius, today proceeded to the scene of the eruption.

Mr. Perret arrived at Nicolosi this evening and sent the following telegram to Catania:

"The eruption continues with unabated violence. The craters constantly are throwing out liquid fire and rock to a height of twenty meters. It is a magnificent, though terrifying spectacle.

"The lava has flowed about seven miles in two days. The stream is advancing, destroying vineyards and houses.

"Enormous damage to property has been done. The Alpine club's refuge has been destroyed. The lava will reach and partly destroy Borrello and Belpasso within three days if present conditions continue. Nicolosi is not in danger.

"There is now little smoke from the eruption. The central crater is inactive, but there are prolonged rumblings within it. The explosions from the side craters are terrifying.

"The eruption is a sequel to the outbreak in 1908. The entire path of the ascent of the volcano is covered with burning lava. It is 600 meters broad. The final result of the eruption cannot be predicted, all depending upon the duration of the phenomenon. The latest observations show a slight reduction in the intensity of the eruption.

"PERRET."

Villages Escape Destruction.

The streams of lava have surpassed in volume those of the eruption of 1892, but changing their courses as they reached Belpasso and Nicolosi, they have invaded the main roads near these villages, which seem thereby to have escaped destruction.

A lava stream, advancing toward Borelli, had reached within two miles of the town when it suddenly changed its direction and flowed around the hill of San Leo. It is causing immense damage. It obliterated five farms.

The inhabitants of Borelli ascribe their deliverance to intervention by the images of the town's patron saint, which were scattered over the fields and placed in the lava's path. A sudden change in the direction of the stream occurred in the same locality where the eruption of 1822 stopped near a rustic shrine consisting of three altars, on which images of the Madonna and saints are painted. The coincidence is considered miraculous.

Prof. Ricco, director of the Mount Etna observatory, despite a narrow escape from death today, has returned to the lava fields. To those who advised prudence, he replied:

"My post is now there."

Ricco was examining eruptive vents and became so absorbed in his investigation that he got too close to one of the openings and was caught in a whirlpool of lappili and ashes. He escaped with difficulty.

Fears Worse Eruption than 1908.

Sig. Mercalli, the Neapolitan volcanist, believes the outbreak is a normal recurrence of the eruption of 1908, and that it will be of short duration. Prof. Ricco thinks it will be more serious than that of 1908.

Thousands abandoned their homes at daylight. The roaring of Mount Etna continued without interruption all day, and a rain of cinders fell for miles around.

King Victor Emmanuel today expressed his intention to go into the affected territory to direct the work of succor and encourage and share the danger of his subjects if the gravity of the eruptions continued.

Nicolosi is packed with tourists, mainly British and American. Lines of soldiers are employed keeping the tourists back from places of danger. The attitude of the visitors contrasts strangely with that of the inhabitants, whose terror is heartrending. Their prayers for protection are interspersed with curses against the lava, while the sightseers are filled with admiration of the mighty display of the forces of nature.

SAYS "DON'T TIP THE ASHMAN."

District Street Superintendent Declares It Spoils the Drivers for Doing Good Work.

"Don't tip the driver of an ash wagon if you expect good results," was an assertion made last night by M. McGrath, district street superintendent of the Fifth ward street cleaning department, in a talk on his work before the Hamburg Improvement association at 3714 Halsted street.

"It is the driver's business to take up the ashes. Every time you tip him you not only make it necessary to repeat the operation but spoil him for doing good work for your neighbors.

"Get ash cans and keep them inside the yards. Don't throw paper into the alleys. If you cannot find a place to burn it tie the paper so it won't blow away."

ASK AMERICA TO AID LIBERIA

Members of Commission See Britain and France as Perils.

WOULD PAY NATION'S DEBT.

Settlement of Boundary Disputes Also Urged in Congress.

Washington, D. C., March 25.—Pressed upon one side by France and beset by Great Britain on the other, Liberia is between two millstones which threaten to grind it off the map unless the nation has the support of some power commensurate in strength with Great Britain and France.

That is one of the principal conclusions expressed in the report of the American commission to Liberia, which was transmitted to congress today by President Taft with a special message.

Suggestions Made for Aid.

After reviewing the internal dangers which threaten Liberia, as well as those from the outside, the commission has made the following recommendations:

(1) That the United States extend its aid to Liberia in the prompt settlement of its boundary disputes.

(2) That the United States enable Liberia to refund its debt by assuming as a guarantee for the payment of obligations under such an arrangement, the control and collection of Liberian customs.

(3) That the United States lend its assistance to the reform of the internal finances.

(4) That this nation aid in organising and drilling a competent constabulary or frontier police.

(5) That the United States establish and maintain a research station there.

(6) That the United States reopen the question of establishing a coaling station in Liberia.

Praise Given to Government.

The government of the republic is commended by the commission. The Liberians have advanced in their civilization, and the native element has not had a retrograde influence.

Attention is called to the fact that the Liberians never have resorted to revolution, and the nation is not bankrupt.

The reform program adopted upon the advice of Great Britain is condemned and the causes are described in the report as "the bungling of British officials in 1909," which resulted in a frontier police officered by British.

GIVING THE LAST SACRAMENT COSTS THE LIFE OF A PRIEST.

Indiana Clergyman Dies of Blood Poisoning Contracted While Ministering to a Dying Parishioner.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 25.—[Special.]—Inoculated with a disease of the blood while administering the last sacrament to a dying parishioner, the Rev. Father John H. Boersig, for seven years pastor of St. Mary's church, Madison, Ind., died suddenly last night at the home of his brother, George Boersig, 1703 Howard street, Indianapolis.

The priest had come to Indianapolis on a mission connected with his parish duties. He was seized with a violent attack of the disease from which he had been suffering.

The disease was contracted from the inoculation of one of his fingers which touched a dying parishioner's lips.

There was a slight flesh wound on the priest's finger and through it his blood became tainted.

Within a short time the priest began showing symptoms of the poisoning and since that time rapidly declined in health.

Father Boersig became seriously ill last summer and left his pastorate to take treatment at Rome City. His health showed little improvement.

The priest came to Indianapolis Wednesday night, intending to obtain holy oils for his parish from St. Patrick's church, where all the oils used in the diocese were blessed Thursday morning. He was preparing to start for the church when he was stricken.

A delegation of parishioners came to Indianapolis from Madison today and returned with the priest's body. The funeral will be held next Wednesday morning.

Father Boersig is the third priest in the Indianapolis diocese who has died within the last week.

CUPID BUSY ON WINTER TRIP.

Couple Meets in Los Angeles and Wed in Chicago on Way Home to Ohio.

A winter trip to California furnished the background of a romance that ended last night in a wedding at the La Salle hotel. Miss Nanette L. Caruthers of Akron and R. C. Auld of Wadsworth, O., were the bride and groom. They met for the first time at a reception in Los Angeles. They planned to get married after their return to Ohio, but decided after arriving here that they would surprise their friends. The Rev. C. A. Kelly, pastor of the First Episcopal church, performed the ceremony.

DENEEN GETS JUNGLE HORNS.

Governor Receives Three Specimens from Africa, but Is in Doubt as to Donor.

Springfield, Ill., March 25.—[Special.]—Gov. Deneen is in receipt of three pairs of horns from the African jungles. The box containing the ornaments arrived this afternoon and the executive is unable to determine whether he was remembered by Col. Roosevelt or whether the horns were sent by some unidentified friend who is touring in Africa. The horns are believed to be from the head of an ibex.

NEWS PURELY PERSONAL.

MRS. ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON, widow of the novelist, is ill in the City of Mexico, due, it is believed, to the high altitude. She arrived there Monday from Santa Barbara, Cal.

SECRETARY NAGEL of the department of commerce and labor has left Washington for St. Louis, where he will deliver an address tonight before the Commercial club of that city on trade extension.

SENATOR DANIEL, who is ill in Florida, continues to improve and physicians believe it will be possible to remove him to his Virginia home within the next two weeks.

CAMEL TRIP TO SAKARA.

sador to Turkey and Mrs. Straus, Consul General Iddings, Miss Iddings, and a number of correspondents.

Then the party went to the temples and tomb of Thy, a plebeian who lived in the fifth dynasty, but was so esteemed that he was permitted to marry a princess. Their offspring became princes.

It was such a short distance that Col. Roosevelt declined to remount his camel saying he preferred to walk and he made the Egyptologist and Maj. Watson scramble to keep up in the yielding sand.

This temple presents probably the best record in Egypt of early art, showing the various occupations, dress, etc., of the inhabitants of the period.

Col. Roosevelt pointed out animals he saw in equatorial Africa depicted on the walls which now are extinct in northern Africa.

"I don't know what benefit an American politician would receive from this sightseeing," he observed, "but I know it gives me a great deal of enjoyment."

Proves Ancients Ate Hyenas.

Attention was called to pictured figures stuffing geese and swans.

"That is not all," said the Egyptologist. "The early Egyptians stuffed hyenas for food."

Col. Roosevelt immediately became interested.

"Did they eat hyenas?" he asked, and then was taken to the wall where the proof was pictured.

"How astonishing," he commented.

Leaving the temple the party stopped for a moment for a refreshing draught of water at the residence of the Egyptologist. Then they started for the Nile, nine miles away, passing over the edge of the desert into a grove of date trees, the crowns of which gently waved in the breeze.

The fields were green with color and herds were grazing peacefully.

"It is a real pastoral scene," observed Col. Roosevelt.

Arriving at a canal nearest the Nile the party was ferried across on a felucca and then on foot continued to the river.

Luncheon on a Houseboat.

Then a launch was boarded, which conveyed the party to a dehabeah, or Nile houseboat, over which an American flag was flying. Here they were welcomed by Wyssa Bey, an Egyptian Copt, whose wife was educated in the American mission schools. The husband had been in America.

The deck was protected by an awning of oriental stuffs, with the American flag waving in the breeze at the entrance.

While a course luncheon was served the dahabeah was towed down the Nile to Cairo, where the party landed.

Mrs. and Miss Roosevelt returned to the Mena hotel and the colonel and Kermit went to the zoölogical gardens, where they were deeply interested in the African animals.

They were conducted through the zoo by Capt. Flower, the director, who is a great authority on faunal collections, and Sir William Garstin.

Tonight the Roosevelt family dined with Sir Eldon Gorst, the British diplomatic agent, meeting a number of distinguished guests.

Wu Ting-fang Is on Hand.

Wu Ting-fang, who has arrived here on his way home to China, is looking forward to a meeting with the great American hunter and naturalist.

Three hundred Americans have signed a petition to Col. Roosevelt, asking a reception tomorrow.

The colonel said he regretted that Seth Bullock could not meet him in London. He declared he would have liked to present Bullock to his English friends as a type of the western American.

Mrs. Straus was presented to the khedive today. Tomorrow the khedivah will give a luncheon in honor of Col. Roosevelt. Ambassador Straus will be one of the guests. Afterward Col. Roosevelt will visit the Azbar university, and in the evening will attend a dinner given by Mr. Iddings.

In the morning Col. Roosevelt and Gen. Sir John Maxwell, commanding the British forces in Egypt, will play a golf match.

Papers Continue Attacks.

The Nationalist newspapers continue to attack the former president for interfering with Egyptian politics in his speeches, but so far from detracting from his popularity the attacks seem to increase the keen interest felt in all his movements.

Strict members of the Christian sects who observe Good Friday as a holiday are scandalized that the Roosevelts should have spent today in sightseeing.

The visit to Cairo of Ambassador Straus is declared without political bearing. He came merely as a personal friend of Col. Roosevelt, in whose cabinet he served as secretary of commerce and labor. He will return to Constantinople next Wednesday.

BERLIN UPSET BY PLANS.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

BERLIN, March 25.—There is much surprised comment here on the kaiser inviting Col. Roosevelt to stay at the castle when he reaches Berlin. This is a distinction which, it is said, never before has been bestowed on an unofficial person except Count Zeppelin, the German aviator.

It is stated the kaiser invited Col. Roosevelt without consulting Ambassador Hill, who was astonished to find his guest thus appropriated by the emperor.

Dr. Hill, of course, does not talk on the subject, but the story goes that the information was conveyed to him through the ministry of foreign affairs in a manner indicating that the colonel had accepted. On the other hand reports are current that the ex-president has engaged rooms at the Hotel Adlon and it is declared doubtful whether he will accept the kaiser's invitation, as its acceptance would deprive his visit of its private character.

The emperor is criticised in some quarters as kowtowing to America. There is some speculation as to how the incident will affect the Roosevelts' visit to London, it being contended that King Edward can hardly do otherwise than follow the kaiser's example.

AID OF PRESIDENT MADRIZ SEIZES AMERICAN VESSELS.

Warship Paducah Has Been Sent to Investigate Act of Espinosa—Kimball Refuses to Act.

BLUEFIELDS, Nicaragua, by wireless to Colon, March 25.—The auxiliary schooners Lark and Esfuerzo, the property of American merchants, have been seized by an armed party under the leadership of Enrique Espinosa, a brother of the former Zelayan representative at Washington, in the name of the constitutional government. The vessels were engaged in coastwise trade.

The American warship Paducah, at the suggestion of Mr. Moffatt, the American consul, proceeded to Greytown to investigate the seizure. Rear Admiral Kimball notified the commander of the Paducah that it was impossible for him to demand the surrender of the seized vessels, owing to the fact that they are under a Nicaraguan register.

The Americans are inquiring if the United States will not protect their interests, as no government is established here from which they can seek protection.

It is believed that Espinosa will offer the seized schooners to President Madriz to assist in the transportation of troops from San Juan. The situation is approaching a climax.

NOTES FROM FOREIGN LANDS.

BERLIN.—In order to show his appreciation of the American art exhibition, which he visited yesterday, Emperor William has loaned one of his own American pictures, H. F. Farny's "The Bear Hunt," which was hung in the galleries at the Royal Academy of Arts.

HARBIN, Manchuria.—Inchan Angan, the Corean who assassinated Prince Ito, former Japanese resident general of Corea, in this city on Oct. 26 last, has been executed at Port Arthur.

ST. PETERSBURG.—Alexander J. Guchkoff has assumed the presidency of the duma and delivered an important speech. In reply to the attacks on the constitution and outlining a program of legislation he drew the same sharp distinction between constitutionalism and parliamentarism that Premier Stolypin has emphasized.

SCARCITY OF FOOD STOPS POLE DASH

Shackleton Says He Was Compelled to Turn Back in Antarctic Trip.

EXPECTS SCOTT TO WIN.

British Explorer Is Confident That Peary Succeeded in the North.

New York, March 25.—[Special.]—Lieut. Sir Ernest Henry Shackleton, the British explorer who got within 111 miles of the south pole a year ago in January, and who recently was knighted for his work in the antarctic regions, arrived from Europe today, and, with Lady Shackleton, went to Washington. There he will be presented to President Taft tomorrow by the British ambassador, and receive from him the medal voted by the National Geographical society. There will be some meetings with American explorers, and then Sir Ernest will bustle back here tomorrow, and get ready for a strenuous lecture tour that will occupy three months.

Sir Ernest would not talk about Dr. Cook. He said he believed Peary had reached the north pole, and thought Capt. Robert F. Scott, who commanded the British national antarctic expedition of 1900-'04, and who will start out this summer on another south polar quest, would have no difficulty in reaching his goal.

"All that stopped us from getting there," said Sir Ernest, "was the lack of fifty pounds of food. With that we could have kept on. There were only four of us, but we were on a reduced food allowance from Nov. 14 to Feb. 2. In the desperate effort to make our supply last we came down to a ration of sixteen ounces a day. This was too little to keep the heat going in our bodies, and we had to advance the allowance to twenty ounces. Even this was too little.

Forced to Abandon Supplies.

"I had cut down the provisions and stores to the minimum. We started out with tinned jam and sardines and an English pudding for Christmas day, and then had to cache them at our first depot. We did not eat the Christmas pudding until on the way back, when we had our first square meal in more than three months. We had been hungry continuously all the time.

"You see, it had been generally believed that traveling to the pole would be much on the level all the way, but the climb that carried us to the top of the plateau was hard, and it diminished our food supply vigorously. When we reached the last stage of our journey inland we were on a plateau like that of Thibet, 10,000 feet above the level of the sea. We had thought we would be able to skirt the mountains that border the land and reach southward that way, but this proved impossible.

"There was no single item of equipment that was omitted. We made a mistake with our ponies, however, that could hardly have been foreseen. They were blown off in a blizzard and started to eat the salt sand. The result was they soon were filled up with this and we had to shoot four of them."

Dogs Failure in Antarctics.

Sir Ernest Shackleton looks younger than his age, which his biographer puts down as 40. He is tall and smooth shaven, more like an American than an Englishman.

"Dogs are failures in the antarctics," the explorer said, in answer to a question. "This is on account of the drift. Were I to make another expedition I would change absolutely nothing over the last time except that I would get a stronger vessel. The Nimrod was forty-three years old. I have no feeling over the possible discovery of the pole by Capt. Scott. The trail left by every pioneer is the path for the next. It is by going farther than the last man that the explorer makes a record.

"I should not think of going down there in search of the pole while Capt. Scott is looking for it. He asked me if I were going. His previous work certainly helped me a lot, and I will be glad if mine be of use to him. I may go down in that direction next year on a scientific expedition to chart the coast line, and so on, but unless Capt. Scott reports he failed to find the pole, which I think unlikely, I shall not try for it again.

"Anything alive? Well, the only thing I discovered was the colomba. That, in plain English, is the snow flea. He doesn't bite. Do I believe it possible to reach the south pole in an airship? Well, there would have to be a lot of experimenting first."

PAVING ROW HALTS PERKINS HEARING

Session Adjourned in Middle of Heated Argument Over the Graham School.

DEFENDS LANE BUILDING

Architect Says That He Urged Cheaper Plans, but Was Overruled.

In a session replete with passages at arms between President Alfred R. Urion and Dwight H. Perkins, suspended architect for the Chicago board of education, and which was adjourned abruptly in the afternoon in the midst of a general acrimonious debate, Mr. Perkins yesterday resumed his defense.

The session ended with several members on their feet, including President Urion, Mr. Perkins, and Attorney Frederick Gansberger, his attorney, in the middle of a controversy on the question of school yard paving of the Graham school.

The clash was precipitated by the calling of R. T. Fox, head of the Contracting Westrumite company, which paved the school yard, as a witness for Mr. Perkins. President Urion had charged that nearly $5,000 had been expended by the architect in paving the yard and that it is unfit for use.

The architect's answer was that the committee on buildings and grounds authorized the work as an experiment, that it was not successful, but that Mr. Fox had agreed to repave and put the yard in perfect condition.

President Urion did not take part in the afternoon session until late. He came in walking nervously, while Mr. Fox was testifying, took his station at the head of the table, and broke into the cross examination.

Says Paving Was an Experiment.

"We were asked to bid on paving the Graham yard," said Mr. Fox. "I was told by Mr. Perkins that the work was in the nature of an experiment with pavements and that we would have to bid under 85 cents a square yard. We offered a bid of $4,510, got the contract, and really expended $5,380.

"The foundation is good, but the top crowning was too hard. We changed the composition and since then have paved the Otis, Jahn, and Stewart school yards, and the paving now is satisfactory. As a matter of business policy, I have arranged with Mr. Perkins to resurface the Graham school yard free of cost this spring."

"Were you asked to guarantee your work," Mr. Urion demanded.

"No, we had a contract, but there was no guarantee," replied Mr. Fox. "We were told that the work was in the nature of an experiment."

"And do you mean to say that the experiment was conducted at the expense of the board of education and the people of Chicago?" asked the president.

Session Comes to Sudden End.

"Well, considering that it cost us $800, I think it was also at our expense," retorted Mr. Fox. "Now I have offered to re-do the work as business policy, not because we are obligated to do so."

"Bah! I won't talk to you," interjected the president. "Facts are facts, and I object to any harangue.

"I think we ought to see that contract I've got it in my papers and I'll get it."

As Mr. Urion left the committee room he talked with evidence of illness. Dr. McFatrich held a whispered colloquy with Chairman Blackwood, the result of which was decision to adjourn until next Monday.

Mr. Perkins occupied the early part of the afternoon in defending the construction of the Lane technical high school.

"The Lane school is built over a slough, an old prehistoric river bed," declared Mr. Perkins. "The big engine plant is constructed among the foundations, and the large columns in the assembly hall are necessary to sustain the building.

"I never intended the assembly hall for use as a small theater, because it couldn't be built that way according to city ordinances. It was simply intended to be used for smaller audiences and for class purposes. As it stands a single speaker at the center of the stage can be seen from every point in the room.

Says He Urged Cheaper Plans.

"The cost of the building was $470,000. When I was ordered to draw plans for the building—and it was decided on by the board of education before I became school architect—my estimates exceeded the appropriation. I recommended that the plans be redrawn on a cheaper scale. The board overruled my recommendation and decided to ask the city council for an additional appropriation. The foundations are built on heavy piling sunk down through the shifting soil and crowned with cement.

"That feature cost $30,000 and it was put down not upon my unsupported responsibility but on the advice of a number of competent engineers who worked on the plans."

"Well, I doubt whether such foundations were necessary," declared Joseph Downey. "And, what is more, I think you could have adopted a truss structure and eliminated those great columns."

"The foundations were absolutely necessary to sustain the great weight of the building and its equipment," replied the architect. "To eliminate those columns would have cost at least $10,000 more, and there were other difficulties to prevent truss construction which would have made the cost even higher—and I was trying to build economically. Principal Bogan, Supervisor R. M. Smith, and Supt. Cooley signed the plans."

Calls Dome Roofs Cheaper.

"I think they showed their ignorance there," observed Mr. Downey.

"Well, they show their satisfaction," retorted Mr. Perkins. "They also show I made no attempt to dominate them."

In defending the construction of dome covered assembly halls, which Mr. Urion had declared extravagant in cost and comparable to the "golden dome of the capitol," Mr. Perkins surprised the committee by declaring that such roofs really are cheaper than flat roofs.

"These copper covered, iron bracketed dome roofs, do they not represent much more expensive construction than a flat roof?" asked Dr. McFatrich.

"As to the use of copper, I refer that to Mr. Downey," returned Mr. Perkins. "Isn't it the best material known?"

"It is," replied Mr. Downey.

"And as to the dome supported on iron brackets, the principle of the arch gives the cheapest practicable roof construction. Flat roofs require much heavier girders and greater expense."

Defends Charges of Extravagance.

"Do you mean to say that the dome is actually cheaper than a flat roof?" demanded Dr. McFatrich.

"I most certainly do," was the emphatic reply.

In defense of the charge of extravagance in office maintenance, Mr. Perkins presented tables showing that during his tenure of office since June, 1905, the board has wasted $80,000 in drawing plans for $2,630,000 worth of work which was abandoned later.

RUSH PACIFIC; WIFE ANGRY

Lawyer Declares There Is No Agreement on Divorce.

SPOUSE MAKES A DENIAL.

Also Refuses to Admit or Disclaim $60,000 Debt.

G. Fred Rush, the attorney, whose domestic difficulties were related in THE TRIBUNE of yesterday, issued during the day a statement pacific in tone. Its effect, when read to the wife, however, was to fill her with wrath at its author.

In her indignation Mrs. Rush practically admitted that rumors of a $60,000 debt in dispute between husband and wife played an important part in the case.

Thus wrote Mr. Rush for publication:

"While it is true that Mrs. Rush has left, there is no agreement about a divorce nor about the child, nor did Mrs. Rush ever own the apartment building or my home mentioned in THE TRIBUNE as having been given to me by her. Mrs. Rush knows the facts and never could have made such a statement. My boy is home with me and will remain there."

Wife Denies His Assertions.

"That is false," said Mrs. Rush. "I have not made any statement, but I could. There has been an agreement as to property rights—my property rights. As to my son, he is with his father now, so that he can continue at the public school on Fifty-seventh street, but he is to come to me for the long vacation."

Mr. Rush's statement continues:

"I have always hoped Mrs. Rush would return to her home, and that there might be no publicity about the separation. If her absence continues for two years it will furnish me grounds for a suit for divorce. That is the only ground that can possibly figure in this unfortunate affair."

To these allegations Mrs. Rush dissents.

Rush Refrains from Criticism.

"I have no criticism to make of Mrs. Rush," is the conclusion of the husband's statement. "We have lived twelve years of almost perfect life. There is nothing on either side that justifies a separation in any sense of the word, unless it be the act of desertion by Mrs. Rush, and possibly the fact that our views of life and tastes have grown to differ.

"I am willing to believe that my outspoken views have occasionally offended her. Her conduct toward me has always been about as near perfect as human conduct can be, with the exception of this absence, which, I feel, is without anything like sufficient cause. I deny also that any word or act of mine caused her a moment's illness. Relations pleasant from first to last."

And Mrs. Rush in reply to this said something that sounded like the exclamation, "Gallery play."

Mrs. Rush was asked about the $60,000 debt for which she is said to have signed an agreement not to sue her husband. She said that her lawyer had told her not to discuss it.

Bankrupt and Creditors Agree.

Creditors of John Dickinson, bankrupt broker, will receive 15 cents on the dollar as the result of a settlement agreed on yesterday. His assets originally amounted to almost $60,000. It is said, but the prolonged bankruptcy proceedings and receivership cut this down to $40,000, which will now be divided among about 250 creditors.

HOLLAND CLEARED IN JURY INQUIRY

Judge Barnes Declares State's Attorney Has Failed in His Proof.

WAYMAN USES THE LASH.

Says He Will Appeal to Bar and, Failing There, to the People.

Two significant statements yesterday marked the conclusion of the hearing of the committee of judges which has been probing the jury commissioners' office scandal charges brought by State's Attorney Wayman.

The first came from the state's attorney, who, in the peroration of his three hours' argument, said that, if need be, he would appeal from the committee of judges to the Cook county bar as a whole to revolutionize the practices in the jury commissioners' office. Failing there, he asserted, he would carry the matter to the public for relief.

Judge Barnes made the other important statement when, speaking as the voice of the committee, he said that Jury Commissioner John J. Holland had not been involved in any irregularities, as judged by the testimony heard, and in giving him a clean bill of health created a decided impression that Mr. Holland would be reinstated.

Judges and Wayman in Clash.

Except for five minutes' argument by Attorneys E. A. Brown and Robert McMurdy, counsel for the commissioners, the argument of the state's attorney occupied all of the time of both sessions.

At times the verbal clashes between judges and state's attorney bore more the resemblance to disputes between opposing counsel than to an interchange of remarks between court and lawyer.

It was evident shortly after the prosecutor began his argument that the judges were not in sympathy with the vigorous arraignment of the jury commissioners' office which Mr. Wayman made, and he was interrupted to explain the reasons for the lashings he gave the commissioners and their methods.

"I am against this jury law," said Mr. Wayman. "I am so convinced of its abuses that my appeal to this committee of judges failing, I shall appeal to the entire bench of Cook county, and, failing there, I shall make appeal to the people."

"There's one appeal I will join you in," Judge Barnes said, "that's an appeal to the state legislature."

"I am with you on that," Mr. Wayman answered.

Again Denounces the System.

The state's attorney asserted that under the law there were only two places for jurors' names and they were the jury list and the jury box.

"Instead of that we find," he said, "the cards scattered from Chief Clerk Mason's desk to the vault. Some were thrown into a trunk in the office. The cards bearing the names of grand jurors who were excused were put in Mason's desk, as he says, to be taken out and put in the box as he saw fit to place them. In the hands of Mr. Mason, assuming his intent to be good, rested the grand juries of Cook county, according to the system in vogue.

"Then there is the annual purging of the jury box, which is in direct violation of the law. During this purging, which lasts several weeks, there is nothing to prevent any clerk in the office from putting as many cards as he desires into the jury box."

"What is there in the law to prevent the drawing out of all the cards today?" asked Judge Barnes.

Holland Vindicated by Judges.

"That would be in direct opposition to the intent of the law," replied the state's attorney. "The law makes it mandatory as to what shall be done with the names of jurors, and it doesn't mean that anything else shall be done with these cards. If that is not the construction of the law, then I vote aye to have a match touched to the whole thing, for we have no such thing as a jury system in Cook county."

The vindication of Holland by the committee came after Charles E. Erbstein, counsel for Holland, said that he should like to make an hour's argument in behalf of his client.

"I presume, Mr. Erbstein," Judge Barnes said, "that you desire expressly to argue concerning the Criminal court case in which Mr. Holland was acquitted of the charges made against him. The committee has the transcript of all the evidence taken in the case and as far as the other testimony taken here is concerned, there have been no facts presented against Mr. Holland. I do not believe it is necessary for you to make any further argument."

With a smile Attorney Erbstein, after Judge Barnes' remarks, answered that he was perfectly satisfied to dispense with his argument.

Wayman Told Proof Fails.

Judge Brown in a statement that occupied only a few minutes declared that the state's attorney had proved nothing that he started out to show and said that the report of the committee of judges should contain its opinion of the men who occupied the office of jury commissioners and the services which they had given to the public.

"The charges of fraud, corruption, negligence and carelessness in the office have been found so utterly baseless at the hearing that I do not want to waste the time of the committee on them."

Attorney McMurdy followed with a short talk in which he urged the reinstatement of Mr. Holland.

"We had made up our minds," he said, "not to dignify the charges made here with a reply. They have fallen flatly, but there is one suggestion I should like to make. For six months Commissioner Amberg and McLane have had to conduct this office by themselves. As soon as the committee can do so, we would like to see them take up the matter of putting back the third commissioner. Mr. Holland has been acquitted of the charges made against him."

Judge Barnes said after the hearing that the committee's report would be made as soon as possible and the bar probably would take early action on the proposal to reinstate Holland.

H. G. COLE'S WIFE IS SUED

Alienation Charged by Timber Broker's Former Spouse.

ASKS $250,000 DAMAGES.

Action Against Former Mrs. Jarvis Hunt Filed in Kansas City.

Details of the escapade of Howard G. Cole, timber land broker, and "the woman with the little pink silk gown," may be revealed as the result of a $250,000 alienation of affections suit Mrs. Hattie Dunwody Cole filed against Mrs. Louise Cole at Kansas City yesterday.

The suit was filed by a representative of George T. Kelly, the plaintiff's Chicago counsel, after a half dozen ineffectual attempts at settlement. Neither Mrs. Hattie Cole nor her lawyer would discuss the case last night. Her plans were learned through one of her friends. The plaintiff believes herself to have been wronged and purposes to get redress.

In her petition Mrs. Hattie Cole asserts that Mrs. Louise Hunt Cole, immediately after her divorce from Jarvis Hunt, showered her attentions upon Cole with such persistency that the complainant was compelled to seek divorce.

Has a Fortune of $900,000.

Mrs. Louise Cole has a fortune of $900,000 which she inherited from her grandfather. Upon receiving the legacy she executed an irrevocable trust, whereby she should enjoy only the interest on the fund, while the principal at her death should pass to her children, Jarvis Hunt Jr. and Louise Hunt. The children were awarded to Mrs. Hunt when she gained a divorce from the architect last October, but she subsequently released them to her former husband when she heard the story which Mrs. Hattie Cole told after Cole and the architect's divorced wife were married in Jacksonville, Fla., early in January.

Mrs. Hattie Cole gained her divorce in December on statutory charges, and Judge Dupuy enjoined Cole from remarrying within two years from that date. In less than a month Cole and the architect's divorced wife eloped. Thereupon the timber broker's first wife threatened to bring the present suit unless a settlement of $100,000 was made upon her.

Gets Lump Sum and Alimony.

Mrs. Hattie Cole is the mother of two of the broker's children and besides these is rearing two from Cole's first wife, a sister of the second wife. When Mrs. Hattie Cole divorced the broker she accepted a $50,000 settlement, $7,200 a year alimony, and promised to keep the name of the woman involved a secret. She received the second installment of alimony, $1,800, on March 10.

Cole and his new wife resided in Jacksonville until late in February, when they took up their residence in Kansas City. He moved his main office there from Chicago. Later they went to Pensaloca, Fla., for a visit and are there at present. The first wife and her children are stopping at the Vincennes hotel.

"I have promised my attorney to keep silent and I intend to obey. Good-night." That was all the complainant would say last night.

May Not Come to Trial.

Friends of the new wife say there is no chance for the first wife to collect a judgment even if she is awarded one. It is their belief the case will not get that far. Cole has appeared to be little concerned over the threatened suit, and his Chicago lawyer has asserted that the former wife would get nothing beyond what Judge Dupuy allowed her. The former wife's friends say Cole has sought a settlement.

If the suit comes to a hearing the testimony is expected to be sensational.

MISS GAYNOR BREAKS TROTH.

Engagement of New York Mayor's Daughter to A. S. Wetherell Is Ended.

New York, March 25.—[Special.]—It was learned tonight that the engagement of Miss Gertrude Emily Gaynor, eldest daughter of Mayor Gaynor, and Alexander Stewart Wetherel has been broken. Friends of the young persons have been quietly apprised of the fact.

Wetherel is a wealthy broker of this city and connected with famous old families of New York.

The breaking of the engagement caused surprise, as the betrothal came in no way as the culmination of a hasty courtship. The attachment began in school days.

From the mayor's family circle no statement was forthcoming tonight, but a member of Wetherel's family stated that the reason for breaking off the engagement was commonplace. The young persons discovered in time that their temperaments were incompatible.

Doctor Is Hurt by a Fall.

Dr. Edward Flynn, 44 years old, 1418 La Salle avenue, suffered a fracture of his right kneecap last night when he fell to the pavement in an alley off Monroe street between State and Dearborn. He was taken to the Henrotin Memorial hospital.

25 TAKEN IN RAID AT 'JIM' O'LEARY'S

Gambling Outfits Found at Saloon Where Police Said There Was No Betting.

RACING SHEETS THERE.

Detectives Break Through Door and Rout Forty Men; Proprietor Away at Time.

James O'Leary's gambling hall over his saloon at 4183 South Halsted street, was raided yesterday afternoon and twenty-five men arrested. O'Leary was out at the time and was not taken.

The police at the stockyards station have for a long time insisted that there was no longer any gambling at O'Leary's, but this was looked upon as a joke. O'Leary has three times been the victim of bomb explosions in the gamblers' war, each time the bomb being exploded either in front or in the rear of his saloon.

The third bomb in the long series was at O'Leary's place, and was exploded on Aug. 12, 1907. The two others of which he was the victim were set off on Oct. 18 and Nov. 20, 1909.

Yesterday's raid was made at 3 o'clock and was unexpected, because of O'Leary's previous immunity from police interference. Assistant Chief of Police Schuettler was notified by telephone that race bets were being taken in the rooms over the saloon, and he sent three men to make the raid. A patrol wagon was taken from the Harrison street station, and after the arrests had been made a second wagon was called from the stockyards station.

Officers Go in Unrecognized.

Detectives Mills, O'Donnell, and Koehler were in charge. The first patrol wagon was left two blocks from the saloon and the officers entered the place without arousing suspicion. They walked upstairs without interference until they met the "lookout." He tried to hold them back until he could warn the men, but was arrested for his pains.

The detectives kicked a door open and walked into the hall over the saloon. There were about forty men in the place. Racing sheets and telephones indicated that returns were being received from the horse races. The officers said that poker and other card games were in progress.

When the patrons of the place became aware that the intruders were detectives a scramble to get out was made. Some of the men rushed to the windows and by means of the fire escape, while others ran down a rear flight of stairs. Twenty-five of them, however, were rounded up and loaded into the patrol wagons. The detectives had drawn their revolvers and there was no attempt at resistance.

List of the Prisoners.

All of the men arrested were taken to the Harrison street police station, where they gave their names as follows:

Bertanior, Archie,	Brien, James,
Burton, C.,	Donnell, D.,
Campoell, D. C.,	Fouton, Ed,
Casey, Richard,	Roberts, Duncan,
Conroy, Thomas,	Slack, John,
Crowe, Edward,	Smith, Frank,
Cunningham, Mike,	Smith, Harry,
Driscoll, James,	Smith, James,
Hayes, John,	Thomas, George,
Johnson, Charles,	Thompson, James,
Jones, Frank,	Wilson, Charles,
Lang, Ed,	Witch, Daniel.
Morrissey, Pat,

Casey was booked as keeper of the place. Witch was a codefendant with O'Leary and Thomas Cougar in a Criminal court hearing several years ago in which the three men were charged with making a handbook. They were acquitted for lack of evidence. Each was released on $400 bond.

O'Leary has for years openly operated a big poolroom over his stockyards saloon and his place is said to be the clearing house for handbook men in the southwest section of the city.

Harold Hall, 618 North Clark street, was found not guilty of the charge of operating a handbook. His case was heard by a jury in Judge Walker's court. Hall was arrested by detectives from Assistant Chief Schuettler's office on Feb. 24, when they raided a poolroom in the rear of Charles Tennes' saloon, 618 North Clark street. Charles Tennes is a brother of "Mont" Tennes.

The detectives who made the raid testified and showed the racing sheets they had found in the place. They were unable, however, when cross examined by Hall's attorney, to show that the markings on the sheets were bets on races.

There is a reason for the cushion sole in shoes or we would not be manufacturing them at a greater cost than other shoes sold at the same price.

The reason is this—the cushion gives the wearer the height of comfort in shoes—it's perfect—it relieves the jar of the human system and keeps the feet from becoming tired, does away with the causes of callouses, corns, bunions and other foot ailments caused by hard sole shoes. Your feet sink into this cushion in such a way as to allow the weight of the body to be equally distributed to all parts.

Positively the easiest shoes on your feet.

Society; Clubs, Entertainments.

Events in Society.

SOCIETY'S interest right now centers largely in the flower show to be given by the Rosemary club at the Virginia hotel from 2 to 7 o'clock today for the benefit of the Rosemary ward at the Home for Destitute Crippled Children. A few years ago a group of young women who had been students at Rosemary hall became sufficiently interested in the home to join their efforts towards the support of one of the wards.

The club, composed of these former students, now numbers in the neighborhood of thirty young women, who go in pairs one morning out of every week to carry toys to the children and spend the morning entertaining them. Every Christmas they celebrate with a tree and gifts, in which the enjoyment of givers and receivers is shared. This year it has been the hope of the young women that enough money might be collected through today's function to permit their taking entire charge of the ward for the years to come—the care of the twenty-four little ones who are its patients and of the two nurses who minister to them.

At least $800 is necessary yearly for this work. When the older workers for the home found that they could not have their annual sale this year the young women took the date which had been set, and today's affair is the result.

From the first the young women have refrained from begging, but the interest felt in the charity has been such as to bring in donations to the amount of $200 already, and in addition a box at the Studebaker theater has been presented by friends, and the raffling of this is to be the new feature of the afternoon, with Miss Josephine Hamline in charge.

Mrs. David Bigelow is chairman of the club and Miss Marion Forgan is the secretary. Their thirty assistants include young women whose names are of equal prominence with their own. All of the young women will wear white dresses, with Alsatian bows of Rosemary blue ribbon in their hair.

Immediately after Easter an evening's entertainment—place and date as yet a mystery—will be given by a group of the city's well known young folk, according to announcement. It is to be a series of vaudeville numbers, in which Miss Marjorie Chisholm, Miss Rosepha Chisholm, Miss Vera Fowler, who will return from British Columbia on Tuesday; Miss Anita Blair, who, with her mother, Mrs. Henry A. Blair, is expected home from the south this morning; Miss Rebecca Kruttschnitt, Howard Tracy of Evanston, Alexander Adams, the British vice consul; Paul Bartlett, Harold Bodman, J. Montague Switzer, and Henry Hazelton of Boston are to take part.

This afternoon brings practically the close of the loaned portrait exhibit at the Art institute, and in celebration of the day all the board members will be on hand to make the tea—postponed from yesterday because of Good Friday. Mrs. Hobart Chatfield-Taylor is to have charge of the tables, with Mrs. E. W. Cramer, Mrs. Herbert Stone, Mrs. William Odell, and Mrs. John A. Carpenter assisting.

Mrs. Charles F. Henrotin, who has been here for some time as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henrotin, 70 East Goethe street, will leave today for Tinton, S. D., where she will join her husband. Mr. Henrotin is interested in the tin mines of the locality, and they will make Tinton their residence for at least the summer, with a probability of remaining. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henrotin, whose younger son, Norris, will marry Miss Vera Fowler this spring, have given up their house on East Goethe street and will take the apartment at the corner of Lincoln Park boulevard and Chicago avenue after April 1.

Mrs. Potter Palmer, who announced on leaving the city a week ago that she expected to return before sailing for Europe, changed her plans and will sail today for London.

Music and the Drama.

The Thomas Orchestra.

BY GLENN DILLARD GUNN.

RICHARD STRAUSS has been almost a stranger on the programs of the Thomas orchestra this season. It has not been felt thus far that the public has suffered an irreparable loss thereby, but when his "Death and Transfiguration" came to a hearing yesterday as part of the Good Friday program there was awakened in the hearts and minds of many a vague suspicion that we had not, as has frequently been said, outgrown this music, that, indeed, it was more than possible we will never outgrow it. It has become the fashion to declaim against Strauss' superficiality, to decry that virtue of his music most universally admitted—namely: his enormous orchestral virtuosity. But even his most ardent adversaries have grudgingly granted that several of his symphonic poems revealed more than a colossal instrumental technic; that they contained, as well, ideas of purest musical beauty, that bear a message of noble and eloquent symbolism.

Among the compositions thus excepted one always finds his "Death and Transfiguration." It possesses an especial significance for Chicago music lovers. Theodore Thomas first taught it to our orchestra, and so well did the men learn their lesson that when the composer came here to direct it and other of his works he admitted that the orchestra knew his score better than did he. Under Mr. Thomas we learned to follow each detail of the score and its many outward manifestations of orchestral virtuosity ceased to distract the attention from those inner meanings it unfolds with all the eloquence of masterful genius. Then came that sad day when it was joined with the "Eroica" symphony and a Bach choral to voice our last tribute to Chicago's musical hero, since when it has possessed for all lovers of Theodore Thomas and his orchestra a deep and intimate meaning, a "program" that is particularly our own.

Yesterday's performance was superb. Mr. Stock and the orchestra fairly reveled in the score. They brought to it all that refinement of nuance that, of all things, most distinguished the orchestra when Mr. Thomas led it. There was a certainty in dynamic proportions that marked a return to those finer standards. Beginning with an almost impalpable pianissimo that yet retained that vitality that manifests itself in well rounded and sympathetic tone, climax after climax was built up until the hearer seemed borne away on the flood of sound. And still the tone remained beautiful. The harshness of dissonance that Strauss relies upon to achieve his highly dramatic contrasts lost all taint of ugliness by virtue of this splendid orchestral tone which was shared impartially by all sections of the musical body. Every part was sung. There was no abruptness in the brasses, no shrillness in the wood-winds, and the strings, notably the violins, distinguished themselves by that rhythmical and intervalic unanimity that is the only foundation of ensemble and orchestral tone.

Back of all this technical excellence one discovered the potent interpretative intention of the conductor. Mr. Stock's sense of dramatic value is too fine to permit of that obviousness of emphasis that crosses the narrow boundary between the sublime and the ridiculous. There resulted an almost classic restraint in the earlier movements of the composition, a restraint that seemed to dwell lovingly in the subtle imagery of the poem, to accomplish all that its demands imposed by the inexhaustible variety of tonal contrast, and leave the intrinsic eloquence of the melodic material free to impress its symbolism on the hearer, aided only by the sensuous charm of tonal loveliness. But the tremendous climax of the "Transfiguration" proved that Mr. Stock could become an actor in the drama as well as a sympathetic listener.

For the "Parsifal" excerpts that preceded the Strauss symphonic poem on yesterday's program, it is impossible to develop the same enthusiasm. Wagner's last music-drama has long since been admitted his weakest, and its few remaining advocates base their admiration chiefly on the "Procession of the Knights of the Holy Grail," the "Good Friday" spiel, and the "Flower Maidens'" chorus. The first two numbers were given yesterday and the suspicion is unavoidable that the orchestra found them as tedious as did some of the hearers. Their performance was distinguished by the same technical virtues that carried such splendid measure of conviction in the Strauss work. But the interpretative impulse was lacking. They were correct, but uninspired.

That most jovial of overtures, the Brahms "Achedemic," opened the afternoon, and with it was grouped the "Unfinished" symphony of Schubert. Both were admirably given. The overture never fails to put all who know Germany and the Germans in that mood of sentimental good humor that is so aptly described by that untranslatable word, "gemüthlich." Its flavor is so unmistakably Teutonic that even those to whom the student songs Brahms has here incorporated have no especial meaning must grasp something of its significance. To others, and possibly they were not many in yesterday's audience, these same student songs brought perhaps a touch of homesickness and longing for days that are gone, a flood of happy memories.

If so, they were fortunate, indeed, for Schubert followed with that wonderful blending of romance, tenderness, and beauty that we call the "Unfinished" symphony, and that of all works in orchestral literature alone could satisfy the longing that the overture inspired. It is not too much to say that the symphony was perfectly given. Indeed, it is possibly no exaggeration to say that it could not be so beautifully played by any other orchestra, for it is a wood-wind symphony, and there is only one Schreurs to sing its melodies on the clarinet, only one Barthel to add with his incomparable oboe that hint of plaintive melancholy that completes its mood values.

The soloist of the afternoon was Wilhelm Middelschulte, the distinguished organist. He selected for this appearance the Rheinberger concerto in G minor, a composition of rather more pleasing and obvious character than Mr. Middelschulte usually consents to dally with. If it is not marked by its profundity it at least gives opportunity for the display of much facility of finger and pedal technic and much taste in well contrasted registration. Mr. Middelschulte realized all its possibilities in these directions. He did astonishing things with his feet, executing all manner of passages and playing three and four voiced harmonies on the pedals alone. The audience received him with marked approval and demanded the usual encore.

Harry Lauder Interviewed.

Harry Lauder, returned to London, is interviewed about his American experiences.

"Well, there's the dear old gray London sky, and I love it, and I'm glad to be back under it," said he. "On New Year's day I was pulling oranges off the trees in the heat of California and looking up through that lovely clear air to the snow on the peaks of the Rocky mountains.

"But if I could have packed the California climate in bags and bottles and brought it to London I wouldn't have done it.

"Man, if you had the flowers growing all the year round you would not care for them as we do in dear old smoky London. If you had date palms in the streets and all kinds of fruit all about you in luxuriance from January to December, do you think you'd appreciate it as you do? You'd pray for a thick fog or a misty, sooty day now and again, to teach you the value of beauty—by contrast.

"We went from New York west to the end of land, and if I tried for a month I could not find words to express my gratitude to the American people and my admiration for their business capacities.

"Mayors and councilors gave my wife and myself official receptions everywhere. I started counting the banquets and receptions, and I kept it up a while, but in spite of the practice I've had at scoring golf I failed. I'm only an indifferent hand at arithmetic.

"Scottish societies loaded my wife with bouquets and candy, and they gave me so many dinners that I had to diet myself, merely as a matter of self-preservation.

"We were received by the governors of all the states I sang in, and by the president of Yale university. Everywhere they gave us a lively time, and even the long railway journeys were powerfully exciting.

"If there wasn't a train wreck in front of us there was one just behind, and there was a storm all the time in the rear and front. But, hospitable to the last, they always got our trains through without accidents.

"The Americans are full of enterprise. Wherever I got off a train they wanted to insure my life, to sell me land, and to give me a banquet. And the way they go in for advertisement is amazing to any one who is used to our own easy going, half hearted methods.

"In Great Britain a manager will be content with just letting the town know you are there. In America they have your portrait on every wall, in every corner, and your name paints the city in huge illuminations and is flashed to the very skies, so that it's a physical impossibility for the populace not to come to the theater and see you.

"But don't believe the stories you hear about the marble baths and gorgeous dressing rooms for the star artists. These things do not exist."

Miss Sylva Appeals From Injunction.

New York, March 25.—[Special.]—Marguerita Sylva, grand opera prima donna, does not intend to return to Oscar Hammerstein's fold if she can help it. Through her lawyer, Nathan Burkan, she appealed to the Appellate division today to vacate the injunction Hammerstein obtained against her in the lower court a few days ago restraining her from singing in any theater or company except that of Hammerstein for the rest of this season.

Miss Sylva believes she is justified in breaking the contract with Hammerstein because of the conduct of the impresario Oscar and his son, Arthur, towards her. Following is part of the brief she submitted for the consideration of the Appellate division justices:

The plaintiff's misconduct includes charges of immorality against defendant and indecent, suggestive, and insulting language addressed to her. Plaintiff's son addressed defendant in the presence of a number of other persons in insulting, harsh, and bullying manner, using the words "You need not get so fresh. It isn't going to advance you."

Miss Sylva contends her contract is not binding because made in France without her husband's consent, and she cites several cases wherein contracts of the kind under the French law have been declared void.

The Wide, Wide World.

Pure Bulgarian Village on Hungarian Plain.

BY GEORGE A. DORSEY, PH. D., LL. D.

[Copyright: 1910: By The Tribune Company.]

OBESSENYO, Hungary, Jan. 5.—This Banat is a wonderful mosaic. It is like the east side of New York. But here, instead of crossing the street to pass from one nationality to another, it is necessary to travel a few miles by train or peasant cart.

Obessenyö is a pure Bulgarian village. Its roots were planted in the soil nearly 200 years ago. Here is has grown through one generation after another. It is as purely Bulgarian as if it were in the department of Tirnovo, in Bulgaria. It stands out from the other villages like a lone oak in a birch forest. The soil is good and it has thrived. These villagers live better than their countrymen in Bulgaria. They are presumably loyal to Hungary, but their physique, costume, manners, customs, and speech remain Bulgarian. The village furnishes an interesting object lesson in the study of assimilation.

Even Obessenyö, in spite of its prosperity, has not escaped the emigration epidemic. There are perhaps 200 now in the United States. The movement toward the west began about seven years ago. The height of the flood was reached in 1907, but the crisis sharply reduced the flow the next year. Now it is beginning again.

Judge with Beautiful Strut.

I discovered Obessenyö by chance. My linguistic map does not show it as Bulgarian but as "others." While waiting for a train yesterday in a nearby village I met a roundheaded, red faced, big nosed giant. He was clad in high top boots, white embroidered trousers, black waistcoat, buttoned to the chin, and a short, thick sheepskin coat beautifully embroidered. Never have I seen a more beautiful strut than that of this judge of this Bulgarian village. His importance and dignity and huge self-consciousness showed themselves in every step. He was suspicious of me at first and it took some effort to convince him that I was not one of the hated agents whose business it is to persuade unsuspecting peasants to cross the sea.

His suspicion was more than manifest in his replies to my questions as to the nature of the emigration from his village. At first he was disposed to deny its existence. Then he admitted that there were a few from Obessenyö in America. That he has no sympathy with the movement is shown in his reply to my question as to whether he saw any change in those who had returned, "Bleached and crazy. They come back no good and bring no money. What few dollars they do have they spend for drink."

My giant judge today, in his office, thawed out and admitted that those who have returned are the failures. The good ones have not come back. While waiting in his office for a man who had returned from America recently a score or more of peasants came in, clad in costumes similar to that of the judge, and I asked if any of them had been in America. "No," he replied in a rather lofty manner, "they are rich; they do not have to go to America."

Nearly All Farmers.

More than 5,200 of the 5,900 people of Obessenyö are dependent on agriculture for their living. What the remainder do for a livelihood is not easily discernible. There are no factories, no stores of any importance, half a dozen peasant taverns, a few czigany blacksmiths. The tiny trade of the village is in the hands of some fifteen or twenty Jews. Of domestic servants there are only twenty. There are 745 proprietors, or men who own some land. But of these only five own more than 140 acres. Five hundred and fifty belong to the group of petty farmers whose average holdings do not exceed seven acres.

Imagine a village of 6,000 souls in the black belt of an Illinois prairie. On every side of the village extends a treeless, black plain, now green with winter wheat. In the village only the lofty white spire of the church rises above a single story. The houses are of a general uniform type and line both sides of long, straight, broad streets, now deep with black mud. Nothing breaks the monotony of the vista down the long street except the colored bands around the lower walls of the white, brown, or yellow houses. The chief occupants of the streets, or rather broad, muddy lanes, are geese and ducks.

Peasant life shrivels up in winter. The farmers do not drive to town because they all live in town. Rarely is a wagon seen on the street; never a buggy or carriage. These are not known here. The first thing which would strike you in a village like this is the absence of life, of movement. Of intellectual life apart from peasant lore which has persisted through countless generations from pagan times there is none. Except for a few school books of elementary character I doubt if there are fifty volumes of real books in the whole village, not one for each hundred inhabitants.

Well Built, Muscular People.

These Bulgarians, even as in the plain north of the Balkans, are a serious, sober lot, with well built, rugged, muscular bodies. The women seem more rugged than their sisters in Bulgaria, but they have the same short, chunky figure, intensified by heavy plaited skirts of bright colors and thick sheepskin coats. In the house they are, as a rule, barefooted. Out of doors, like the men, they wear boots, big boots with bright yellow tops. These women like finery and on gala days appear in costumes of silk and velvet heavily embellished with tinsel, a single costume being worth nearly $100.

In the judge's office I met a well built young man who recently returned from St. Louis with 400 American dollars. There was no trace of St. Louis in his costume, and he spoke scarcely any English. He would have remained longer, but on account of sickness became discouraged and came home. He says that there are ten from this village in St. Louis. Next I met a man, over six feet in height, weighing about 250 pounds, who had spent ten months in a butcher shop in Philadelphia. He likes the money he earned, but prefers to be with his family in Obessenyö. Another man, about 40 years old, dressed in European clothing, returned sick, $100 in debt and no English. The next man I met, a young fellow of perhaps 30, a fine face, has been home a year after sixteen months' work in a Brooklyn tunnel. He says he left thirty-two of his townsmen in Brooklyn, working with the shovel. He has six acres of land, heavily mortgaged, and as he did not succeed in getting enough money to lift it on his former visit, is to return. He has his passport and leaves for Brooklyn tomorrow.

Woman Bread Winner Emigrant.

In a little peasant farm wagon with open sides I have wandered back and forth over the town, visiting some of the houses an inmate of which is or has been in the United States. First, to the house of a woman whose husband is deaf and dumb. The man could not go, so she went to earn a little money to buy an acre or two of land. She spent ten months in a Brooklyn jute mill, leaving her husband to look after five children.

There is something pathetic in this woman's story. It must have required extraordinary courage for her to start alone on such a voyage. She was clad in her American calico dress, now much the worse for wear. Her little house of three rooms was not neat, but in spite of its cold earth floors and the evidences of the struggle which goes on without end in the little family, it wore the air of a home. There are two beds, with hand woven spreads, and a little table with an oilcloth cover. On the walls are a few pictures, at the windows are lace curtains, and there is a sideboard and three chairs.

The struggle through which this woman has gone has eaten into her face, but she speaks joyously of her American experience. In spite of the fact that she did not bring home much money she is glad to have seen the new world. "They live better in America than here," she says, "and one can get work all the year round. Winter here is the long sleep."

"What struck her most was the freedom of women in America. There a woman may not be insulted as here and over this difference she showed real enthusiasm. She would like to live in Brooklyn, but fears that she can never return. She realizes that she would have succeeded much better if she could have talked English. "People in America eat lots of meat; here, the poor get it once a week or perhaps not more often than once a month."

In the little back yard is a low whitewashed shed, with one cow and a little pile of firewood.

Emigrates and Works Way Back.

In a nearby house I found the wife of a man now working on the railroad, who spent one year in Brooklyn. He just succeeded in paying for the cost of his trip and returned only when he could get no work. This house also has cold earth floors and lacks tidiness. There are a couple of looms, a painted bench, a table, two little beds, and two home made chairs. The failure of the man was so great that he even had to work his way home on the steamship. This man owns about fifteen acres of land, mortgaged. He will return to Brooklyn in the spring.

Other houses I have visited and other experiences of those who have returned add nothing to the tale. Apparently the judge was right; the failures or near-failures return. Even at that they are not satisfied and would like to try it again. I heard of a German blacksmith who has a brother in America. His house, with earth floors, has a little more furniture than the average house of the village, but is not much better. This brother, so the blacksmith told me, had worked for a farmer near Obessenyö for ten years and in spite of thrift and economy could not save over $20. His family helped him to go to America. For more than five years he has been working for a gardener on Lill avenue, Chicago, during which time he has saved over $2,000 and found a wife, a Bulgarian from this village. According to the blacksmith, a man may work here forever and have only a stick of bread to show for it.

In spite of Hungarian soil and nearly 200 years' residence in a foreign land, these Bulgarians have preserved their language, their nationality, their rugged strength, and their sober, prosaic manners. The average man of the village does not even speak the language of his adopted country. Conditions have not been favorable for assimilation; consequently it has not taken place.

Notes From Foreign Lands.

Egg laying competitions are quite popular in Australia, and at the present time each Australian state is running at least one competition, the state poultry experts having general supervision over them. In nearly all of the Australian states wheat forms a leading part of the diet of the poultry in these competitions.

Old trappers in Canada declare that good seasons for fur bearing animals come in cycles and these cycles are dependent upon the crop of rabbits. The great hunting ground of one year may be worthless the next because of a dearth of rabbits, upon which the fur bearing animals feed.

The reported purchase by an American sugar syndicate of over 60,000 acres of land in the Philippines for sugar and other interests is considered as encouraging for the agricultural development of the islands. Millions of acres of valuable lands still lie under tropical suns untouched.

Woman, Her Work and Interests

Just Between Us Girls.

BY SISTER MARY.

NOW what do you think about this?

"For over a year there has been a nice young man calling on me and taking me out to the theater and to parties. We are just friends, for he has never proposed to me. I like him much, but he worries me because he wants to be affectionate to me and I can't permit it. He wants to hold my hand and not long ago he tried to kiss me. I told him that I would never go out with him again unless he behaved himself, and I mean it, but I think it is a shame for a man to behave in this way and annoy a girl who really likes him."

Now, you may smile over that letter if you like and call it silly, but it was written by a thoroughly nice girl who earns her own living and is the mainstay of her home. She is young yet, not quite 20, and she has never had many men friends or gone about much. And I heartily agree with her that it is a shame for any man to make a nuisance of himself in the way she describes.

And do you know the reason why this young man has attempted to be affectionate to this girl, yet has said no word of love or marriage to her? It is simply this—he has known plenty of other girls who allowed him these familiarities, who did not know the value of their kisses. Consequently he thinks all women are alike and that this nice girl friend of his is only "playing shy" with him instead of being truly modest.

There are so many girls who think it is delightful to have a man hold hands or embrace and kiss them, who do not realize and have never been taught that a girl's lips and a girl's caresses should be kept for the man she is going to marry and not wasted on every flirtatious Tom, Dick, and Harry who comes along.

"But," objects one of my readers, "lots of fellows won't go with a girl who is poky and slow and is not out for a good time." Well, I think that such "fellows" are undesirable acquaintances, but I don't believe that they do not appreciate and admire a girl who has sufficient modesty and self-respect to keep them at a distance. It is perfectly possible to do this and yet have a "good time."

When I was a young girl I once visited a friend of mine who had a twin brother to whom she was devoted. At one of the little social affairs to which we were invited I met a pretty girl to whom I was much attracted. She was bright and vivacious and charming in appearance. On our way home I told my friend how much I had liked this girl. I shall never forget what she said.

"She is sweet when she's just among girls, as she was today," she said. "But Jimmy [her brother] won't let me go with her because she's so spoony with all the boys, and Jimmy says the boys laugh at her and make all kinds of fun of her among themselves and he can't have me a friend of a girl like that for fear the boys would think I was the same kind. Isn't it a pity!"

So you see, the man who wants to hold your hand or put his arm around you is usually far from being moved by any affection for you. He is merely trying to find out if you are "spoony" or if you are a truly nice girl who knows the value of herself.

Familiarity, says the proverb, breeds contempt. Take my word for it, it's true. And wouldn't you rather, when you fall in love with the true prince, think that for him and him alone are all your kisses and caresses and that your lips had not been kissed by any other? Why, of course you would. And he will like it far better, too.

Have a good time if you will, laugh and dance and enjoy yourself, but as you value yourself discourage any undue familiarity from your men friends.

Sewing Hint.

When sewing at the machine it will be found convenient to sew a piece of flannel around the arm of the machine to use for a pincushion.

Health and Beauty.

BY MARIAN MARTINEAU.

TOOTH brushes become worn out much sooner than one supposes. Once a month is none too often to have a new brush. They are often left wet with more or less tooth powder in them, which decays, and this, mingled with the impurities in the mouth, will soon ruin the teeth. Brushes should be dipped once in a week in boiling water and should be thoroughly rinsed after using.

A well made comb has strong, smooth, flat teeth, set wide apart. The comb should be well finished and easily cleaned. An ordinary whisk broom or a stiff, coarse brush will clean such a comb quickly and successfully. Look to it that your comb is kept clean. In combing the hair to remove tangles separate it into strands and begin near the ends. Having straightened out an inch or two, begin an inch or two higher up and continue until all is combed.

When you wash the hands and nails, do so thoroughly. Do not dab them into water and out again, merely grinding the dirt into them. When you wipe them do so carefully and thoroughly. It is from careless washing and wiping that many hands and nails are made coarse and rough looking. Lather the hands well with a pure, bland soap and warm water, and if a brush is necessary to cleanse the nails use it gently.

HENRIETTA: One of the symptoms of eye strain is watering of the eyes. If your eyes trouble you by frequent watering it is probable either that they are weak or that there is some trouble existing with the tear duct. Boracic acid of the strength of ten grains to the ounce of distilled water is a good eye wash for tired, weak eyes.

MARY: The eyes must be treated reverently if you care for good eyesight. Keep the eyes cool and clean by washing them once or twice a day in rose water or in equal parts of witch hazel and warm water, or stimulated by baths of warm salt water. Keep the eyebrows and eyelashes free from dust and powder by brushing them with a tiny eyebrow brush. If eyes are healthful they will be clear and bright. If you are intelligent, cheerful, and kindly your eyes will reveal those qualities.

G. G. R.: Rain water is an excellent cosmetic. It is far preferable to hard water. Camphor ice is good for chapped lips or hands. After trying out lamb fat, melt together two ounces of the tallow and a piece of gum and camphor the size of an English walnut. Pour into a porcelain jar and allow to cool.

Five Cent Black and Lima Bean Soups.

THE food possibilities of the bean, long known, are almost illimitable. Not only the omnipresent navy bean, but the black, the kidney, the cranberry, the lima, and the other varieties may all be treated in many ways. As it happens, they are all more or less ill treated by the majority of cooks and made too harsh a food for delicate digestions.

Black Bean Soup.—Soak one-half pint of black beans over night. In the morning put to cook with one pint of water and a pinch of salt. Boil till beans are soft, always adding enough cold water to keep the quart of water on beans. When they are soft take them off stove and mash through colander. Put back on the stove the part in the colander and the part squeezed through. Add one small onion chopped, one-half teaspoonful of mustard, one-half teaspoonful of celery salt, a dash of black pepper, and boil thoroughly. Now take off stove, put through colander again, this time keeping out skins, etc., allowing the thick part only of the beans to stay in the liquor. Twenty minutes before serving put in kettle, add six whole cloves and a sprinkle of cayenne pepper. Pour over thin slices of lemon on each plate and serve. This soup can easily be made in a fireless cooker. While it seems a good deal of trouble at first, one feels repaid because it is good. By doubling the quantity labor is saved and it will keep in the icebox for a week.—Mrs. A. B. Delaney, Twin Lakes, Mich.

LIMA BEAN SOUPS.

Soak over night three-fourths of a pint of dry lima beans. Next morning parboil in soda water—one-eighth of teaspoonful. Rinse and remove the skins—by pinching one end the bean slips out easily. Return to a stewpan with water and gently simmer until beans have cooked to a soft mush. Season with salt, pepper, and butterine. This will be a thick soup.—Mrs. Ernest Minor Patterson, 5001 Greenwood avenue.

Cream of Lima Bean.—Ingredients: One cupful of dried lima beans, three pints of cold water, two slices of onion, four slices of carrot, one cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of flour, one level teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of pepper. Soak beans over night; in the morning drain and add cold water; cook until soft enough to rub through a sieve. Cut vegetables in small cubes and cook five minutes in half the butter. Remove vegetables; add flour, salt, and pepper, and stir into boiling soup. Add milk, reheat and strain, and add remaining butter in small pieces.—Miss Margaret Chapman, Coldwater, Mich.

Purée of Lima Beans.—Soak one-half pint of lima beans over night. Boil until soft and mash through colander. Take one tablespoonful of butter and one tablespoonful of flour, rub to a smooth paste, thin with one cupful of the soup and add to the remainder. Season with salt, cayenne pepper, and onion juice. Serve with toasted crackers.—Mrs. James C. Beach, 1929 Montrose boulevard.

Soak beans in cold water for several hours. Wash and put on to cook in three pints of boiling water. Cook until thoroughly done. Mash all through a colander, season with salt and pepper, small piece of butter, and add one-half cup of boiling milk. Reheat and serve.—Sonora May Connelly, 359 East Fifty-seventh street.

Onion and Bean Purée.—Over a cup of cold cooked beans—Lima or any dried kinds—even bakes ones will answer—pour a pint of cold water. Mince a good sized onion fine. Add a little salt, cover in a small granite stew pan, and allow to simmer until the onion is pulpy. When ready to serve cream a spoon of butter and half a spoon of flour and gradually stir in the seasoned purée. Just before dishing add a cup of milk, or sufficient to make the soup nice consistency to serve to the number required. Add a dash or two more of salt and dusting of paprika. A sprinkling of minced parsley may also be added. Serve with tiny toast strips made by buttering a slice of bread, cutting crosswise in narrow bits and crisping in the oven.—Mrs. G. D. Harrington, Elkhorn, Wis.

SLAIN BANKER'S GARMENTS SHOWN

Scene in Sayler Trial at Watseka Moves Widow and Daughter to Tears.

UNDERTAKER ON STAND.

Witness Says Woman Manifested No Emotion When She Inspected Wounds.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Watseka, Ill., March 25.—[Special.]—Exhibition of the blood stained garments of John Byron Sayler, the slain Crescent City banker, today in the courtroom where Mrs. Sayler, the widow, Dr. W. R. Miller, and John Grunden are on trial on the charge of murder moved Mrs. Sayler and her daughter Goldie to tears. The scene was the most intense since the trial began.

The exhibits were brought into the courtroom by Undertaker Benjamin Duester, who was the principal witness of the day offered by the state. Duester testified that Mrs. Sayler looked without outward emotion at the wounds in her husband's body on the day after the tragedy. The undertaker related that Grunden assisted him to carry the body from the room to where it was prepared for burial, but said the old scout of the plains was weak with emotion afterward.

Describes Four Bullet Wounds.

The witness described the four bullet wounds that were discovered in Sayler's body and told what course the bullets took in passing through the body.

"Was Mrs. Sayler present when you prepared the body?' asked State's Attorney John F. Pallissard.

"Yes," was the answer. "She came in from the coroner's inquest and I asked her if there was anything she wanted done."

"What did she say."

"She asked how many bullets struck the body. I told her four and asked her if she wanted to see the wounds. I showed her the bullet wounds in his arms and body. She said she did not think the arm was broken. She looked at all of them and said she did not think he was shot that many times."

"Did she weep any?"

"No."

"Did she express any regret in any way?"

"She did not."

Saw No Hatchet in Room.

The last witness of the day was E. E. Meyer, mayor of Crescent City, who was one of the first persons to arrive at the scene of the shooting. He corroborated the story of the other witnesses, saying there was no hatchet or hand ax in the room when he arrived. He also testified that he had a brief conversation with Dr. Miller after the shooting concerning the wound in Miller's arm.

It was revealed today that a strong point counted upon by the defense in its theory of self-defense was that a bruise was discovered on Dr. Miller's arm just below the elbow after the affair. This bruise was measured by the deputy sheriff after the arrest. It is said to have been two and one-half inches long and a little more than an inch wide. The bruise was several inches from the bullet wound on Miller's wrist. This evidence has been prepared by the attorneys for the defense and will be presented.

ADMITS HE TOOK REBATES; FINED $4,000 FOR OFFENSE.

Genal Agent of Holland-America Line Confesses to Charge in Federal Court in New York.

New York, March 25.—Adrain Gips, the general agent of the Holland-America steamship line in the United States, pleaded guilty before Judge Holt in the federal court this afternoon to indictments charging the receiving of rebates from railroads.

Mr. Gips pleaded guilty to one count in each of two indictments which charged the receiving of rebates from the Wabash and the Central Vermont railroads in violation of the Hepburn law. Judge Holt imposed a fine of $2,000 in each case. The maximum fine possible was $20,000. Arrangements were made immediately for the payment of the fine.

There was no denial that rebates had been received by the Holland-America company since the Hepburn law was passed, but Gips' attorney said there was a question whether the steamship company could be regarded as a shipper. Counsel for Gips assured the court that there would be no repetition of the offense.

The other men under indictment in the same connection are David O. Ives, president of the Boston Merchants' association board of transportation; Robert Burnap, formerly traffic agent of the Central Vermont railroad; William C. Maxwell, general traffic manager of the Wabash; William F. Schmitt, formerly freight agent of the Wabash.

SENATOR PLATT'S WILL FILED; ESTATE LEFT TO THREE SONS.

Value of Bequests Is Not Known, but Is Estimated at $200,000—Testament Concise in Its Wording.

Owego, N. Y., March 25.—[Special.]—The will of the late Senator Thomas C. Platt was admitted to probate in the surrogate's court today. The value of the estate is not given, but it is supposed to be about $200,000.

The will is most concise, containing only three clauses. The senator leaves his entire estate to his three sons, Henry B. Platt, Edward T. Platt, and Frank H. Platt. In the first clause he appoints his three sons as executors and empowers them to convey, lease, or sell any or all of the real estate. In the second clause he divides his estate equally among his three sons. In the third clause he revokes all wills heretofore made.

The instrument was executed Nov. 24, 1906, and was witnessed by Chauncey H. Crosby, vice president of the United State Express company, and by Frank Boos of New York

FRIEND OF LINCOLN IN WANT

Prefers to Starve than Be Parted from Wife at Poorhouse.

CARED FOR BY NURSES.

Drove Buggy for Future President During First Campaign.

"If only I could see 'Bob' Lincoln I know that he would take me by the hand and make things right for me and my wife. I used to drive a buggy for Abraham Lincoln at Springfield away back in '55. Robert T. Lincoln was only a little boy then, but I know he would remember me."

In this way William White, sitting near the side of his bedridden wife in their hovel at 4645 Wallace street, explained how he hoped that he and his "woman" might be lifted out of their helpless poverty and saved from the shame of ending their days in the county poorhouse.

During several weeks White, who is nearing his eighty-fourth year, and his wife, who is 64 years old, and an invalid, have had nothing to eat excepting the food that has been carried to them from day to day by a nurse in the employ of the Visiting Nurse association. The cot on which Mrs. White lies from morning until night also was furnished by the association.

Other organized charities have deserted the feeble old people because they would not consent to being sent out to the poorhouse, where they would have to live apart and be permitted to see each other only twice a week.

Stay Together Until End.

"They never shall separate my woman and me," said Mr. White with a show of spirit. "We will starve if we have to, but we will starve together. We have been together for nearly fifty years, and it is cruel for these charity people to try to force us apart now. If it hadn't been for these good nurses we would have had a hard time getting through the winter. They have given to us all the food we have had, and they brought a cot and bedding for my woman."

Referring back to the days when he worked for Abraham Lincoln, Mr. White said that he came to Illinois in 1850, soon after his arrival in the United States from Limerickton, Ireland, where he was born.

"I worked round about Monticello, Ill., for several years," said the old man, "and in 1855 I went to Springfield. William O'Hara and his sister, Johannah O'Hara, whom I knew, were then employed in Mr. Lincoln's house, and Mr. Lincoln gave me employment from time to time. I used to care for his horse and buggy and drive him from place to place. He was the best man I ever knew, and he was good to me as he was good to every one. And Mrs. Lincoln, too, was good to me. I used to go into the house to talk to Johannah, and Mrs. Lincoln would come and talk to me and make me feel that she was interested in my welfare."

Wife Also Served Lincoln.

Mrs. White also recalled with pride the fact that she had once served Mr. Lincoln at table when he was campaigning before his first election to the presidency.

"It was at Marie Porter's cold water cure resort, near Rochester, N. Y.," said Mrs. White. "All the big people used to come there, and Mr. Lincoln stopped there one day while he was running for the presidency. I waited on him at the table, and he left a dollar under his plate for me."

Mr. White said that he witnessed the marriage of Richard Oglesby, the "war governor" of Illinois.

In explanation of a deep blue scar across the bridge of his nose Mr. White said that it was the result of a wound inflicted by an Indian's tomahawk while he and four other white men were rescuing the wife of an army officer who had been captured by Indians in Colorado.

During the last ten years Mr. White and his wife have lived in Chicago. For a time their children helped to support them, but of late they have been left penniless. Before coming here the husband was in the employ of the Illinois Central railroad for twenty-three years as a section foreman, and lived at Farmer City, Ill.

The Visiting Nurse association has gone out of its way to provide Mr. White and his wife with necessary food and clothing, hoping that some "good fellow" would soon learn of their distress and give to them a "lift."

LAWYERS FOR HYDE BAFFLED.

Unable to Get Depositions of Doctors on Findings in the Swope Case.

Hope of obtaining an advance statement from Dr. W. S. Haines and Dr. Ludwig Hektoen of their findings in the examination of the organs of Col. Swope and Chrisman Swope was abandoned yesterday by counsel for Dr. B. C. Hyde, whose trial for murder of the Swopes will begin in Kansas City April 11. The Kansas City attorneys who came for that purpose left last evening.

ENEMIES OF CARUSO INDICTED.

Two Italians Accused of Having Attempted to Blackmail Tenor Placed Under Heavier Bail.

New York, March 25. — The two Italian business men, Antonio Cincotto and Antonio Misiano, who were arrested on March 4, charged with attempting to blackmail and extort $15,000 from Enrico Caruso, the tenor, were indicted today in Brooklyn. Both pleaded not guilty. Their bail was raised from $5,000 to $10,000 each. No date has been set for the trial.

CICERO'S CITIZENS ASK WAYMAN'S AID

Lay Charges of Village Graft Before Him and Request Prosecution.

MAKE MORE ACCUSATIONS

Declare People Will Have to Move Out of the Town Unless Something Is Done.

A grand jury investigation of graft in the town of Cicero, which is said to be bankrupt because of the operations of a "ring" in the town board, was demanded yesterday by a delegation from the Citizens' Reform league which called at the state's attorney's office. Specific charges were made touching several town trustees and contractors.

While there was some mystery as to the scope of the accusations, it is known that the league directed its evidence against Christ Jepsen, a trustee who is also a cement contractor doing business with the town; Township Collector and Trustee O. W. Young; and M. Peterson, a contractor whose bills for paving and curbing have come under criticism of citizens.

President C. H. Coyle of the Reform league and Erskine Hart, candidate for trustee on the ticket of the Citizens' Independent party, headed the delegation and presented the evidence to Assistant State's Attorney Thomas Marshall.

See in Wayman Only Hope.

"We see in the state's attorney and the grand jury our only chance to break up the 'ring' that is bankrupting Cicero," said Mr. Hart. "If this move is unsuccessful, taxpayers might as well move out of the town. The situation is intolerable."

After examining the evidence, and promising to lay it before State's Attorney Wayman, Mr. Marshall asked that the visitors return today with certain documents necessary to round out the case.

Trustee Christ Jepsen is charged with having received $700, by order of the town board, for cement work in sewers and curbing, contrary to the law of Illinois, which members of the Reform league cited as prohibiting an official from contracting with the town. The village board is charged with having permitted Mr. Jepsen to operate a saloon by special permit without paying a license. Last Labor day and the three days of the aviation meet at Hawthorne racetrack in October were specified as occasions when this was done.

Charged with Collecting Twice.

Collector C. W. Young is charged with retaining for his own use $1,180, or 2 per cent of the sum of $50,000 which was paid to the town after a lawsuit with the Metropolitan Surety company. The Reform league says that the collector's fee of 2 per cent formerly had been paid for the original collection of the money which was deposited in the defunct Lincoln bank. The surety company was liable to the town upon the failure of the bank and the villagers claim that a second payment of the fee for the same sum is unlawful.

Contractor Peterson is charged with receiving $7,683.65 in excess of his just dues on a paving contract in spite of the protest of the town engineer, who reported 2,000 square yards less of paving laid than were stated in the figures upon which Peterson collected.

At a meeting last night in Pavilion hall, Clyde, George Comerford, president of the Cicero town board, Young, and others against whom graft charges were made to the state's attorney, declared they had been attacked by the opposition in politics on the eve of an election in order to throw them out of office.

When asked about the fees he was charged with collecting illegally, Young declared that he was innocent, but refused to make any further statement.

MRS. GAYLEY GETS DIVORCE FROM PITTSBURG STEEL MAN.

Reno Judge Also Awards Her $50,000 Alimony and Costs and $1,000 Counsel Fees.

Reno, Nev., March 25.—[Special.]—Mrs. Julia Gardner Gayley today was granted a decree of divorce from James Gayley, former second vice president of the United States Steel corporation. She was awarded $50,000 alimony and costs and $1,000 counsel fees.

Mrs. Gayley and daughters, who left for New York tonight, were not present at the final hearing, but Gayley sat with his counsel. It was not expected that the court in view of its dissatisfaction forcibly expressed yesterday, would make a decision immediately after the argument. The apparent collusion between Gayley and his wife made the granting of any decree doubtful.

Judge Curler in his final plea for Mrs. Gayley reviewed the question of residence, the unusual demands for frequent absences for such a man of large affairs in the industrial and financial world as Gayley, and the intent manifested in his previous declarations of intention to live in the west. In closing he said:

"It is a godsend that there is one state which offers such relief to men and women as shall prevent their living with what may prove in this case, as in many others, a precarious existence."

SAYS WIFE SCRATCHED HIM

McGavin Also Testifies Spouse Tried to Use Revolver.

ASKS $50,000 HEART BALM.

Second Wife of J. W. Gehrig Is Sued by No. 1, Divorced.

"She jumped on me and scratched my face all up when I was in bed. She also tried to shoot me."

These were two of the charges made yesterday in the Circuit court by former Congressman Charles M. McGavin, who is seeking a divorce from his wife on the ground of cruelty. The former legislator explained that the alleged attempt at shooting him was frustrated by his taking the revolver away from his wife. He described other evidences of her temper.

Sister Tells of Defendant's Temper.

Mrs. Margaret Dayton, a sister of the complaintant, substantiated his testimony. She said:

"Mrs. McGavin told me that she hoped we would keep revolvers out of the house while she had those angry spells. She seemed afraid that she would shoot my brother, if she had the chance."

Julia Bell, a former servant, also testified for the former congressman.

"Mrs. McGavin threatened to turn on the gas one time when Mr. McGavin was asleep," she said. "Another time she said she would shoot him. She used to hit him with her fists and his face would be marked up where she scratched him."

Mrs. McGavin was not in court, but was represented by Attorney Rorro De Stefano.

Asks $50,000 Heart Balm.

Mrs. Anna L. Gehrig, divorced wife of J. W. Gehrig, a photographer at 1116 West Madison street, began suit for $50,000 against Anna Getschow Gehrig, present wife of Gehrig, for alleged alienation of affections. Gehrig, who lives at 2242 Washington boulevard, is said to be about 60 and his second wife 30. He refused to discuss the suit.

Mabel Aleen Durning, an actress, living at 716 North Clark street, charges her husband Joseph T. Burning, also an actor, with habitual drunkenness. She recites that because of his actions she has been forced to give up several engagements.

SEEPAGE AT "GRAFT" SEWER DELAYS TOUR OF INSPECTION.

Lawrence Avenue Bore Expected to Be Ready Today for Visit of Assistant State's Attorney.

Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup, accompanied by W. W. Curtis, the consulting engineer who has charge of the investigation of section "N" of the Lawrence avenue sewer, will make an inspection of the bore this morning.

The inspection was planned for yesterday morning, but the seepage required a postponement. Contractor T. J. Prendergast reported later to Commissioner of Public Works John J. Hanberg that only two feet of water remained in the tunnel and that it would be removed before night. Mr. Curtis spent most of yesterday examining the walls of the tunnel near the main shaft, but did not bore into them.

Mr. Northup said that no one would be allowed to go into the tunnel except persons connected with his office and representatives of the city and of Michael H. McGovern, the contractor who has been indicted on the charge of "skimping" in the amount of material used in the construction of the sewer.

On the result of the investigation started by the state's attorney's office rests the indictment returned against Contractor McGovern, former Deputy Commissioner of Public Works Redleske, and others. It was asserted before the grand jury that the city was defrauded through "skimping" in the concrete floor of the tunnel.

In order to get into the tunnel it was necessary to pump out 3,000,00 gallons of water.

SHOOTS BOY WITH OLD RIFLE.

Youth Fires from Window—Blank Cartridge Forces Out Screw in Barrel.

Firing an old civil war rifle, loaded only with a blank cartridge, nearly resulted fatally for 13 year old John Widmann of 1458 Orleans street yesterday. Eleven year old William Lagree fired the shot from the window of his residence, 1442 Orleans street, at a crowd of boys playing in the street to frighten them. A screw, which became loosened in the rifle, had been placed in the barrel some time ago. The explosion forced this out and it hit the Widmann boy in the abdomen. He was rushed to the German American hospital. His condition is not serious.

Plans for Baptist Convention.

Arrangements for the northern Baptist convention to be held at the University of Chicago May 6 to 13 were discussed yesterday at a meeting of the committee of one hundred at the Auditorium hotel. The program and speakers will be announced within two weeks.

JUDGES ABOLISH COURT RED TAPE

Men on the Municipal Bench Adopt New Set of Rules to Simplify Their Work.

NO MORE DEMURRERS.

Changes Made Along Lines Advocated by President Taft and Gov. Deneen.

"Red tape," which has hampered legal procedure in Chicago's Municipal courts, was swept away to an extent yesterday when the judges of that tribunal met and adopted new rules. The changes are said to be along lines advocated by President Taft, Gov. Deneen, and members of the local bar.

While it is not contended that the ultimate in simplicity has been reached, the jurists believe they have accomplished a notable advance. The new rules as announced will go into effect April 1. Action was without dissenting votes. Chief Justice Harry Olson presided, and almost the entire Municipal bench was present.

Relates to "First-Class Suits."

The "red tape" abolished pertains chiefly to what are known as "first class suits," where recovery for more than $1,000 is sought.

Demurrers, those weapons of delay so popular with lawyers who do not wish a trial on the merits of a case, have been abolished. As a substitute, affidavits that do not clearly set forth a claim may be stricken out on motion, thus requiring more definite statements. Where affidavits are sufficiently specific there must be specific answer. If a claim has no foundtion in law the judge is authorized to dismiss the case.

Evasive Denials Under Ban.

Evasive and general denials are put under a ban. An exception is permitted where it is alleged that the party to a suit has not sufficient knowledge of the facts to make a specific affidavit.

Authority for adopting new rules is in the Municipal court. Other and higher courts, the judges believe, will alter their procedure similarly. Uniform procedure in all Illinois courts is the goal of the jurists when the benefits of the changes have been demonstrated.

For the Hands

It is so easy to have lovely hands that one marvels that any woman will allow them to become red and coarse when she can make them white and fine.

The beauty of a hand is in the whiteness and fine texture of the skin rather than in the form itself. And the secret of their beauty is primarily in the soap. No soap at all is better than a poor soap, which irritates the skin. BRISTOW AND THE BATH.

It has been many a long day since they regarded the bath as a sacred Saturday night ceremony either in Kansas or Texas, but we are sure that Senator Bristow's memory can take him gently back to the days when the family wash tub was carried into the kitchen as darkness fell on the end of the week and stood in the corner as a portent of watery disaster and soapy eyes.

One sees the youthful Bristow at the pump after supper, filling the capacious family wash boiler and staggering into the house with it; sees it coming to a boil on the kitchen stove; sees towels, soap, and wash rags laid on the floor; sees boyish reluctance contemplating the threatened approximation to godliness; hears the stern injunction to "mind that you get your ears clean," and thereat one closes the door on the scene of this sacrifice to the parental notion of what constitutes a nice boy on Sunday.

We do not know what may have been the early ablutionary experiences of Senator Lodge of Massachusetts or of Senator Hale of Maine, but we are confident that Mr. Lodge at least never had a healthy prejudice against the bath such as is the inheritance of every properly raised American boy west of the Appalachians. We suspect that at an early age, with unnatural precocity, the young Lodge could have been found turning on the faucets and filling the surging tub, freely, willingly, and of his own volition.

Hence it is not surprising that later in life we find these statesmen disagreeing as to the propriety of having a masseur in the senate bathrooms. Every instinct in Mr. Bristow arose in protest against a proposition so Babylonish. Mr. Lodge could go to his constituents on a promasseur platform. So could Mr. Hale, but to Mr. Bristow and to that stern friend of the plain people, Senator Bailey, the issue not only was personally repugnant but politically deadly.

Emporia, Wichita, Holton, Baldwin, Leavenworth, Enterprise, Hutchinson, Great Bend, Osawatomie, Ottawa, Salina, and Fort Scott are no strangers to the plumbers' art, and Saturday nights are no longer sacred to the bath, but no wise representative of the sovereign state containing these cities ever will vote for a bill paying $1,800 a year to a senatorial masseur. Mr. Lodge and Mr. Hale may know the temper of their own people, but this sort of thing will not do in Kansas—or in Texas.

RAISE THE MAINE.

The house has passed a bill for the removal of the wreck of the Maine from Havana harbor with the approval of the Cuban authorities. They would be only too glad to give it and rid their great harbor of a dangerous and unsightly object. If they had had a free hand it would have been removed long ago as an obstruction to navigation.

The senate should ratify the action of the house. Then the bones of the sixty odd American sailors now rotting in the mud and ooze of the harbor can be given Christian burial in their own country. Then, after these many years, we shall know for sure whether the explosion which wrecked the ship was external or internal. A board of American naval officers reported that it was the one, and a Spanish board that it was the other. As the sinking of the Maine had much to do with precipitating the Spanish war, it would be interesting to know which was right. Presumably the American board would be vindicated. The navy department, which strongly recommends the removal of the wreck, seems to have no fears of the result. For the sake of the eternal verities and the benefit of some future historian of the Spanish war, let us have the exact facts.

CONSERVATION OF WATER POWER.

An administration bill for the development, use, and control of water power in the public domain was sent to the senate. It empowers the secretary of the interior to make leases for not to exceed forty years, the proceeds of fees and leases to be used one-third for roads and schools in the counties where the water sites are and the other two-thirds to go into the United States treasury.

The bill was sent to the committee on public lands, and by it referred to a subcommittee, which has reported a substitute. It elbows the national government out of the business and turns it over to the states in which water power sites are situated. They are to make the leases on such terms as they please. They could grant leases for as long as they chose, and without compensation if they saw fit.

The committee on public lands will approve of the substitute. The states represented on it are Minnesota, Wyoming, South Dakota, Utah, California, Idaho, Washington, North Dakota, Nevada, Oregon, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas, and Alabama. There are water power sites in the public domain in most of these states. The states and local communities are impatient to get control of them so that they may be developed at once. It is only natural that the senators from such states should vote as their constituents wish them to. It is not to be wondered at that they are unanimously of the opinion that the federal government has no right in water power except for purposes of navigation. The constitutional contention is a stalking horse which they hope may answer their purpose.

The objection to turning the matter over to the states is that it would result in hasty, improvident development. These new states are as much bent on the immediate exploitation of their natural resources—as ready to sacrifice the future to the present—as were most of the older states in the days of their heedless youth. They would not make a wise use of the power the substitute bill would give them. The evil influences which have been potent in some of the states of the far west would become the beneficiaries of the bounty of congress.

These natural resources which the states would waste if given control of them now should be held by the national government as a trustee for the future citizens of those states. Other states which are not directly interested in the matter should not allow the inheritance of those citizens to be wasted. When the new states shall have come to years of discretion they may be trusted to make a wise use of natural resources, but not now.

Water power development by the national government would mean slower but wiser development. Communities might call the deliberate methods of the national government indifference or neglect. They might call the requirements of leases illiberal and a check on enterprise. But those who go slowly go safely, and the states would not go slowly if the matter were left to them.

TAKE A VACATION OR MAKE YOUR WILL.

Another business man, who worked eighteen hours a day and who never in his life had a vacation, is dead in the prime of his activity. He was gray haired long before his age justified it. He was easily first in the city in his particular line, but to hear him talk you would suppose he was at the bottom and fighting for his business life.

He boasted that he never took a vacation and yet he complained that other people were able to do so. He was in his shop early and late, and most of his time was taken up with details which should have been left to his assistants. Originally robust in health, confinement, lack of exercise, or association with outside life so drew upon his physical capital that when he added worry to his other minus quantities he soon was on the down grade.

Fortunately this class of business men is comparatively small. The saving grace of business life in this competitive age is recreation, daily, weekly, monthly, or yearly in the form of vacations. The rest time is the safety valve which prevents explosions. It prevents premature death, keeps the madhouses from being filled with "prominent business men." The golf links, the tennis courts, the fishing country, the north woods, the automobile and the flowing road, the European journey are all outlets by which the superfluous steam is let off.

It may be only a month or a fortnight, it may even be but a week-end trip now and again, but it relieves the strain and serves to slough off business cares. The man who cannot take a vacation might as well send for his attorney and make his will.

THE MOTORCYCLE SQUAD.

Friday saw the beginning of work by Chief Steward's motorcycle squad, a feature of police service which should have been introduced years ago. New York and other cities have had policemen mounted in this way who have long since proved the motorcycle one of the most efficient aids to the service.

Not only has the increase in automobile traffic rendered the motorcycle squad necessary in large cities but it has justified itself in its stoppage of runaway horses, the capture of flying criminals, and other services to the public. Its introduction here just as the automobiles have begun to crowd the thoroughfares and the reckless chauffeurs are tempted to joy rides is particularly timely.

The motorcycle can outspeed most automobiles, and a policeman mounted upon one can easily overhaul a runaway horse or a man using his legs. Feats of wonderful daring have been accomplished by the "motor cops" of New York, and we look confidently to see the Chicago squad successfully prove the worth of the machine as a police aid.

THE RESTRAINT OF MR. FAIRBANKS.

"For one full year," said Gov. Marshall when greeting Mr. Fairbanks on his return, "this distinguished citizen of Indiana has been encircling the globe. He has visited all lands, and everywhere he has maintained the dignity of American citizenship. He comes back to us, marvelous as it may seem, without the blood of man or beast upon his hands."

It is indeed marvelous, and we are well nigh dumb with wonder that this impetuous and fiery man should have restrained his pugnacious nature for such a period. Accustomed as he is to tracking the savage pawpaw to its lair and capturing it alive; to attacking the persimmon and tearing it limb from limb, we cannot understand how he kept himself from plunging into East Indian jungles, barehanded and unarmed, and dragging forth the royal Bengal tiger by the tail while the native bush beaters fled in terror from the scene.

Any one who has been privileged to read that scarce and valuable biography of Mr. Fairbanks, published a few years ago, will remember the thrilling recital of the perils he underwent as a pioneer's boy in Ohio and Indiana during the frontier days of those states, and how, single handed and alone, he conquered the deadly sycamore. There was no mention there of the perils he encountered when venturing among the bulls and bears of Wall street. This he through modesty suppressed, as we have no doubt he has suppressed his deeds upon the trip around the world. We cannot believe that it has been as uneventful as he would have us understand, and we live in hope that when he shall write the chronicle of this globe encircling journey there will be set down the true account of those things which will cause our very hair to curdle and our blood to stand on end.

A DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH.

The committee of one hundred of the American Association for the Advancement of Science is making a vigorous campaign for the creation at Washington of a department of health with a cabinet seat for its head. Sixteen reasons are urged for this establishment. Part of them refer to the economies of administration sure to come from consolidation of existing government agencies. The rest relate themselves to the activities which might properly be connected with such a department. In a way the campaign is the outcome of the widespread popular interest in conservation of national resources, the public health having been brought into the foreground as the most important of all the nation's possessions, the tremendous aggregate of annual loss having been expressed in terms of dollars and cents in such a way as to excite a great deal of discussion in all parts of the country. Two presidents have indicated belief in the importance of the participation of the central government in the study and solution of such public health problems. Mr. Roosevelt's indorsement of a bureau of health was repeated by President Taft in his first annual message, in which he recalled the growing interest of the medical profession in favor of concentrated effort, indicated several ways in which the government might assist the cause, and cited the establishment and the activities of the department of agriculture as a precedent which might justify the participation of the national administration in matters for which long established constitutional policy has asserted state jurisdiction alone. By using the alternative "bureau or department" the president has appeared to be willing to go further than his predecessor in connection with this subject.

After long conference with representatives of the American Medical association the committee of one hundred has decided to work for a department rather than for a bureau. It is championing the bill introduced by Senator Owen, which provides for a new department and for the enlargement of the president's cabinet by the addition of a new secretary of health. The possibilities of such a department are suggested by what has been done in agriculture in recent years. Careful study, the collation of statistics and other information, the systematic publication of bulletins, cordial coöperation with state and municipal authorities in matters of sanitation, treatment of epidemics, and improvement of living conditions, the preparation of a code of health regulations, and the encouragement of uniform legislation are some of the things which might be undertaken by the department with cumulative power as the years pass. If constitutional objections can be avoided and harmonious agreement secured, the proposed step might prove of farreaching value to the nation.

It afflicts us to read of the disorderly scenes that marked the dissolving of the Hungarian parliament, during which the prime minister and the minister of agriculture were injured by the "throwing of books and hurling of inkstands," to such an extent that the emperor felt moved to express his sincere sympathy for those persecuted statesmen. How unlike the closing hours of a session of our own congress, where all is love, fellowship, and brotherly kindness!

The circumstance that the word "Foss" means ditch, and that the Massachusetts gentleman of that name is the last one elected to office, doesn't throw any additional light on the situation, either.

The proposition to have the United States senators at Washington bathed and massaged at the public expense fell through, as might have been foreseen. The watchdogs of the treasury objected. Yet a lot of the members of the lower house will get a good rubbing down in their own districts next fall—and it will be at the public expense.

There must be some mistake in the statement that Dr. Cook has "spent a great deal of money" in defending his claims as the discoverer of the north pole. That is the way he made his money.

It is painful, and even humiliating, to learn that quotations on aldermen in Pittsburg have dropped, in a few cases, to the paltry, insignificant figure of $50.

MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

[Copyright: 1910: By the Brentwood Company.]

PRINCE JOACHIM of Prussia, the youngest son of the German emperor and who is now 19 years of age, having outgrown the delicacy of his youth, is to enter the navy early next month and to devote himself henceforth to a maritime career.

That he should have delayed going to sea until his nineteenth year, instead of joining some school ship or naval academy at the age of 14, is due not only to his former condition of health but also to the new regulations inaugurated by the emperor, according to which young men are no longer to be accepted as probationers for commissions in the navy until they have completed their high school education and received their diploma of graduation. This rule has been instituted owing to the fact that nowadays a much higher degree of general instruction is required on the part of naval officers than formerly.

Young men can obtain more of this general instruction at the so-called gymnasiums and high schools than at naval colleges, and it is held that they should know quite as much as the ordinary well educated civilians before taking up the special branches of study needed for the navy.

Prince Joachim is to join the naval school ship Hertha, which has about fifty naval cadets on board and which has more than once been seen in American waters. It is the school ship on which Prince Joachim's elder brother, Prince Adalbert, served.

Now that the kaiser's brother, Prince Henry, has been placed on the retired list with the rank of grand admiral, these two sons of his—namely: Adalbert and Joachim—will be the only Prussian princes in the German navy.

For although Prince Henry's two sons, Prince Waldemar and Prince Sigismond, hold honorary commissions as lieutenants in the navy, yet their father does not wish them to actually join the service, Waldemar, the elder of the two princes, who has just celebrated his twenty-first birthday, being to all intents and purposes an invalid and just at the present moment the inmate of the sanitarium near Dresden.

Emperor William deserves a great deal of credit for thus putting his boys in the navy and thereby endeavoring to popularize the service. For of all the two score reigning houses of the sovereign states constituting the German empire there are not more than three or four that have any representative in the commissioned ranks of the Teuton fleet.

Indeed, about the only one is that young Prince Reuss, who two years ago was seized with such sudden illness at Havana as to necessitate an immediate operation, his mother, a duchess of Mecklenburg-Schwerin by birth, crossing the Atlantic to bring him home.

There was also a Duke Frederick William of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, who lost his life through the foundering of the destroyer which he commanded, along with all his crew, in one of those hurricanes that periodically sweep over the Baltic. He was engaged at the time to the German empress' sister, Princess Feodore of Schleswig-Holstein, who has declined all subsequent offers of marriage, and, greatly beloved by both the emperor and empress, has achieved for herself a name in literature as the author of a couple of successful novels.

Lord Carbery, whose Irish home, Castle Freke, a grand old place in County Cork, has just been destroyed by fire (the magnificent organ and most of the family portraits, including a couple of superb Vandykes, having perished in the flames), is only 16 years old, and, although an Irish peer and an Irish baronet, is of ancient Welsh descent.

His ancestors, however, have been settled in the Emerald isle since the latter part of the sixteenth century, and Castle Freke came into the possession of one of his forbears, the son of the first Lord Carbery, through his marriage with Grace, only child and sole heiress of Sir Ralph Freke, in the reign of George I. The eldest son of this union, George Evans Freke, fell in love with the daughter of a Col. Stamer of Carnelly, but the affection was not reciprocated. Owing to the wealth and the honors to which young Evans Freke was heir Col. Stamer insisted upon his daughter giving her hand to him. The maiden seemed to yield, and the wedding day arrived.

In those days any man at a wedding who failed to get more than half-seas-over with the good cheer was held to be guilty of positive discourtesy. A special point was always made of priming the bridegroom with plenty of Dutch courage for the ceremony. The marriage took place in due course. But when the bridegroom recovered his sober senses on the following day he found that for the lady of his love her younger and homelier sister, Anne, had been substituted and that his fiancée had been the authoress of the conspiracy. Stung to madness, he assailed both her and his nominal wife with invectives, and, leaving the house, never set eyes upon either of them again, dying of dissipation on the continent in 1769.

The first Lord Carbery, I may add, owed the honor to his father, who was one of the principal promoters of the revolution that brought William III. and Queen Mary to the throne. He was offered a seat in the house of lords as a reward, but declined it in favor of his eldest son and namesake. The patent was made out with the unusual provision that in default of descendants in the male line of the first lord it should go to the other descendants in the male line of his father.

The seventh lord was a most charming and witty man, full of fun and humor in spite of his being deaf and dumb, and so clever that by watching the lips of his only daughter, Georgina, now the wife of Lord Bandon, and who was devoted to him, he was able to understand without difficulty what she was saying.

Charles Mallet, the new financial secretary of the war department in England and member of parliament for Plymouth, the man, in fact, who, subject to the secretary of state for war, has the direction of the entire finances of the British army and the preparation of the annual military estimates, is the author of a remarkable work on the French revolution, a subject concerning which he is able to speak with a certain amount of authority.

He is descended from one of the most interesting figures of the revolutionary period, Mallet du Pau, a Huguenot of Genevan extraction, who edited in the early years of the revolution the famous "Mercure de France," undertook the hazardous expedition to seek aid from Emperor Leopold of Germany for Louis XVI., and was thereupon forced, in order to escape the fury of the terrorist leaders, to flee to England, where he enjoyed the friendship of many prominent politicians and took an active part in the defense of Warren Hastings, dying in London in 1800.

His grandson was the late Sir Louis Mallet, undersecretary of state for India, and among his great-grandsons is the subject of this notice—namely: the new financial secretary of the war department—as well as the latter's cousin, the registrar general of England, and Louis du Pau Mallet, assistant undersecretary of state for foreign affairs.

Charles Mallet's book upon the French revolution created such an impression on the great London publishing house of Nisbet & Co. when he submitted the MS. to them that they not only undertook its publication but also invited him to become a member of their firm, to which he belongs today, being the only publisher forming part of the administration.

BUSSE'S STREET PROGRAM.

[Louisville Courier Journal.]

Mayor Busse of Chicago made a trip of inspection over the streets of his city a few days ago and found out a great many things that surprised him. About all he had to say after looking over 108 miles of streets was something about "shameful conditions." Then he got busy among his subordinates and as a result an active movement for repairing and cleaning streets is in progress.

Some of the undertakings on the mayor's program are the renovating of all alleys and the repair of all streets and pavements. Public service corporations which have been tearing up streets and sidewalks for their own purposes will be required to make repairs immediately. Plans are to be formulated for the removal of sweepings and garbage by street cars wherever practicable. Contractors who use the streets and sidewalks without permits for construction material are to be prosecuted unless they remove the obstructing material after the first warning. Persons who dump ashes on sidewalks are to be warned and the practice of leaving buggies, wagons, and other vehicles on the sidewalks is to be stopped. The street car companies are to be ordered to make repairs where they have damaged the streets and the steam railways to clean and repair the streets below their viaducts.

This program, if carried out, will add much to Chicago's cleanliness and to the comfort of the citizens.

BALLADE OF SPRING'S UNREST.

[Reprinted.]

Up in the woodland where Spring
Comes as a laggard the breeze
Whispers the pine that the King,
Fallen, has yielded the keys
To his White Palace, and flees
Northward o'er mountain and dale.
Speed, then, the hour that frees!
Ho for the pack and the trail!

Northward my fancy takes wing.
Restless am I, ill at ease.
Pleasures the city can bring
Lose now their power to please.
Barren, all barren, are these;
Town life's a tedious tale;
That cup is drained to the lees—
Ho for the pack and the trail!

Ho for the morning I sling
Pack at my back, and with knees
Brushing a thoroughfare, fling
Into the green mysteries;
One with the birds and the bees,
One with the squirrel and quail,
Night, and the stream's melodies—
Ho for the pack and the trail!

Pictures, and music, and teas,
Theaters—books even—stale.
Ho for the smell of the trees!
Ho for the pack and the trail!

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. About fifty relatives and friends of the young people were present and at the appointed hour Miss Grace Miller took her place at the organ and played Mendelssohn's wedding march, to the strains of which the young couple, unattended, entered the parlor and took their place. VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

BEAUTY DOCTOR FOR CHICAGO.

Chicago, March 24.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—During the rapid growth of a great city like Chicago traffic becomes a thing of great importance. The maintenance of the streets and boulevards is a colossal task. Many ideas are cast concerning the proposed boulevard link connecting the north with the south side. One of Chicago's best sites for a boulevard is taken up by an ever smoking railroad. Think what a beautiful thoroughfare could be put in its place! If the trains were run in a concrete subway the top could be covered and made into a fine roadway. Of course power would be furnished by electricity. Another thing that would benefit the public would be a way to use the refuse from wrecked buildings that is being dumped carelessly here and there in the lake. Why not make some use of it? All that it is doing now is to pollute our only source of drinking water. This refuse could be used for filling in and making "beauty spots" along the lake front. What could look better than a "South Shore drive" edged here and there with islands covered with trees and shrubbery? This idea would harmonize with the proposed island for the "Field Columbian museum." What Chicago needs is a treatment at the beauty artist's. Could not this be done? If not, why not?

THOUGHTS INDUCED BY "THE FOURTH ESTATE."

Chicago, March 23.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I took your excellent advice to "go see it," and never have I enjoyed a play so much as I did "The Fourth Estate." What would you do? How would you act? And would you face absolute destruction in defending what you knew to be the truth? You may answer truthfully enough at the time, of course. But think it over, ponder a while, leave nothing unanswered, and then, and not until then, express your opinion.

We all know—or at least we think we know—just how wicked this world is, but console ourselves in saying, "O, well, 'tis a good old world after all," and letting it go at that. I say all, but probably it would be safer to say the greater majority, for the character portrayed so well in "The Fourth Estate" whether or not ever actually existed in real life will at least accelerate the development of this rare species.

Put yourself into the position this man had by his own doing placed himself. Not a so-called business man of today, but one of a type whose existence is practically unknown in the swirl and swish of city life. What a turmoil ensues when such a character makes his appearance among the common, everyday business men, where money reigns as something supreme! What a relief, what an exhilaration it is to find a man, a real live man, whose brain is his own and not the property of others, to be bought and sold by them for their benefit! Come forth, ye lovers of the truth and stand up for what you know to be right. Above all, own your own brain. It was given to you—why not keep it?

ITALIANS AND CRIME.

Chicago, March 24.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—It is considered unjust by all of the Italians in this city that every time a mysterious crime is committed anywhere near an Italian settlement the papers, in large letters, attribute such crime to the Italians or to the so-called "Black Hand," just as though only Italians were capable of committing crimes and of the most atrocious kinds. Such an attitude on the part of the papers brings all Italians into ill repute and causes hatred and may possibly stir up a race war in certain districts.

It has been demonstrated repeatedly by the arrest and conviction of offenders that blackmailing is more frequent among other nationalities than among Italians and that the so-called "Black Hand," which the papers treat as a secret criminal organization, exclusively of Italians, has never been shown even to exist.

I do not deny that there is blackmailing among Italians or that crimes are committed by them, but I do protest against the sensational notoriety created by newspapers in general and in connecting the name Italian with any crimes committed in or near an Italian neighborhood. This we Italians consider unjust. Italians never have been guilty of those crimes which we hear about daily—viz: holdups of trains and street cars in wild west style, burglary, picking pockets, and the like. Their offenses are generally those of being too ready with their weapon on account of some personal injustice suffered by them, and not usually for the purpose of extortion, as the public is led to believe by the press.

"LOOKING AFTER" THE UNITED STATES.

[Baltimore Sun.]

"The Lord looks after children, drunken men, and the United States," says President Taft. It's a good thing some one looks after it and doesn't leave it to the land grabbers, tariff beneficiaries, grasping corporations, and politicians. For the Guggenheims beset it, the Aldriches flourish mightily, the Ballingers hold high places, and the Hitchcocks are at the ruler's right hand.

EAST OPPOSED TO ALDRICH LAW.

[Oshkosh Northwestern.]

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has completed a canvass of the Republican and independent newspapers of the eastern states which shows that public sentiment in that part of the country is just as strongly opposed to the new Aldrich-Cannon tariff law as is the sentiment of the public in the west and middle west. Moreover, it is further shown that Republicans and independents of the east are as decidedly opposed to Cannon for speaker as are western Republicans in spite of the fact that "special privilege" and the favored interests generally have their headquarters in the east and that the official representatives of the people of the east are closely allied with Cannonism.

The states covered in this canvass included New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Rhode Island, Connecticut, and the six New England states, and the result of the poll is little less than remarkable. On the tariff law the total result was 197 in favor to 789 opposed, and on the Cannon issue 131 in favor to 879 opposed. This is strongly corroborative of the claim that insurgency is fast growing in favor in the eastern states and that the western progressives will have plenty of company when it comes to a test of strength between the "regulars" and the progressives. And it is something for the Republican leaders at Washington to ponder over—before it is too late.

ALL EYES TOWARDS EGYPT.

[Des Moines Register and Leader.]

It seems to be accepted by everybody that Mr. Pinchot has gone to Europe at the special request of Mr. Roosevelt.

All sorts of conjectures are permissible and are being indulged in. One thing alone is certain—the former president cannot become involved in the situation without going in all over.

It is current rumor that Mr. Garfield will decline the Republican nomination for governor of Ohio, asserting that he stands on the Roosevelt platform and cannot consistently accept a position that would commit him to Taft.

Mr. Pinchot and Mr. Garfield were the trusted lieutenants of the former president. It can hardly be suspected that they contemplate his disapproval. If they have any assurances of approval then, indeed, there will be a situation.

It must be humiliating to the president that while his rambling offhand talks are hardly second page position all eyes are turned towards Egypt. The president has had the opportunity to impress his individuality on the country, but apparently has missed it.

MR. ALDRICH'S COURAGE.

[Peoria Journal.]

Senator Aldrich said, the other day: "I have opposed the president when it took a good deal of courage to do so."

The public is perfectly well aware of this fact, Senator Aldrich. You not only opposed him, but did it successfully.

That is one of the things for which the people are holding you to account.

You opposed him in endeavoring to cause the party to live up to its promises.

There is no doubt that we would have had a much better tariff bill if the president could have had his say in the matter. But you opposed him, senator, and did it successfully. You had the courage to do so.

POLICE FIGHT FOR BOYLE'S RAKEOFF

Believe Interest Money Belongs to Pension Fund and Prepare to Recover.

MERRIAM BODY ACTS.

Summonses Officials to Tell What They Know; Mayor Says He Is Powerless.

It has been decided by officers of the United Police that the interest money which Thomas Boyle, treasurer of the police pension fund, has been retaining for the last four years is legitimate property of the fund, and they are going to try to get it back.

Michael J. Sullivan, attorney for the United Police, has been looking up the law for several days, and has advised some of the police officials that Treasurer Boyle could be compelled to return the money, and that he is ready to commence suit against him. He holds that the statute declares no member of the pension board shall receive any emolument, and that under any dictionary definition that can be obtained the receipt of interest on the funds held by a member of the board must be construed as emolument.

While the United Police officials have been making up their minds to this, the Merriam commission has decided to go into the matter a little more deeply. Notices were sent out yesterday to Treasurer Boyle, Attorney John W. Beckwith, and Secretary Carlos F. White to appear before the Merriam commission on Monday afternoon to explain about the pension fund and interest.

Officers Confer on Matter.

Attorney Sullivan held a conference with E. J. Dodd, chairman of the United Police executive committee, during the afternoon, at which the subject was discussed. Neither Sullivan nor Dodd would say what had passed between them, but it was stated that there would be a conference between the attorney and the members of the executive committee either this afternoon or on Sunday.

"I am convinced that the interest money belongs to the police pension fund," said Attorney Sullivan. "I have looked up the law in the matter and I have prepared an opinion which I will submit to the executive committee to the effect that there is good reason to believe that we can obtain a return of this money.

"It may be that Mr. Boyle will see the force of our argument and will return the money to the fund as soon as we make a demand upon him. I probably shall call upon his attorney and make such a demand in the next day or two.

"If, however, Mr. Boyle refuses to give up this money, which seems to be the attitude he is taking, then we undoubtedly will commence suit."

Character of Suit Undecided.

"I cannot say now what the nature of the suit will be, but I will look up the law a little more and decide whether we shall bring mandamus proceedings or enter a civil suit of debt. Possibly we shall find that the state auditor is the person to bring the action, in which case a demand will be made upon him to do so."

Mayor Busse also discussed the pension matter. He has been looking into the law and has decided that he is powerless to act, as the control of the fund is independent of the city officials.

"I find that under the statutes I am empowered to appoint two members of the board, but cannot compel them to resign," he said.

Both Corporation Counsel Brundage and State's Attorney Wayman are looking up the law in the matter to see what action should be taken. It is understood that Mr. Brundage has about made up his mind that Mr. Boyle is not entitled to the interest. He is not convinced, however, it is said, that the city can take any action, but is inclined to the belief that a suit could be established by a taxpayer.

JURORS PROMISE TO STEEL HEARTS TO WIDOW'S WILES.

Odd Pledge Exacted from Talesmen in Schram Case—Aged Men with Young Wives Barred from Service.

Men susceptible to magnetic influence, aged men with young wives, and unmarried men were barred from serving as jurors yesterday in the trial of the suit to annul the marriage between Frederick Schram and his young widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Fritz Schram Stern. The entire panel of sixty men was exhausted before twelve suitable talesmen could be obtained.

Attorney Quin O'Brien represents the contesting heirs, who if successful in this litigation, will start proceedings to invalidate the will of the decedent in the hope that his estate will be divided among them.

The contestants assert that the big, bright eyes and the winsome smile of the widow unduly influenced the aged Schram. Because of this Attorney O'Brien, as a final test compelled the jurors to make the following unusual promise:

"Will you give me your pledge to steel yourself against the hypnotic influence of the defendant?" asked Mr. O'Brien.

"Will you ignore her smiles and her attempts at coquetry and flirtation?

"She is a clever actress; her manner is intended to impress you; there is only one time when she is privileged to make evidence for herself, and that is when she is on the witness stand. Can you resist?"

None of the jurors admitted the weaknesses the lawyer portrayed.

FEDERAL COURTS ARE CLOSED.

Four Judges Out of City, but Two Will Return to the Bench Next Week.

No United States courts were in session in Chicago yesterday.

This does not mean that the vacation period has arrived nor that the federal government has quit doing business in the northern district of Illinois. Beef packers, oleo "moonshiners," counterfeiters, mail pilferers, and others indicted by the federal grand jury need not rejoice, for the two judges who attend to criminal cases will be on the bench again next week.

Here is where the judges are: Judge Grosscup, on vacation in Egypt; Judge Seaman, on vacation in California; Judge Carpenter, on vacation at French Lick, Ind.; Judge Landis, at the home of his mother, who is seriously ill at Logansport, Ind.

PROTEST CITY SMOKE SUITS.

Stationary Engineers Ask Inspector Bird to Make Allowances for Bad Coal Supply.

Resolutions protesting against the indiscriminate filing of suits in the Municipal court against smoke violators were passed at a meeting of the Chicago Association of Stationary Engineers yesterday.

In a letter to City Smoke Inspector Paul P. Bird the engineers pointed out that for the last two months the supply of coal for their furnaces has been so bad it has been practically impossible to keep their furnaces from smoking at times.

"There are times," the letter says, "when we must use coal not adapted to our furnaces or close them down, and to enforce a strict rule of filing suit for two violations within thirty days will cause a hardship."

Seek to Oust Kenosha Car Line.

Three property owners of Kenosha asked an injunction yesterday in the courts at that city to restrain the Kenosha Electric railway from operating its line. They assert the company has forfeited its rights.

HOLDS DUAL DEATH SECRET

Chicago Girl Admits Knowing McDonald Tragedy Cause.

WAS A "BROTHER" TO HER.

Murder of Bride Shocks Nurses with Whom She Studied.

Miss Marion Burke, owner of a delicatessen store at 2010 South Park avenue, admitted yesterday that she knows the secret trouble that drove H. D. McDonald, Illinois Central railroad claim agent, to shoot his wife and then himself Thursday night at Fairfield, Ia. She refused to say what the trouble was, however, other than that it concerned women.

Miss Burke formerly lived in the Lake View apartment building, in which McDonald had rooms, and that she was one of the women concerned was indicated by her statement that McDonald was "a dear brother" to her. Asked what kind of a "brother" that was, she said their relationship was brotherly and sisterly in everything except ties of blood.

"Do you mean that he wanted to marry you, and that when you rejected him, you told him you would be a dear sister to him?" she was asked.

"Not exactly," she replied.

Says She Didn't Know Bride.

Miss Burke said that for her to reveal the nature of McDonald's troubles would be equivalent to breaking her promise with the dead. She said she did not know Eva McDaniel, the bride of six weeks whom McDonald murdered, nor a woman in Cincinnati who also claims to have been his wife.

Once, while being questioned, she was on the point of telling what she knew of the murderer and suicide, but changed her mind until she could telephone a man to whom she referred as "the chief."

The telephone conversation with "the chief" evidently convinced her that it would be best to have nothing more to say. She refused to answer any further questions.

That McDonald was a bigamist was indicated by letters found in his pockets after the shooting. One of these was written by a woman in Cincinnati. She wanted to know when he expected to return to Cincinnati and what he intended to do with their child.

It was learned during the day that J. E. McDaniel, father of the murdered woman, received a letter a few days before the shooting from a woman in Chicago. It was unsigned and warned McDaniel that he had better do something to protect his daughter's name.

Mysterious Letter to McDaniel.

"Ask your son-in-law what he meant when he promised to love and cherish me," this letter said. "Tell him to come to Chicago and clear this matter if he dares. I am writing that you may protect your daughter's name. Mr. McDonald can fill in my name. I am only one of the girls he has deceived."

Nurses at St. Luke's hospital, where Mrs. McDonald, before her marriage, attended the nurses' school, were shocked to learn of her death. Miss M. E. Johnstone, the head nurse, said she knew nothing of McDonald, but that he and his bride seemed happy when they left Chicago a few weeks ago.

GREED OF CHICAGO DEALERS HURTS HOMES AND FARMS.

Retailers Make 150 Per Cent on Potatoes, While Countless Bushels Rot in Growers' Cellars.

Farmers will lose millions of bushels of potatoes this season because Chicago retailers insist on making a profit of 150 to 200 per cent on the money they invest in this commodity.

Such is the statement made by local potato brokers, who assert that the retailers have not followed the downward movement of wholesale prices, and that the consumer has not been made aware that potatoes are the cheapest food product now on the market.

"If retailers sold potatoes at 10 cents a peck they would make 25 to 66 2-3 per cent profit," said C. W. Holding, a broker with offices in the Ogden building. "Retailers pay 30 to 40 cents a bushel for potatoes. They buy by weight and get sixty pounds for a bushel. They charge the consumer 15 to 25 cents a peck, sell by the measure, and give only twelve pounds for a peck. This allows them five pecks to a bushel or 75 cents to $1.25, a net profit of 150 to more than 200 per cent.

"Potato growers in Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa, and Missouri have millions of bushels of potatoes in their cellars. Only about sixty days remain before new potatoes will be coming to market, but brokers here believe that farmers would be enabled to sell most of their holdings before then if retailers would lower their prices to correspond to the low wholesale figures and share their profits with the housewife."

FRANK MACKEY, SOCIETY MAN, HUSHES "LOAN SHARK" SUIT.

Woman Who Charged Usury Receives Cash Outside of Court to Drop Attack on Collateral Concern.

Frank J. Mackey, international society man and head of a number of collateral loan companies, has compromised the suit brought against the Fidelity Loan company, one of his principal Chicago concerns, by Mrs. Jennie Nicholson, who charged usuary.

The woman alleged she gave a $300 piano as security for a $50 loan, and that when the interest increased the debt to $89, Mackey's employés sold the instrument. She sued to recover the difference between the debt and the value of the piano. She and her lawyer, Edward J. Ader, it is said, were encouraged by other victims of alleged "loan sharks" to "put Mackey out of business."

When Mackey heard of the impending trouble he came here from Pasadena, Fla., on March 4. The sole purpose of his trip, he said, was to visit his sister, Mrs. Harry M. McIntosh, 1150 Lake Shore drive, but unfriendly persons asserted that he came to look after the threatened disruption of his business.

The suit came up in Municipal Judge Blake's court yesterday, when it was announced that a settlement had been effected out of court. It is said Mrs. Nicholson received $110.

CHICAGO SCHOOLS BACK IN THE FOLD

Accrediting Body Spurns Committee's Move to Blacklist Institutions Here.

ALL IS PEACE ONCE MORE.

Reports to Association to Be Made Only Once in Three Years from Now On.

Chicago's public schools are not to be eliminated from the accredited lists of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. Although stricken from the lists by the organization's commission on accredited schools at a meeting Thursday night because of failure to comply with the rules, the association itself yesterday restored the local institutions to their long held place.

Knowing much embarrassment and ill feeling between local school officials and the association could not help being the result of the action, members of the commission figured out the remedy, offered it before the convention at the Auditorium hotel, and carried it through without scarcely a hint of excitement.

The nearest approach to a storm arose when Prof. G. B. Alton, inspector for the association in Minnesota, entered upon a speech that had in it a bit of roast for the school officials here. George E. MacLean of the University of Iowa, chairman of the commission, interrupted the speaker with the suggestion that he was out of order. C. M. Woodward, chairman of the meeting, so ruled, and the storm clouds passed.

Amendments Do the Work.

The first of the two amendments to the association rules governing accredited lists—amendments that were thought out by members of the commission as a remedy of the breach that was imminent—was one providing that no school which has been in the association for five years or more may be eliminated from the lists without at least a year's notice. The second of the remedying amendments was one providing that no school having twelve or more teachers need make reports of its condition more frequently than every three years. It was the yearly reports that the Chicago school officials opposed.

With the new amendments in force the Chicago schools may remain on the accredited lists at least three years longer without submitting to further inspections. President E. J. James of the University of Illinois moved the adoption of the amendments. A second followed quickly, and the discussion that came up was for the most part insignificant.

Call It "Happy Solution."

"And this is a happy solution of the situation," said Chairman MacLean of the commission. "The inspectors could make no other report in the case of the Chicago schools than was made, and the commission could do nothing but strike them off when the report had been heard. We hadn't power to change the regulations of the association. That had to be done by the convention itself."

"Many schools forget or neglect to furnish the reports that are required each year," said Mr. Alton during the course of discussion. "But we have been shown an instance now of authorities of some fine schools coming to a flat decision not to present the required reports. They have practically withdrawn from our association, but I contend they cannot withdraw."

Here Mr. MacLean interrupted and Mr. Alton submitted without protest to the ruling that he was out of order.

Mrs. Young's Speech Ready.

Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of the Chicago schools, was at the meeting, and was prepared to make a speech, but it was not necessary. There was an indication by Mrs. Young that had a speech from her been necessary she would have spoken her mind frankly.

"It seems that we are still in the association," she said after the meeting. "That is all right. I have no complaint to make. Neither would I had it been the other way. I think the association came to the conclusion that it couldn't well afford to lose us."

The forenoon session was not free from excitement, because of charges that certain colleges were transgressing on the association rules. However, this bit of a squabble was satisfactorily adjusted, leaving the entire convention in a good humor for the afternoon's work. There were several papers on the program, together with open discussion on "Organization and Work of Technical High Schools" and "Coöperative Industrial Education." The convention will close this morning.

Consolidated Policy Holders Are Safe, Says Investigator.

PRESTIGE DREW BIG MEN.

Prominent Bankers Found on Armstrong's Board.

While Actuary Lee J. Woolfe and Insurance Commissioner John S. Darst at Charleston, W. Va., proceeded further yesterday with their investigation of the affairs of the Consolidated Casualty company and Robert B. Armstrong's régime as president, local authorities and directors did likewise in Chicago.

It was declared that every effort is being made by the insurance officials and the directors' committee, which relieved Armstrong of his duties as president, to straighten out the company's affairs and place the concern in such shape as to save policyholders from loss.

Commissioner Darst wired information that the policyholders are safe. The position of the holders of stock has not been determined.

Friends Still Uphold Armstrong.

Friends of Armstrong continued to defend him and even went so far as to say that Actuary Woolfe, who is connected with the office of Actuary S. H. Woolfe in New York, is prejudiced against Armstrong and favorable toward the eastern casualty companies that are blamed by Armstrong for the attack upon the Consolidated.

A list of the board of directors of the Consolidated company shows the names of a number of prominent men whom Armstrong is declared to have drawn in with him on the strength of his position as former assistant secretary of the treasury under Leslie M. Shaw.

When the company was placed in operation bankers, capitalists, business men of various kinds, as well as former government officials, were made directors. One was M. J. Wade, former Iowa congressman, who was made vice president. David C. Owen, postmaster of Milwaukee, was another.

Others Who Were Interested.

Some others of prominence were Culpepper Exum, banker and capitalist of Birmingham, Ala.; William A. Field, general field superintendent for the Illinois Steel company; Thomas Kearns, banker and capitalist, Salt Lake City, Utah; Frank Knox, president National Bank of the Republic, Salt Lake City; John R. Mulvane, president of the Bank of Topeka; Herman P. H. Oehlrich, president Commercial bank, Columbus, O.; Ransom E. Olds, president Capital National bank, Lansing, Mich.; and M. L. Youth Says Girl Has Promised to Stand by Him—Father Denies Marriage Will Occur.

Boston, Mass., March 25.—[Special.]—George W. Coleman two years ago met the young woman in New York. He was supposed to be heir to a large fortune. Miss Hightower was studying in New York at the time and stopping with relatives.

Coleman says he told the whole story of his defalcation to Miss Hightower and that she told him he must face it out. He intended to cancel the engagement, but she said she wanted to help him in his trouble and that she would stand by him.

Shortly after his election to the Presidency Theodore Roosevelt visited Oakland. In a letter written in Oakland at that time to a friend in Washington, he said: "Oakland is a city, just across the bay from San Francisco, where one finds the soft air of Italy and the beauty of English villages combined with a spirit of Western Progress and commercial advantages which will some day, as far as I am able to judge from my limited investigations, make it the greatest railroad terminal on the Pacific Coast."

Manufacturing Opportunities of the highest order are awaiting development in Oakland—the gateway to the Orient and the geographical center of the great Pacific Coast. BUSINESS ACTIVE IN ALL BRANCHES

Quickening Effect in Trade Aided by the Advent of Fine Weather.

BASIS IS SUBSTANTIAL.

Excellent Outlook for Agriculture Augurs Well for General Situation.

In its weekly review of Chicago trade, Dun's Review, published today by R. G. Dun & Co., will say:

"Easter trade in the principal branches of distribution equals sanguine expectations. A high volume of payments through the banks is sustained and the trading defaults furnish a favorable comparison with previous years.

"Buying in the leading retail lines rose to new high proportions and business generally reflects the quickening derived from the advent of spring and the remarkably fine weather which prevails here and throughout the west.

"New building and heavy construction are advanced vigorously, and there is notable addition to workers employed at the mills and factories. Activity among the industries and transportation now compares satisfactorily with the best previous times, while the improving position draws strength for the future from the wider range of new demands for finished products.

Outlook Is Excellent.

"The excellent outlook in agriculture also imparts a basis of confidence, which augurs well for extending effort in new enterprises and profitable use of capital.

"Earnings of the Chicago steam roads surpass all former gross for this season of the year and threatened difficulties with workers are removed by higher wage concessions. Crop marketings maintain a liberal aggregate and advices testify to widespreading farm work and healthy appearance of winter wheat and rye throughout most of the belt. Westbound freight includes enormous quantities of heavy materials, factory outputs and general merchandise, while farmers yet buy freely of plantation needs, machinery, hardware and other supplies.

"Current bookings in iron and steel add measurably to the period of assured production in this district, with prices disclosing no appreciable change. Arrivals of the raw materials are inadequate in packing, but run amply in minor metals, hides, leather and lumber.

Gains Shown by Orders.

"Some gain appears in new orders for motive power, railway equipment, machinery, and electric lines. The woodworking branches mainly have substantial demands for future deliveries, and the number yards entered into busy times, with price tendencies firmer.

"Offerings of commercial paper have increased and the discount rate rose to 4½ per cent for choice names.

"Primary markets for foodstuffs continue adversely affected by high prices and the general buying reflects a conservative consumption of breadstuffs, provisions, and live stock.

"The total movement of grain at this port, 3,170,800 bushels, compares with 8,635,350 bushels last week and 6,018,517 bushels a year ago. Compared with 1909 receipts increased 24.2 per cent and shipments decreased 8.8 per cent. Flour receipts were 276,264 barrels, against 269,886 barrels last week, and 175,084 barrels a year ago, while the shipments were 185,786 barrels, against 150,948 barrels last week and 142,725 barrels in 1909.

"Total receipts of cattle, hogs, and sheep declined to 190,960 head, and compare with 194,627 head last week and 252,010 head last year.

Comparisons in Other Lines.

"Receipts of hides, 2,456,900 pounds, compare with 2,650,000 pounds last week and 2,794,098 pounds a year ago. Wool receipts were only 17,500 pounds, against none last week and 380,988 pounds in 1909.

Lumber receipts exhibit a moderate rise, 50,504,000 feet, comparing with 48,804,000 feet last week and 44,581,000 feet last year.

"Compared with the closings a week ago, cash prices are unchanged in flour, but lower in oats, ⅛ cent a bushel; lard, 5 cents a tierce, 4.62 hogs, 5 cents a hundredweight; and higher in wheat, ⅛ cent a bushel; corn, 1¼ cents; choice cattle, 15 cents a hundredweight; ribs, 37½ cents; sheep, 45 cents, and pork, 62½ cents a barrel.

"Bank clearings, $280,465,077, exceeded those of the corresponding week in 1909 by 12.7 per cent and compare with $222,409,514 in 1908.

"Failures reported in the Chicago district numbered 24, against 20 last week, 34 in 1909, and 39 in 1908. Those with liabilities more than $5,000 number 10, against 2 last week, 9 in 1909, and 12 in 1908."

Developments Generally Favorable.

New York, March 25.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

"The week's developments have been generally favorable. Chief among these has been the advent of warm spring weather, which, coupled with the near approach of Easter, has stimulated retail trade at all markets, allowed of expansion in the building trades, the preparation of the ground in the north for planting, the beginning of seeding of grain and cotton at the south, and of oats and vegetables in the middle regions of the country.

"The industrial situation, too, has improved in the collapse of the sympathetic strike at Philadelphia, the return to work of many thousands of idle hands there, and the submitting of the western railroad men's demands to arbitration. The situation is still not entirely clear, however, as the demands of the soft coal miners are yet to be met, and relations between some large eastern roads and their employés are not settled.

"In wholesale trade features are the slight improvement in jobbing trade reported as a result of the picking up of reorder business in spring goods at the west, the revision of bleached and brown cotton goods leading to some increase in business east and west, and the signs of improvement in foreign demand for cotton goods induced by attractive prices. Dry goods, millinery, light shoes, and spring wear generally show the best results of the warmer weather.

"Business failures in the United States for the week ending March 24 were 231, against 208 last week, 226 in the like week of 1909, 286 in 1908, 166 in 1907, and 169 in 1906."

Good Weather Aids Distribution.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade tomorrow will say:

"Good weather stimulates a large distribution of merchandise and reports from the leading trade centers and particularly those in the west and northwest speak of active markets in most lines. The iron and steel trade reports increased business, which is especially noteworthy in finished materials. This gain is accompanied by a continued decline in prices for pig iron.

"The 10 per cent revision in prices of bleached cottons begun by jobbers has extended to agents and a better volume of new business is coming forward. This revision brings quotations to a basis of 9 cents for Fruit of the Loom and 8⅝ cents for Lonsdale and Hills. It is now possible to do business at lower quotations for chambrays, chevlots, wide sheetings, heavy brown sheetings, and fine cottons. Jobbers' road salesmen are booking substantial orders for fall cottons for delivery to retailers, and the latter are doing a good Easter trade. Stocks are not cumbersome. The export trade on cotton goods for far eastern shipment reached 25,000 bales.

"Business in footwear shows some improvement, although contracts sent in by salesmen on the road are not as large as expected. In leather conditions are more satisfactory and trade is increasing."

Bank Clearings of the Week.

Bradstreet's bank clearings report for the week ending March 24 shows an aggregate of $3,061,034,000, as against $3,577,986,000 last week and $2,578,543,000 in the corresponding week last year. The following is a list of the cities:

GIRL SAW BOMB 36 PLACED: FEARED ONLY FIRECRACKER.

Hungarian Servant Thought Sputtering Fuse a Joke Until Explosion Came—Describes Man to Police.

Anna Howort, a Hungarian girl, employed as a domestic in the family of Paul Hertenstein, 412 South Halsted street, saw the man who placed bomb No. 36 that exploded in the rear of the Crystal Athletic club, at 414 South Halsted street, Thursday evening at 9 o'clock.

The Howort girl had gone into the alley to empty some refuse when she saw a man crouching over something he was trying to light. When a fuse started to sputter she thought it was a bunch of firecrackers and started back into the house. The fellow turned south and went down the alley. Fifteen minutes later there was an explosion that broke all windows within two blocks.

To the police of the Desplaines street station the girl described the man as heavy set and wearing a short overcoat.

Assistant Chief Schuettler and Inspector Hunt declare the bomb was a result of labor troubles, nonunion men having been employed by Robert D. Lincoln, owner of the athletic club.

"Lincoln admitted to me," said Inspector Hunt, "that he had been warned a month ago in a roundabout way that there was trouble in store for him."

J. O. Lindley, a plumber with a shop at 1139 West Van Buren street, who was arrested Thursday evening following the explosion, was released yesterday.

CORONER'S JURY HOLDS DOCTOR

Inquiry Into Death of Young Woman Leads to Order for Arrest of Physician.

In an unusual verdict a coroner's jury at the inquiry into the death of Miss Belle Irene Hanley, 341 Stanley terrace, held yesterday at Hursen's undertaking rooms, 2346 West Madison street, held Dr. R. J. C. Hamilton, a physician with offices at 1004 Sedgwick street, to the grand jury and ordered his apprehension by the police.

The young woman died on Tuesday in the Jefferson Park hospital from an illegal operation, which, she told Dr. T. D. Laftry, 16 North Kedzie avenue, was performed by "a Dr. Hamilton, living on Sedgwick street, near Oak street."

It is probable the physician will be arrested today. He denies any knowledge of the operation.

SMOKE PROBLEM NEAR SOLUTION?

Railroad Makes Test of an Invention in the Presence of Aldermen.

USED ON A LOCOMOTIVE.

Run of Twenty-eight Miles at Good Speed Is Without Soot or Cinders.

A successful demonstration of the smokeless locomotive, which has been tested in service on the Chicago Junction railway for several weeks, and which Inventor Francis J. Doyle claims will solve the smoke problem in large cities, was made yesterday afternoon for the benefit of members of the city council and representatives of the principal railroads.

The test was made during a trip from the stockyards to Chappell, Ill., on the tracks of the Belt railway. The train was made up of four coal cars and a business car, and made the round trip of about twenty-eight miles at an average speed of twenty-five miles an hour. There was no smoke, soot, or cinders.

Ald. Roberts, chairman of the smoke subcommittee of the local transportation committee; Ald. McInerny and Ald. Egan expressed themselves as satisfied with the smokeless qualities of the engine, although they left to the railroad men the question as to its practicability for hauling heavy trains.

Perfect Combustion the Principle.

The engine is operated on what is called the "Doylair" system, the principle of which is to secure perfect combustion of the gases in the coal without allowing them to escape from the stack in the form of smoke. Instead of feeding the fire the firebox is filled, and there is no draft through the stack. A current of air is forced through the bed of coal by a pair of fans, consuming the gases in the coal and leaving a bed of coke, which is consumed more slowly.

It is claimed that the perfect combustion secured with this device results in a saving of 25 to 35 per cent in fuel, besides the saving in continuous stoking of the fire.

The engine on which the device is installed is an old switching locomotive of small capacity. It is proposed to build a larger engine especially adapted to the new principle of combustion.

Will Be Tested Further.

About twenty master mechanics and engineers who were with the party seemed impressed with the fact that an engine could be run without making smoke. None would express an opinion as to the practical merits, wishing further information as to the capacity for train hauling. With this object in view another test is to be arranged for the purpose of testing the tractive power of the engine at different speeds.

George H. Groce has resigned as assistant to the general manager of the Illinois Central, effective April 1, to return to the railway supply business with the General Railway Signal company of Rochester, N. Y. Mr. Groce was connected with this company before going to the Illinois Central in 1904 as superintendent of telegraph. Last year he was promoted to the position of assistant to the general manager, which position will be abolished.

It is reported from New York that the long delayed inspection trip of Edwin Hawley and his associates over the western lines of the system is to begin within a few days, now that the deal for the acquisition of the Hocking Valley road has been completed.

POLICEMAN STOPS RUNAWAY; SAVES MANY AT CROSSINGS.

Officer Himself Is Hurt in Preventing Injury to Men and Women in State Street Morning Crowd.

Policeman B. A. Johnson, crossing guard at State and Monroe streets, prevented serious injury to a number of men and women in State street yesterday morning when he seized a runaway horse and stopped its flight after having been dragged fifty feet. Johnson suffered numerous cuts and bruises about the face, arms, and body, and was taken to his residence, 4950 West Ontario street.

The horse, which was attached to a single wagon belonging to the Modern Cleaning and Dyeing company, 350 East Forty-seventh street, became frightened when Harry Gibbers, 818 East Forty-seventh street, the driver, attempted to fasten the hitching weight to the bridle, and ran south in State street, crossing Monroe street.

At the time of the runaway all the crossings toward which the horse was heading were crowded with pedestrians.

MORE DESERT MADDEN RANKS

Lathers and Electrical Workers Quit 'Skinny's' Organization.

MEANS BODY'S DEATH KNELL

Arbitrators of Wage Dispute of Locomotive Firemen Are Named.

The death knell of Martin B. ("Skinny") Madden's Associated Building Trades, which, up to two years ago had an affiliated membership of more than fifty thousand building trades workers, was sounded yesterday by the withdrawal of the lathers' union and the electrical workers' union from the virtually defunct organization.

The electrical workers met under police protection at 275 La Salle street, in anticipation of a possible repetition of the affray which took place a week ago when Richard A. Shields was shot by President Ray C. McElheny. The meeting was marked by the complete defeat of the "Skinny" Madden faction and the adoption of a committee report demanding the resignation of the officers.

The officers, including Business Agent Harvey W. Raven, and "Skinny" Madden's first lieutenant, M. J. Boyle, who was Raven's assistant, took the hint and vacated their office. A special meeting of the union was called for April 2 to elect a new set of officers.

Suspicion of a Frame-up.

It was said the Madden faction will put up an opposition ticket. The fact that Raven and Boyle favored the action of withdrawing from Madden's central organization led the anti-Madden members to suspect a "frame-up." An effort will be made to elect a committee to investigate and to report on the advisability of joining the anti-Madden building trades council of the American Federation of Labor.

Shields, who was shot through the right lung, attended the meeting. Apparently he has recovered. McElheny, who is out on $20,000 bonds, presided. Raven demanded that the meeting adjourn on account of the presence of the police, but McElheny's decision to proceed was sustained by the membership.

The plumbers, gasfitters, and architectural iron workers withdrew from affiliation with the Madden organization within the last two weeks. There are now practically no building trades unions of any importance in the Associated Building Trades. A majority of the painters also are out of the Madden fold.

Wage Arbitrators Are Named.

The arbitrators who will hear the wage dispute of the locomotive firemen employed on western railroads were announced. They are W. R. Scott, assistant general manager of the Southern Pacific railroad, for the roads, and Timothy Shea, vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, for the employés. The arbitrators will meet next Monday to select an umpire.

FEAST OF SUMNER SOCIETY WILL BE CLOSED COMMUNION.

Organization Which Has Not Admitted New Member Since 1875 to Hold Banquet Tonight.

Holding the peculiar distinction of having never admitted a new member since it was organized in 1875, the Sumner society will hold its thirty-fifth annual reunion tonight at the Hamilton club.

The society was organized by 117 high school boys when political strife under President Grant's administration was at fever heat. Seventy-two of the members are known to be living, 24 are missing, and 21 have died. The society was named for Charles Sumner, the anti-slavery champion.

"There is not a man in the society but who was one of the high school boys in the original club," said Secretary William E. Slosson. "Some 25 will be at the banquet and when you consider that the members have scattered all over the world, 25 may be considered a remarkable attendance."

SEE ORGANIZED GIRL TRAFFIC.

Milwaukee Police Hold Men Believed to Conduct Business in Chicago Young Women.

Effort is being made by the police of Milwaukee to connect Joseph Perilla and George Cianciola, under arrest there, with an organized gang engaged in promoting traffic in young girls between Chicago and Milwaukee.

The men were arraigned in the Milwaukee District court yesterday on charges of having brought to that city two Chicago girls, Anna Specht, 19 years old, formerly of 1825 Mohawk street, and Annie Harsdett, formerly of 948 Wells street. The case was postponed to April 1 to give the police time to collect evidence.

The Chicago girls are being held pending the hearing of the men.

CITIZENS MAY SUE THE CITY RAILWAY

Realty Holders Try to Make It Maintain Boulevard by an Old Agreement.

Road Was to Keep Up Part of Thirty-fifth Street in Return for Track Rights.

An unusual agreement by which the Chicago City railway company in 1897 agreed to maintain a section of a street as a boulevard in return for permission to lay tracks has been brought to light by trouble between the company and property owners who were parties to the transaction. The street in question is Thirty-fifth, between South Park and Michigan avenues. The company now wishes to repudiate the agreement so far as the maintenance of a boulevard goes, fearing that it might prove troublesome in future negotiations regarding the obtaining of frontage consents.

South Park Board Interested.

As a prerequisite to the agreement the association of owners of property along the street were to get for the south park board a connecting link between Grand and Michigan boulevards, which they did by way of South Park avenue and Thirty-third street. When this had been accomplished the park commissioners surrendered their jurisdiction over Thirty-fifth street, after which the agreement with the railway was entered into. The property owners' association was represented by Frederick C. Wells, Edward B. Butler, and Charles D. Irwin, as trustees.

The railway company lived up to the terms of the agreement for about five years and then let the contract for keeping the street in good condition to the Douglas Improvement association.

Thinks Work Wrongly Done.

In the opinion of the property owners the improvement association did not do the work properly, and E. E. Baldwin, custodian of the property owners' association, wrote to the railway company giving notice that unless it made the necessary improvement the latter body would go ahead with the work. This it did, and presented the bill to the company, which paid it, but notified the association it would pay no more for such work.

The association, believing that the road is bound by the terms of its agreement, now proposes to compel it to live up to the same. Court action may be resorted to.

Terms of the Agreement.

The agreement goes on to say:

"Said party of the first part [meaning the company] agrees to keep and maintain Thirty-fifth street, between Michigan avenue and South Park avenue, from curb to curb, including the curb, in the condition of a first class boulevard without expense to the abutting owners of property, except as to the presence of four grooved rails laid and maintained in such a manner as to be as unobjectionable as possible, and to that end it agrees to maintain, and repair, and relay when necessary, the said pavement at all time without expense to the said property owners, and to sweep, clean, and sprinkle said pavement, and to keep the same in the best of order at all times at its own expense."

Martin Lindholm Sues Sanitary District for Pain Which May Become Permanent.

Martin Lindholm is suffering from a toothache that bids fair to be perpetual. He cannot open his mouth wide enough to allow a dentist to insert his instruments as the result of having his lower jaw on the left side of his face burned away when 2,300 volts of electricity passed through his body. Because of this Lindholm filed a suit for $100,000 damages in the Superior court yesterday against the sanitary district of Chicago. He was injured several months ago while employed as electrician in a sanitary district power house at Thirty-sixth street and Ashland avenue. His left jaw, one rib, and part of his left arm were burned away

Perpetual Care

At Mt. Greenwood Cemetery

Perpetual care means that every lot and every single grave purchased, as well as the buildings, inclosures, drives and walks, will be maintained in their present perfect condition and that ample funds are constantly being placed in trust for this purpose.

For All Time

It means that no lot nor single grave in this cemetery will be sold without this perpetual care—hence, there will be no lots unsightly and uncared for adjoining your own.

It means that the spot selected and cherished by you will never—can never—suffer from the indifference, neglect or inability of those who follow you in the long years to come.

Out of the price of every lot sold in Mt. Greenwood, 20 per cent ($20.00 out of every $100.00) is deposited with the Chicago Title & Trust Co. 20 per cent of the price of every single grave, 20 per cent of all interment charges, and 20 per cent of receipts from monument foundations—all these amounts, practically one fifth of the income of the cemetery is deposited and will be forever held in trust to make sure for all time that the cemetery and the individual lots and graves will receive the same perfect care as at present.

We believe that no cemetery in America has ever before made so broad and so liberal a provision for the protection of the interests of its lot owners. Full particulars on application.

COLLEGE STUDENT WHO TAKES A VAGABOND TRIP AROUND THE WORLD.

Harry Franck Circumnavigated the Globe Without Begging or Borrowing Money.

MR. HARRY A. FRANCK, a humble minded man with the wanderlust—incidentally a graduate of the University of Michigan, and an instructor in languages at an eastern college—has offered to Americans, as fellow wanderers, a substantial volume called "A VAGABOND JOURNEY AROUND THE WORLD." (The Century company.) It is, undeniably, a "narrative of personal experience," as the author says. Mr. Franck was sent upon his wanderings in a curious manner. Hearing some undergraduates at Michigan talking about the pleasures in the way of travel which they meant to enjoy when they were rich, he conceived the idea of going around the world without preparation. He believed he could take the journey and neither beg, borrow, nor steal, and yet start without extra clothing, money, or letters of credit.

He succeeded in his undertaking, viriting England, Scotland, Holland, France, Italy, Asia Minor, Palestine, Egypt, Ceylon, Hindustan, Siam, Japan, and returning to the United States. During that entire time he neither begged nor accepted gifts, but worked with his hands after the manner of a common laborer. Mr. Franck has expatiated upon such places as lie out of the main thoroughfares of travel, particularly, and he certainly gleaned an enormous amount of experience and collected many facts and impressions. But to say that his journey was delightful would be to claim too much. He seemed at times to move from one vermin haunted shelter to another, to be the associate of wastrels and shifting creatures of defeat and wrongdoing. True, Mr. Franck had his sociological curiosity, but he seems not to have been able to be of any particular assistance to any one, and it hardly can be said that he has made any noticeable contribution to sociological data. He was, indeed, too much absorbed in the grim necessities of his experiment, to pay much attention to any one save himself. He must, at times, have suffered greatly in his self-respect, and his severe annoyances were numerous. Travel is taken chiefly for enjoyment, and it may well be questioned if this journey really achieved as much for Mr. Franck. Around the world he went, undeniably, but he certainly saw it under the worst imaginable circumstances. To live with men of vicious habits, vile manners, and low thoughts for a short time may be informing, but to go around the world in the exclusive company of such creatures is carrying the thing rather too far.

As Mr. Franck is a realist and has spoken the truth and not indulged in idealization or the making of fiction, the result is somewhat discountenancing. A touch of George Borrow's beautiful exaggeration would have relieved the strain, even if it had destroyed the trustworthiness of Mr. Franck's document. The volume is illustrated with photographs taken by Mr. Franck—photographic supplies being absolutely the only luxury he allowed himself. They are moderately good examples of the amateur photographer's art.

"THE THIEF OF VIRTUE," by Eden Phillpotts, is a grim story of Dartmoor, told in the author's characteristic manner. The strongly marked, intense Dartmoor people with their bitter sins, their great obstinacies, and their passionate aspirations, live again in these pages, and beneath the sordid drama runs the terrific principle of poetic justice and above it shines the indestructible dreams of the human heart.

What particularly thrills and holds the reader from first to last is the abiding love of life in the characters, interspersed now and then with a passion for death hardly less vivid.

"Death's no hardship to the dead," says an old man to Ouldsbroom, the hero of the book. "That's why I face it. We've got to go, and if you live long enough, you're glad to go. And we, who know the meaning of life, would never call back any we cared about. 'Twould be cruelty to do it, and they wouldn't come for certain—even if they could."

But Ouldsbroom answers: "You're out there. I'd come for one—gladly and thankfully come. If I didn't drop till I was a hundred, still I'd crawl rejoicing back, if 'twas only to shake a man's hand, or hear a woman's voice, or list to a bird singing. I'd come just to look at the sky and the clouds traveling on it. I'd come to have one drink along with an old pal. If 'twas only five minutes I'd throw off death and come."

To eat of life as it were fruit,
And drink of death like water.

Ouldsbroom is a Learlike character—a passionate, generous, intemperate creature with his divine and his demoniac moments. He sweeps the lives about him into his vortex and whirls them around there—some to their destruction. The madness of the gods seems in him, and when he at last achieves death, it is with a wild splendor of grief very like that which the white haired father of Goneril and Regan knew.

Mr. Phillpott's most distinguished power lies in the blending of man and nature. The wonderful trick Tennyson taught us, of making nature as the close fitting framework for man and his moods, has been adopted by Phillpotts and adapted to prose. Some of the London critics have been saying that in the present volume Mr. Phillpotts is not up to his usual high standard in his descriptions of Dartmouth scenery. Perhaps it is not for one who never has visited Dartmouth to disagree with these men, but it may at least be said that his descriptions enchant the imagination.

The meaning of the title "the thief of virtue" bears interpretation. It refers to the supposed son of Ouldsbroom, really the son of Ouldsbroom's enemy and rival, who was temperate, chaste, pious, and just, without having worked to achieve these virtues. He was a man without temptations—a sapless, cold, impersonal man with whom it was difficult to find fault, but whose chilly virtues repelled almost all who came in contact with him. He stole what other men must work and sacrifice to obtain, and the reader as well as the author feels toward him a proper resentment. He had not won "purity out of a stain," but had never found anything but cold rectitude to his mind.

This strong and remarkable piece of fiction is published by the John Lane company.

"THE GLORY OF HIS COUNTRY" is a curious novel—not of great length—by Frederick Landis. The style is staccato, and many an explanation or description which might have assisted the reader to an understanding has been omitted. Indeed, while Americans acquainted with the atmosphere and environment of the story may, with some striving, follow the reader, it is not too much to say that an English reader, unacquainted with these particulars, might well be excused for being sorely perplexed now and then to know what the writer was talking about.

The story is that of a southern town in one of those communities where it was difficult to strike the balance between the principles that declared for the north or the instinct which swayed toward the south in the civil war.

The tale swings about the character of a curious and mysterious old man named Shanks, who was not only a "copperhead," but the companion and leader in that community of "The Knights of the Golden Circle." His son died in the front of battle fighting for the north, and with his last words begged that his father might not be allowed to look upon his face. The wife of Shanks died of a broken heart, his neighbors avoided him, and at length he came to live in solitude save for his granddaughter. It was only after his death that it was learned that he was the special friend of Lincoln, a man trusted beyond others, and one who sacrificed the appearance of honor itself for his country. Lincoln knew what he was asking of him. "It means," he said, "that you'll be odious in the eyes of men and women—it means to eat your own heart, for you can't tell your wife or child—you must play it out if it takes the hide—I want you to join those cowardly devils—be the worst of them—I need you, Milt, your country needs you."

It's a moving tale, with good characters, but with a certain air of unreality thrown over much that occurs. The heroine is idealism, but instead of being called by her real name is called the "Incomparable," which is both irritating and absurd. But on the whole the story is a good one and it presents a situation which easily might have occurred. Here and there the writing is exceedingly picturesque and if such occasional beauty of expression could be wedded to a more straightforward and explanatory way of writing the results would be excellent indeed. (Scribner's.)

ANOTHER ACCOUNT OF THE ILL-FATED HAPSBURGS OF AUSTRIA.

How Francis Joseph Won the Princess Elizabeth, and How They Drifted Apart. Secrets of the Vienna Court.

WE have had the real nearly everybody, the real Benjamin Franklin, the real Lord Byron, etc., the real in these cases usually meaning the wrong side of the person under discussion. Now we have "THE REAL FRANCIS JOSEPH" (Appleton), being the private life of the emperor of Austria. The name of the author on the title page is Henri de Weindel, who, in a little preface, says that there should be another name as well as his, but that the person who ought to share the glory or whatnot of this story of the private life of the emperor, forbade his or her name to appear.

Information which will be found in this book concerning the romantic features "now farcical, sometimes comic, often tragic," of the Emperor Francis Joseph, the Empress Elizabeth and the Hapsburg family, is for the most part unpublished up to now and unknown, or little known. It was communicated to the gentleman whose name appears on the title page "by a person in Austria particularly well informed about the court of Vienna."

Those of us who read that most absorbing book, "The Martyrdom of an Empress," meaning the unfortunate Empress Elizabeth of Austria, had supposed that there was nothing more to say on the subject; the inner story of Vienna court life seemed to have been laid bare in that book, but the author of this volume claims that he goes deeper into the inner life of the Hapsburgs.

The Emperor Francis Joseph had considered himself more or less in love from time to time, but apparently, the love he felt at first sight for the beautiful Duchess Elizabeth-Amelie-Eugenie of Bavaria was genuine as long as it lasted. The little duchess was only 16 years old when his majesty saw her for the first time and made up his mind to marry her.

I have often wondered how these writers of "real" biographies were able to get all of the actual conversations that took place when they could not possibly have been around. For example, we are given word for word the conversation between the Emperor Francis Joseph and his uncle, the duke of Bavaria, when he proposed for the hand of Elizabeth:

"Uncle," said the emperor, "I have the honor to ask you for the hand of my cousin—not Sophia, but Elizabeth."

"My nephew," replied the duke, "it is absolutely impossible."

"You refuse?"

"Definitely and entirely."

"Why?"

"Because my daughter Elizabeth is too young."

"I will wait."

"And also because it would be an insult to my daughter Sophia."

"But there could not be an insult if her hand was not asked for."

"No matter—I refuse."

"That is your last word?"

"It is."

"Then, in that case, I shall not marry either of them."

The next morning the emperor left the chateau of Possenhofen as free as he entered it the day before.

The emperor had his way, as every one knows, and married the girl of his choice. Better for Elizabeth if they had never met, for her troubles began with her wedding day:

On the night of the marriage, while rejoicings continued throughout Vienna outside the Hofburg, the bridegroom and bride left their capital for a trip through Moravia and Bohemia. There is nothing to be told about the details of their journey. No untoward incident seems to have been recorded, and all appeared to pass off fairly satisfactorily except that there was too much ceremony for Elizabeth's liking. It is, however, definitely known that, after their return to Vienna, grounds for disagreement between husband and wife became manifest. The unhappy empress-child was setting her feet upon the first steps of her Calvary. We must be just to Francis Joseph and admit that it was not so much he who drove her along this dolorous way as the Archduchess Sophia and the crowd of vassal courtiers of the emperor's mother.

Elizabeth was but 17 when the imperial crown was placed upon her golden curls. She was romantic and believed in her husband's love. That was because she did not know him. Perhaps it was sincere while it lasted, but he was fickle hearted, even for an emperor. Perhaps of Francis Joseph had been a different kind of a man the Archduchess Sophia would have had less power and been less able to make the life of the young empress one of martyrdom. Elizabeth loved her husband and wanted to feel free to visit him in his study or anywhere that he happened to be about the house, but this was not allowed because of "etiquette." The dowager empress ruled her son with a rod of iron; she disliked Elizabeth and did everything in her power to win her son over to her way of thinking.

In reading over the story of the domestic life of the Emperor Francis Joseph one feels quite reconciled to being a simple American citizen. To be sure, American citizens have their tragedies, but they may escape them.

CUB KIDS AWAKE WITH VENGEANCE

Administer 4 to 1 Defeat to Barons Before Quitting Birmingham.

CHESTNUT IS NO STICKER.

Umpire Acquires Headache, Leaving Game; Cole and Weaver Hurl Classy Ball.

BY R. W. LARDNER.

Birmingham, Ala., March 25.—[Special.]—Yesterday's decision was reversed by the Cub Kids today, and they left Birmingham tonight with a 4 to 1 victory over the Barons to offset their 4 to 1 defeat of the preceding afternoon.

Scotty Chestnut started to umpire once more, but was growled at so persistently by Capt. Hofman and the other kids that he pleaded a headache and retired in the middle of the game. Lou Bauer, one of the Barons' pitchers, officiated for the balance of the afternoon, and Chestnut forgot his headache and sat on the home bench roasting his successor. This was a mean thing to do, for the understudy had it all over the star as far as justice and clearness of vision were concerned.

The Cub pitching was too much for the Birmingham batting. King Cole was scored on in the opener because of his wildness, but only one hit was made off him in four rounds, and it had nothing to do with the tally. Hank Weaver made the Barons look foolish while he worked. He let up a little in the ninth and allowed two more hits, but wasn't in real danger at any time.

Sad News for Barons.

The Birmingham Athletics were informed that Hank probably would be turned over to the Nashville club. This news was a blow to them, for he looked unhittable today and they will have their troubles if he works against them in the regular season.

All the Cubs' big doings were confined to the fifth inning, which was the first in which young Williams appeared. He walked Fred Luderus before he had discovered the present whereabouts of the plate. Johnny Kane singled to left and Needham sacrificed. Cole was all through pitching, so Capt. Hofman looked around for a substitute batter. He hit upon Pat Moran, but just before Pat reached the plate, F. Schulte was located on the grass in front of the bleachers. Wildfire strolled up and Williams promptly poked him in the ribs with a pitched ball, filling the bases. In this crisis the Barons' peppery catcher, Elliott, saw a chance to catch Kane napping. He did have Johnny flat footed off second, but he threw to center field and every one moved up, Luderus scoring. Tony Smith then drove in Kane and Schulte with a double past Manager Molesworth. Miller and Happy Smith sent a couple of long flies to the Boss Baron.

Cubs Get Last Run in Seventh.

The Cubs added their last run in the seventh. Needham walked and Weaver sacrificed. Tony Smith's single sent Tom to third. Tony stole second and Miller was passed, choking the bases once more. Needham sailed home while Newton was throwing out Happy, and Davidson flied to Marcan.

The Barons' lonely tally was made thus: Marcan walked in the opener and went to second on Molesworth's out. T. Smith threw out Gygli. McGilvray walked and stole. Hofman booted Newton's grounder, and Marcan crossed the plate. Newton was nipped trying to steal. McBride and Emory singled in succession in the ninth. O'Brien flied to Tony Smith. Wagner, no relation to Honus, was sent up to hit for Williams. He was called out on strikes by his teammate umpire and it was all over when Kane tossed out Marcan.

Birmingham furnished another hot day, but only atmospherically speaking. No sleuths were seen around the hotel and no arrests were made up to the hour of departing for Memphis.

Reunion in Memphis.

The Cubs are due to reach Charley Babb's town tomorrow morning. There they will be joined by Manager Chance, Secretary Williams, and Harry Steinfeldt. Brown, Overall, Pfiester, Archer, Sheckard, Beaumont, Tinker, and Evers did their day's work this morning and watched the game in the afternoon. The chances are they will have to get busy in the regular service before Memphis is left behind. Manager Chance intended to use the vets in the exhibition games every day until the law got after him here yesterday. That made him angry with the town and so he refused to have the real Cubs displayed here. The stay in Memphis will be of two days' duration, battles being booked for tomorrow and Sunday. A three days' visit to Nashville will follow. Today's score:

Notes of the Cubs.

Doc Semmens proved an efficient secretary and didn't appear at all nervous under his extra burden.

Heine Zimmerman came up to strike out for Tony Smith in the first half of the ninth and frolicked at shortstop in the last part. He appeared to have forgotten his bum knee.

Floyd Kroh is suffering from a sore foot resulting from rough contact with a new baseball shoe. In the absence of Manager Chance Doc Semmens plastered Floyd today.

The Cubs quit protesting as soon as Chestnut quit umpiring. Bauer miscalled a couple of strikes on A. Hofman, but Artie recognized the profession and uttered never a word.

The swell play of the day came off in the first inning. Happy Smith whaled a liner over McGilvray's head, but the baron right fielder pursued it and brought it down in his gloved hand. Happy was a misnomer temporarily.

And this from Schulte:
I'll keep my feet on the soft, soft, soft pedal,
And I won't talk loud.
I'll make no attempt to butt in or meddle,
When Steiny joins the crowd.
When it comes to telling stories that no one on earth would believe,
I'll take off my hat to Steiny, yes, the floor to him I'll leave.
Keep my feet on the soft, soft, soft pedal.
Shut up, Schulte, shut up.

JENNINGS ANGRY AT TY COBB.

Star Outfielder Overstays Leave Granted Him and Tigers' Manager Is Wroth at Actions.

San Antonio, Tex., March 25.—[Special.]—Ty Cobb has not reported and Manager Jennings is wroth. The team to which the champion batsman was assigned left on its northward trip tonight minus his services. Cobb was given permission to linger awhile in Georgia to close up a few business matters and tend Ty Jr., but has long overstaid his leave. Hughie thinks that no matter how hard he works out with college boys at home he will not get the benefit which would accrue from training with his teammates in camp. Besides it is demoralizing to discipline to have a star player doing as he pleases. Hughie has been angry for a week and getting worse each day.

Players to Go to Des Moines.

Des Moines, Ia., March 25.—[Special.]—Des Moines and Minneapolis baseball teams will report here Monday, March 28. Green Bay's aggregation of thirty will come on April 12. Manager George Davis of Des Moines will show up with the Capital city bunch on Monday, but John F. Higgins, the owner, is expected tomorrow.

KLING JURY IN A DEADLOCK

After Long Session Commission Adjourns Without Action.

VERDICT UP TO HERRMANN.

Rumored Cub Catcher Will Be Reinstated with Penalty Attached.

Cincinnati, O., March 25.—[Special.]—Because the members of the national commission could not agree on the penalty to be imposed, Johnny Kling, former Cub catcher, was not restored to regular standing in organized baseball today. That his application for reinstatement eventually will receive favorable consideration is regarded as probable.

For several hours this afternoon the members of the commission gave Kling's case careful and thorough consideration, practically concluding to restore the clever backstop. But when it came to a matter of fixing the nature of the penalty they were at such wide variance in their views that they were unable to compromise on any sort of a verdict.

After wrestling with the matter until evening the commission adjourned, as President Lynch of the National league was anxious to get back to New York and President Johnson of the American league was just as eager to reach Chicago. Neither of the league presidents would discuss the case in any of its phases or give any inkling of their personal views on the subject.

Compromise Is Expected.

Before their departure both Lynch and Johnson explained their respective attitudes to Chairman Herrmann and asked him to fix up some sort of a compromise verdict, intimating that they would abide by his decision. The latter will submit his finding to the other members within a few days, and it is expected the final verdict will be promulgated by Thursday or Friday of next week.

Members of the commission decided to keep secret the import and substance of their discussions regarding the case. Secretary Bruce stated after the meeting that the members were far apart in their judgment regarding the terms on which Kling could be received back into the fold of organized baseball. Each felt that the penalty should be severe, but their individual opinions will be kept secret.

Among baseball followers who gathered at the headquarters it generally is believed that Kling will be reinstated and that the penalty will be reduced to such a basis that he can meet it.

Name Auto Prize Conditions.

The commission issued a notice to all major league players giving the conditions under which a Detroit firm is to present an automobile to the champion batsman of the 1910 season.

Regular players to be eligible for the prize must have been credited with 350 times at bat, catchers with 250 times, and pitchers with 100. The official league batting average will be the only factor considered in awarding the prize.

The commission refused to take further action in the case of Player Hunt, who was sold to the Boston American league club by Hutchinson, Kas., and also to the Wichita, Kas., club. On a former hearing title to the player was vested in Boston. The present hearing being a dispute between the two western clubs as to the division of the purchase money.

Joseph Knott, who played with Buffalo in the Eastern league last year, was denied the standing of a free agent.

On appeal by the Canton, O., club the Portsmouth, O., club was ordered to pay the former the money it received from the New York National league club for Chester A. Spencer, a player who is training in Texas with McGraw's team.

CHANCE BLAMES BAN JOHNSON.

Says American League President Is Responsible for Delay in Announcing Decision in Kling Case.

Memphis, Tenn., March 25.—[Special.]—Delay in the national commission's announcement of a decision in the Kling case was blamed on Ban Johnson by Frank Chance, the Chicago manager, who is here in advance of the Cubs.

"Johnson doesn't want Kling to get in condition by the time the season opens," said Chance. "Otherwise the national commission would announce to the world what it has done without any further red tape."

Manager Chance said the full Cub regulars would be put in the field on Saturday against Memphis for the first time. President Murphy and Mrs. Chance are due tomorrow morning. Harry Steinfeldt, accompanied by Mrs. Steinfeldt, reached town tonight from Texas.

SOX II. SURPRISED BY VICTORY.

Five Passes in a Row Win for Yanigans, 2 to 1, Over the Seals—Schmirler in Good Form.

San Francisco, Cal., March 25.—[Special.]—Though expecting to be beaten by the Seals today, the Yanigans managed to win by a score of 2 to 1 despite the sore armed twirlers, largely by the efforts of two Friscoans who seemed to have a combination of stiff muscles and stage fright. To even matters the Seals would not have scored but for a free pass.

Schmirler showed more "stuff" than at any time during the trip and allowed one run and four hits in five innings. Lange gave one hit in the four innings he pitched and was never in danger.

In the fifth, with one down Hahn got his second hit, but was forced at second by Shaw, who then stole. Stewart, who had replaced Easterly, then walked Cole and Beall and then Mullen, forcing in Shaw. Henley took the rubber, but walked Gill, scoring Cole. Tannehill's fly ended the tragedy.

With one gone in the Seals' half, McArdle singled and Henley scratched another to Schmirler. Lewis fanned, but Mohler walked, which, it proved, netted the Seals' lone tally. With the bases full Mundorff beat out a hit to first, on which McArdle scored from third. That was the locals' only chance. The only fielding feature was a glove hand spear of Tennant's sizzler between first and second by Gill, a veritable circus catch.

The Seals will be played again tomorrow. Score:

SOX NUMBER ONES WIN RAGGED GAME

Premiers Gather 17 Bingles and Beat Angels in Joke Contest, 11 to 9.

KRUEGER LEARNS TRICK.

Coaches Pass His Signals to Batsmen and Youthful Ones Wise Up Almost Too Late.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 25.—[Special.]—The White Sox premiers were victors today in an awful game of ball which terminated 11 to 9 after nearly two and a half hours' of batting and booting the sphere around in weather that would have been seasonable on the shores of Lake Michigan, but which made a noise like Medicine Hat in this glorious locality.

The sun shone brightly all the afternoon without making the slightest impression on the breezes which apparently came straight off the ocean, but because the sun was out the Sox were winners. They soaked Delhi and Tozer, who held them to three scratch hits a few days ago, for seventeen clean swats, several of which broke the boards in Hen Berry's fence, but in spite of all their swatting and tallying they had a fierce time winning.

Manager Duffy used three pitchers to stall off the Angels, and at the finish had Ed Walsh warmed up to assume the rôle of life saver, for the bases were full and one more hit would have tied up the game, when Sutor finally disposed of it by striking out Del Howard's brother.

Get On to Krueger's Signals.

Part of the poor showing by the Sox pitchers was due to the stiffening weather, but most of it was due to the fact that Los Angeles worked a perfectly legitimate signal tipping bureau on Catcher Krueger during a considerable part of the game.

The young Chicago catcher has not had experience enough with the wiles of the professional game to cover up his orders for curves and fast balls and coachers on the local club had his system down fine, using it until near the finish, when Manager Duffy finally wised up his youngsters to what was being pulled off on them. It was so apparent that even the war correspondents got on to it. But none of the kids did and their leader thought he would let them go to see how long it would be before they would wise up. He had to tip them off to what was being done or lose the game.

Olmstead started hurling for the Sox and got along finely for two rounds, striking out three men in the second inning. Pitcher Nagle of the Angels by that time had Krueger's signs down pat and began handing them to the batsmen from the coacher's box. Omy was stung for three hard wallops in the third, but they made only one run.

In the fourth he was touched for two more solid hits before Smith was sent in. He gave two bases on balls, forcing home a run. Then Smith's wild throw and a long fly let the Angels tie the score at 5 apiece.

Suter "Wises Up" Catcher.

With Nagle tipping off the signs, the Angels simply pickled straight balls on the nose in the fifth, but could make only two runs off him at that. Then in the sixth, after two locals got on with nobody out, Duffy sent Suter to the slab to see if he would get wise to what was being pulled off. Harry did in short order, but not until another run had counted, and this one put the Angels ahead for a short time.

Then there was an end to the locals' batting joy, but Suter was wild on account of the cold weather and issued enough bases on balls to jeopardize the good deal which the Sox pounded out every time they got a chance.

Barrows, Zeider, Parent, and Blackburne pulled off three hits apiece, making twelve of the seventeen off Delhi and Tozer. Every one got at least one hit except Olmstead and Smith, who were not in the game long enough to become well acquainted with the offerings of their rivals.

Parent's double and Gandill's single scored the first tally. Krueger led with a hit in the rally in the third which netted four runs. Singles by Barrows, Zeider, and Blackburne, with a pass to Gandil and some clever base running, manufactured the tallies, which seemed sufficient to win, but by the end of the fourth round Los Angeles had drawn even.

The Sox went after Tozer, who came on in the fifth. Barrows led with a single. Zeider double crossed the infield, which expected a bunt, and poked a hard hit into right instead. Barrows went all the way to third on that and kept on to the plate because Jud Smith missed Bernard's throw. Zeider meantime went to third on what was expected to be a bunt. Before the Angels recovered from that surprise the Sox had another run in and the bases full, but a double play on Purtell's sharp grounder stopped them.

Sting Pugilist Smith's Curves.

The Angels tied this up by stinging Smith with the help of the signal bureau and actually went one run ahead in the sixth, after Suter had been called in. The seventh saw the Sox take the lead again on singles by Zeider, Parent, Blackburne, and Messenger, which was good for two runs. It would have been more, but Tozer pinched a line drive from Krueger's bat and doubled Blackburne off third.

Suter led the rally in the ninth with a single and was followed by doubles from Barrows and Parent, which counted two more runs.

The Sox needed them all, for Suter lost control in the last half of the ninth. A wild throw by Blackburne, a single, and two bases on balls let in one run and filled the corners with Angels with two out. Here Walsh started warming up, but Suter saw him and at the same time Krueger covered up his signals and Suter struck out Howard, ending the high school battle. Score:

Notes of the White Sox.

Billy Sullivan's callers were more numerous today, and he seemed quite chipper at his release from danger, the nature of which he was fully aware.

Tomorrow's game will be with the Vernon club and Sunday's with Los Angeles. The series with Vernon is tied and the Sox have one game the better of the Angels.

The game at Tucson for next Tuesday has been canceled and it is planned to stop in Phœnix instead. It will be necessary for the Sox to furnish both teams, and Duffy has only seventeen players with him.

Block was out of the hospital today, as predicted, but too weak to get into harness. He probably will be kept out of uniform for the rest of the stay here, and will be asked to follow the doctor's orders regarding diet the same as if he remained in the hospital.

Redlands continues to be renowned in Sox history. Today Secretary Louis Comiskey received a letter containing a check for $113.62 from the Y. M. C. A. management, which had charge of Tuesday's game in Redlands. That represented the Sox share of what money was turned in by the spectators after the Sox left town. Louis already had been paid while there the $150 guarantee, so that the net proceeds from that game amount to nearly $275. Because the grounds are not enclosed there is no way to collect money or count the people except by taking coin from those willing to pay to see a game and visitors depend on the honesty of the hosts. The total receipts of the Redlands game was close to $600, making it the best paying game the Sox have played to on the coast—and it rained at that. Comiskey's chief regret at not returning to California will be that he can't play in Redlands, for every year he has been out here they have paid him a guarantee and then came across later with a substantial check representing the Sox share of contributions in excess of the guarantee.

JOHNSON AGREES TO GLEASON PLAN

Champion Promises Promoter He Will Be on the Coast About April 25.

CHOYNSKI MAY AID JEFF.

Berger Asks Him to Join Training Camp; World's Tour of Boilermaker Discussed.

Champion Jack Johnson agreed to depart for the coast on April 16, playing theatrical dates at a few cities on the way, and arriving about April 25 to begin training for his fight with Jeffries, as a result of a conference with Promoter Jack Gleason at Johnson's Wabash avenue residence last night.

Gleason explained to the negro that he had no fear of Johnson not being in proper shape to defend his title or any other contingency of like nature, but that considering the large purse offered and the expense to which the promoters were going, it was only fair to him and Rickard, his partner, that Johnson show to the public interested that he was on the ground and giving serious consideration to preparation for the great battle.

This line of conversation won over Johnson, who admitted the force of the argument, and said he would do as Gleason wished.

Manner of Training Up to Negro.

The negro, however, told Gleason that while he would begin light training for the battle it would be the height of folly for him to attempt to start his real hard work so long in advance, as he certainly would go stale. Gleason replied that the manner of his conditioning was up to Johnson, but that his presence on the coast was necessary as an evidence of good faith on the part of all parties concerned.

Gleason will remain in Chicago until Monday or Tuesday on business with the railroads regarding the selling of coupon tickets to the fight and then will leave for the east to conclude similar arrangements with the eastern lines.

Rickard's suggestion for two referees was commended by Gleason as a happy thought, not only for honoring some critic with what at least would be an honorary office and which might prove necessary in the event of unexpected sickness or disability of the regular referee. Even as a precautionary measure to guard against every contingency, Gleason approved the plan.

One fact not generally known is that the Emeryville racetrack, on which the arena will be built, was given to the promoters absolutely rent free by Thomas H. Williams, president of the New California Jockey club, in the interest of advertising Emeryville, whose town officers always have been friendly to the turf.

Figures on Training Pictures.

Sam Berger, Jeffries' manager, passed a busy day with moving picture concern representatives who are bidding to take pictures of the boiler maker's stunts in his training at Rowardennan. Berger said he had not closed with any of them, but expects to draw up contracts today.

In all probability Joe Choynski, the Chicago fighter, will be one of Jeff's sparring partners during his siege of training. Berger had a long conference with Joe, and the latter will give his final answer today. Both Berger and Jeffries think well of Choynski, and his knowledge of the fighting game would help Jeff greatly.

Part of the day was passed in a conference with Harry Frazee, the local theatrical promoter, who will have charge of Jeffries' world tour in the event the undefeated pugilist is successful in his battle with Johnson. A company, to be known as the Frazee-Berger company, will be incorporated under the laws of Illinois. The tour will start on the Thursday following the fight, and 120 performances will be given in this country. The troupe will sail for England Sept. 18.

Special Train for Coast.

Arrangements also were completed by Berger and Frazee to run a special train to the coast. This train will leave about a month before the fight and will be known as the Berger-Frazee special. Frank Gotch will arrive in the city on Sunday to talk over matters with Berger and Frazee in regard to the world tour and incidentally witness the wrestling bout Tuesday night between Mahmout and Zbyszko. Berger will leave for the coast Sunday night.

ZIEGLER IS AFTER M'AULIFFE.

Veteran Says if Former Lightweight Champion Re-enters Ring He Must Fight Him First.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 25.—Owen H. Ziegler, the last man who fought Jack McAuliffe, has announced his intention to meet the former lightweight champion if he carries out his reported intention to enter the prize ring.

Ziegler fought McAuliffe at Coney Island Nov. 19, 1894, where in the third round McAuliffe broke his arm, and there was no decision. That was the last time McAuliffe appeared in the ring, and now Ziegler says he will have to fight him if he again aspires to pugilistic honors. Ziegler says he is ready to post $5,000.

Ziegler, like McAuliffe, has been out of the prize ring for many years and is physical instructor of the Oakland Athletic club here.

JEFF FINDS HUNTING HELPFUL.

Beneficial Results of Recent Trip to the Mountains Cause Fighter to Start Another Jaunt.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 25.—Highly pleased with the weight reducing results of his recent ten days' outing in the Tehachapi mountains, Jim Jeffries left this morning for another hunt, going this time to Mount Whitney, where he will seek to rid himself of more poundage during the next few days. Jeffries does not know exactly what day he will leave to take up permanent training quarters at Santa Cruz. He said today that he was waiting for advices from Sam Berger, who is in the east. He probably will leave here, however, on March 30, the day after he gets back from Mount Whitney.

Gary Draws with Bresnahan.

Memphis, Tenn., March 25.—[Special.]—Tommy Gary of Chicago was lucky to receive a draw from Referee Mottum tonight at the conclusion of his eight round argument with Tommy Bresnahan of Omaha. Gary was holding on half of the time and seemed in distress in several rounds, but stuck to the limit. Bresnahan excelled at infighting, but Gary landed enough blows during the early part to cut Bresnahan's eye and nose.

GRINNELL QUITS "BIG FOUR."

Withdraws from First Division and Will Tackle Athletes from Smaller Institutions.

Iowa City, Ia., March 25.—[Special.]—Iowa's "Big Four" in athletic circles will become the "Big Three" the current season, owing to the retirement of Grinnell, leaving Iowa, Ames, and Drake the only contestants for glory in the larger fields. Despite the smallness of the Grinnell college, it has turned out remarkable teams, characterized by "Grinnell spirit," that has won many a championship. Grinnell's sturdy Congregationalists will doubtless win everything from the other minor institutions of the state, in the second division.

California and Stanford Agree.

Palo Alto, Cal., March 25.—The action today of the student body of Leland Stanford university in declining to disregard the athletic ultimatum of the University of California, and in indicating instead a willingness to adopt a five year eligibility rule as proposed by the state institution, has virtually ended the dispute that threatened to sever athletic relations between the universities.

Christie Quits Racing Game.

Daytona, Fla., March 25.—Walter Christie, one of the most widely known drivers of racing cars in this country, has retired from the game. Following his failure yesterday to lower Barney Oldfield's record of 27.33 for one mile Christie announced he had driven his last race. He intends to establish an automobile factory, manufacturing cars for commercial use.

Haverford Wins Football Game.

Ithaca, N. Y., March 25.—The Cornell association football team lost to Haverford college today, 3 to 0.

Notes of the Soccer Players.

In the eastern intercollegiate series Pennsylvania will play Columbia at Philadelphia.

The Englewood and Oak Park High school teams will play their first match of the year at Fifty-second street and Cottage Grove avenue this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The teams met twice last year, both games ending in ties.

Capt. Jim Ward of the Hibernians, who was struck by an automobile last Sunday morning, is improving rapidly and hopes to leave the hospital in time to see his team play the Hyde Park Blues tomorrow afternoon at the Blues' grounds.

A POLICY ON JACK JOHNSON.

Having made sure of their part of the transaction Jack Gleason and Tex Rickard have determined to take a ticket on the safe delivery of the principals in the ring in the sum of $50,000 each. Which behooves us:

Write a policy on Johnson? Let us see how we'd begin.
In the first place we would rather lay against something that's in,
For a risk upon the darker one, as it appears to us,
Is not only tabbed as "extra" but "extremely hazardous."
We would take from him that roadster, with which he's wont to while Away the precious moments in a most unseemly style—
That 60 h. p. roadster that he's always cutting loose
And devastating traffic on the very least excuse.
We'd take away his gaudy gear, his ermine and his junk,
And make him sleep on corn husks in his native pine-plank bunk;
We'd take away the garish things that now obsess his soul,
And place his thirst and appetite right under our control.
We'd send him back to nature, the nature he knew best,
Before he got the bug, the bird, the bottle and the rest.
We'd hide him in the deep, dense woods with barbed wire fence around,
Where we could go and find him any time he should be found.
But take him as he stands today, or as he runs about,
With free use of the tempting things a pug is best without—
Rather than to take a chance on him to even show
We'd insure a powder magazine in regions down below.

President Comiskey is due today. Wonder if he will be accessible or easy of approach.

It is noted in the daily papers that at the pending election we shall not be asked whether we shall have it in the time honored way or take it out of a boot leg.

The bloke who votes "NO" all the time in his own particular case needs no "sumptuary" persuader.

"LABOR TROUBLE" 37 IN THE BLACK.
On with the deal! Let no man leave his seat,
Nor in confusing jumble make retreat.
That's nothing that you should be running from.
Be calm, sit still! That ain't no gambling bomb.

By the grace of Curly Brown, director general of the "Southern Jockey club," Pensacola may race two weeks on probation. Isn't it great?

Dear Sir: A beautiful sentimental ballad [words and music with a picture on the front, four bits] of which the following is the refrain is now being sung with great applause in the nickel grand opera houses south of Thirty-ninth and west of State:
"There's alfalfa on the prairies and the people have to walk,
For the street cars in that town refuse to run;
To call it dead you wouldn't dare,
For they have a mighty mayor;
It's a sad old spot called Hegewisch but it's ho-home."
I know it looks rotten, but it listens immense. L. J. G.

At the threshold of my career I fell desperately in love with the wrong horse. This brings my autobiography up to date.
The End.

BETWEEN TWO EVILS CHOOSE THE GUN.
Chicago, March 24.—Dear Sir: I recently have been financially bumped by one of the pets of predatory prosperity. Would you advise going after him with a 38 cal. Colts, or a 2x4 lawyer? With the former I can drill holes in his ears without injury to his countenance, and with the latter, am asking you if you believe I could obtain results other than drilling holes in my bank account. ROUGH WORK MARKS GAME FOR "PREP" BASKETBALL TITLE.

Oak Park High Players Plastered with Seventeen Fouls in Contest with the Lebanon, Ind., Five.

Rough playing marked the Oak Park-Lebanon, Ind., high basketball game at Evanston Y. M. C. A. last night, in the series of championship games of preparatory schools.

From its playing Thursday the Lebanon team had been figured a strong bidder for first place in the series, but the Oak Park team swept it off its feet in a game in which Russell, right forward, was banished after having five fouls called on him, and at the close of which each member of the Oak Park team had three fouls registered against him.

The defeat of the Lebanon school, 41 to 15, put it out of the race. Scores:

Evanston academy firsts, 25; Wayland academy, 10.
New Trier Township High school, 23; Evanston academy seconds, 4.
Evanston Township High school, 30; Lane High school, 18.
Oak Park High school, 41; Lebanon High school, 15.

The four winning teams will play today as follows: Evanston academy against New Trier Township High school at 3:30 o'clock; Evanston Township High school against Oak Park High school at 4:30 o'clock.

The losers will play for second place at 8 o'clock and the winners will play for first and second places at 9 o'clock.

PHŒNIX TEAMS ROLL FINELY.

Andersons Average 959 2-3 and Defeat Madisons Twice, Metcalfe Leading with 221 1-3 for Series.

Madisons and Andersons had a hard series in the Phœnix bowling league last night, the latter team winning the odd game but having their winning streak of 21 straight games broken when Miner's five landed the middle contest. Three men drew big averages in the series, Will Metcalfe with 221 1-3, Ned Nelson with 215 2-3, and Herman Steinmiller 211 1-3.

Tim Deneen landed the high average of the night with 226 2-3 on the Ruehls in the Southwest league, the Brewers winning three straight games from the Simonds Saws.

Another feature of the night was Dave Woodbury's reappearance on the local circuit after an absence of over a year. The returned traveler averaged 218 2-3 for the Glenwoods in the Glenwood league and that team won the odd from the Duo Styles, the first setto by one pin, while in the last they missed scoring a whitewash by six pins.

Zahn's league wound up its schedule with a double header, the Ruettimans landing the team title.

WARM DEBATE ON FOOTBALL RULES

Committee, After Eight Hours' Hard Work, Fails to Indorse Changes.

WILL MEET AGAIN TODAY

Indications Point to Forward Pass and Onside Kick as Fixtures of the Game.

New York, March 25.—The forward pass is an element of modern football, both so important and so debatable that the intercollegiate rules committee adjourned tonight after eight hours of active discussion with no progress to report.

"I think a settlement of our differences is in sight," said E. K. Hall of Dartmouth, "in fact we are nearer a definite agreement now than we have been at any time heretofore, but there is nothing to announce yet."

The sessions were secret and such limited information as Mr. Hall would vouchsafe was all that could be obtained. It was understood that no vote was taken and that no formal agreement has been reached.

Shows Evidence of Struggle.

Mr. Hall was in his shirt sleeves at the end of a long table littered with papers. Beside him stood a blackboard intricate with diagrams of play. It was apparent that the day had been a hard one and that there had been decided differences of opinion as to what ought to be done.

The forward pass has both its advocates and its opponents on the committee, and until they can agree there is no knowing what shape football for 1910 will issue from their deliberations.

Preliminary sessions were held last fall in an endeavor to retain the virility and excitement of the game as it now stands, at the same time recasting it into such form as to do away with the deaths and serious injuries which marred the season of 1909.

In the hope of reaching an early agreement this session, the committee will meet again at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow, but if no settlement of differences seems possible then adjournment will be taken until later in the spring.

Forward Pass May Stay.

Most of the day was passed in an effort to learn on what common ground the members could meet. In the matter of general policy they are in substantial accord, but on details of tactics there was found to be a wide difference of opinion. There was an impression that both the forward pass and the onside kick will be retained, for though a ballot was taken, in the free discussion allowed individual preferences came out strongly.

FINALS FOR H. S. INDOOR TITLE.

Season Will Close Tonight with Running of Events—University High Is Favorite.

The high school indoor season will come to a finish in Bartlett gymnasium tonight with the running of the finals in the Cook county championships. University High is a favorite in most quarters, but Wendell Phillips, Oak Park, and Hyde Park enthusiasts do not see how they can lose. Waage of Lane and Kraft of Oak Park will meet in the mile, the feature event of the evening. Breathed of Wendell Phillips and Martin of Oak Park in the quarter will furnish a scarcely less interesting struggle, and the half mile will bring together Tate of Englewood, Campbell of University High, and Gifford of Wendell Phillips. Murray of Lake View will be a prominent performer, being entered in the hurdles and the 50 and 220 yard dashes.

M'GILLIVRAY WINS MILE RACE.

Scores Victory in Final Event of A. A. U. Swimming Championships, C. A. A. Taking Team Title.

Perry McGillivray, one of the best short distance swimmers in this section of the country, yesterday was found to be a long distance natator. He showed his ability when he won the Central A. A. U. championship swim, which was held in the I. A. C. tank. His victory in this event, which was the last of the series, gave the C. A. A. team the team championship with a total of 74 points. The I. A. C. was second, with 52, and unattached swimmers scored 6. McGillivray covered the distance in 26:28 2-5, which is fast time considering he had never swam the distance in competition before. He defeated Merriam, the C. A. A. long distance crack, by three lengths. Tracy of the C. A. A. was third.

Atchison Report for February Shows Reduced Earnings.

HOCKING VALLEY PURCHASE.

Linseed Company Files Statement of Its Finances.

Atchison railway earnings for February were issued yesterday and indicate the extraordinary operating cost entailed by the severity of last winter. While for the month there was an increase of $693,684 in gross, compared with the corresponding month in 1909, there was an increase in operating expenses of $1,213,489. This led to a decrease in net operating revenue of $520,105.

For the month of February, 1909, the operating ratio was 61.73 per cent. For February, 1910, it was 73.63 per cent. Operating expenses increased for the month 27.1 per cent, as against an increase in gross of 9½ per cent. The resulting decrease in operating revenues was 18.7 per cent.

The heavy expenses of December, January, and February have reduced the net operating revenues for the eight months of the fiscal year $552,620. Owing to an increase of $589,564 in taxes, operating income for eight months shows a decrease of $1,142,185. For the eight months the increase in gross was 11 per cent. The increase in operating expenses was 19.3 per cent. The operating ratio for the eight months ended Feb. 28, 1910, was 66.08 per cent, against an operating ratio of 61.46 per cent for the corresponding period in the preceding fiscal year.

Hocking Valley a Bargain.

It is believed in Wall street that the dividend on Hocking Valley common will be increased shortly. It is expected the raise in the rate will take place after the retirement of $15,000,000 preferred stock. The income account of the Hocking Valley showed last year earnings on the common equal to 8.82 per cent.

All that has been made public concerning the purchase of Hocking Valley indicates Mr. Hawley got a bargain. Further, if he did secure a bargain, it was by the consent of three or four railroads that knew as much about the treasury of the company as did Mr. Hawley. It would seem, therefore, that Mr. Hawley's relations not only with Wall street, but with those actively engaged in the railroad business, are extremely cordial.

Cost of Hocking Valley.

It is estimated that the purchase of control of the Hocking Valley system cost the Lake Shore and the Chesapeake and Ohio the following amounts:

Lake Shore—101,423 shares of the Toledo and Ohio Central at par, $10,142,300; 23,455 shares of Kanawha and Michigan at $72, $1,688,760, a total of $11,831,060. This gave the company the ownership of practically all the stock of the former and a controlling interest in the majority stock of the latter.

Chesapeake and Ohio—55,700 shares of Hocking Valley at $120, $6,864,000; 22,545 shares of Kanawha and Michigan at $72, $1,602,240, a total of $8,286,240. This gave the Chesapeake and Ohio the control of Hocking Valley and within 1,201 shares of the control of the majority interest of the Kanawha and Michigan.

If these two roads divide the possible purchase of the 44,000 shares of minority stock of the Kanawha and Michigan between them at $72 it means the additional expenditure of $1,584,000 each.

As the sale of the Toledo and Ohio Central and Kanawha and Michigan has added $13,433,300 cash to the Hocking Valley treasury only $1,566,700 more would be required to retire the $15,000,000 preferred stock of the company at par. The company had a profit and loss surplus of $4,513,259 on June 30, 1909, which will probably come to at least $5,000,000 by the close of the present fiscal year.

WEATHER HOT IN SOUTHWEST

No Sign of Drought Relief Shown in Winter Wheat Belt.

HOLIDAY IN GRAIN MARKETS

Domestic and Foreign Exchanges Closed; Curb Gossip Is Bullish.

A few grain traders were down on the curb yesterday, but as a rule there were few people around the commission houses, as Good Friday was quite generally observed as a holiday by the grain trade. Every important exchange in this country and abroad was closed for the day and there was no attempt to do business. Some of the cash houses were open and did a little business, but there was not much inquiry for cash grain and no important sales were reported.

Of prime importance at the moment is the weather and the bulletins issued by the weather department yesterday showed the drought had not been relieved to any extent in the southwest and that there were no indications of rains for today. Naturally the continued dry weather with the high temperatures is increasing the number of crop complaints, and experts who have been in the field for some time and were inclined to make light of the damage earlier in the month are now stating that the hot, dry winds are doing more damage than was done by the extremely low temperatures during the winter.

Conditions Are Unfavorable.

As a result the reports now lay greater stress on current weather conditions than in regard to the winter killing, which was regarded as the chief factor a few days ago. In some instances a few optimists are found, but as a rule the millers and farmers generally are taking a black view of conditions and are under the impression that the injury has been of important dimensions. Whether a few weeks of normal April showers and growing conditions will alter these views is a question. The country as well as the millers have been credited with a bullish attitude on the market for some time, and it may be possible that the accounts have been overdrawn. It is seldom, however, that there has been so much uniformity of opinion in regard to the outlook as at present, and some of the best posted men in the trade are firm believers in extensive crop damage.

A recent development in the cash trade is regarded as significant. Millers for some time have been absolutely indifferent in regard to the cash article. Now they are beginning to show more interest and when buying wheat are asking for prompt delivery. Dealers, while admitting the slow character of the trade, say there is no means of telling when conditions will change, but when they do they look for a radical improvement in the situation. Supplies are small and should the flour business pick up to any great extent mills would find difficulty in buying cash wheat at any of the leading markets.

Receipts Are Growing Light.

In the northwest receipts are falling off quite a little and country elevator stocks are understood to be small compared to a year ago. Minneapolis wheat stocks are increasing rapidly, but with smaller receipts the accumulation the next few weeks probably will not be so rapid. Receipts in the southwest are becoming smaller, while shipments are large enough to cause moderate depreciations in the weekly stock statements.

So far there has not been much increase in outside trade, but the bull leaders have accumulated a big line of both July and September and are inclined to force the issue on the theory that the damage already sustained, regardless of rains, has been enough to make the winter wheat crop a small one.

Weather reports for the day indicated an extremely bullish situation in the southwest. At 7 o'clock on Friday temperatures were 76 to 82 over Kansas and 74 to 78 in Nebraska, while throughout the central west temperatures range from 75 to 84. The forecast for the next forty-eight hours made yesterday was for continued clear, warm weather. Should high winds prevail with such high temperatures excessive damage to the already weakened wheat plant might occur.

Corn Receives More Favor.

Traders on the curb were inclined to talk a little more favorably in regard to corn, and there appears to be a little better class of outside buying in addition to the covering by shorts. The latter have covered on an immense scale on both the last two breaks, and this buying has enabled the big shorts to materially reduce their lines. Evidently the average bear in corn does not relish the idea of being on the short side with a possible bull market in wheat under way. Receivers report light offerings in the country, and with farmers busy with spring work for the next few weeks arrivals will be small. At the same time the stocks now in store at the leading distributing centers make an impressive display and enable the bears to discourage outside buying at times.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

CHICAGO, March 25.—Hog market rallied from Thursday's late depression and supplies sold at a net gain of 5@10c, with best offerings again topping at $11. Eastern shipping orders were fairly liberal and fewer hogs had to be carried over unsold after the close of business. Receipts of cattle were limited, but the demand was correspondingly narrow and prices of cows, heifers, and bulls sought a lower level. Calves suffered a break of 50c and were slow sale at the decline. Sheep and lamb supplies were light and prices steady.

CATTLE.

Fresh receipts of 1,500 cattle consisted chiefly of butcher stock, canners, and cutters, and plain light stockers and feeders. The steer trade was quiet and steady, but weakness pervaded all other branches of the trade, and prices covered an uncertain range, many sellers asserting that they had to accept 25c lower than on Wednesday for cows, heifers, and bulls. Only a few of the regular buyers appeared in the alleys, and when it was seen that the demand was not imperative they decided to force scalpers, who held a good share of the supply, to make them concessions from the recent high prices. Few of the holders cared to carry their stock over for next week, and they lowered prices whenever thy could effect a sale by doing so.

Receipts of calves were posted at 300 head, bringing the supply for the week thus far to nearly 12,000 head, against 9,500 a week ago. The fresh supply was liberal enough to keep buyers from relinquishing control of the situation, and salesmen were compelled to lower asking prices largely 25@50c from the Thursday level, bringing strictly choice vealers to $9.00, against $10.50 at the high time last week. Stocker and feeder trade was in a depressed condition and traders were forced to accept prices that were fully 25c lower than on Wednesday for the bulk of their holdings. Quotations:

Cattle at six western markets, 8,600, against 6,700 a week ago, 6,600 a year ago, and 11,500 two years ago. Total for 1910 to date, 1,729,000, against 1,725,000 the same period in 1909.

HOGS.

Receipts were placed at 9,000 head, but supplies came in slowly and a final summing up of the arrivals indicated that not more than 8,000 fresh hogs were on the market. This supply was far short of traders' expectations and although there were 7,400 hogs left from the preceding day, shippers and speculators opened the market at an advance of 5@10c over Thursday's low closing figures. Packers amassed their droves at the upturn and were generous buyers for a short time, although they quit after filling their most urgent orders and left some of the late arrivals to be carried over without bids.

Prime heavy shipping and packing hogs sold at $10.85@10.95, with fancy lots at $11.00, or 10c higher than could be secured for the best on closing rounds Thursday. Mixed packing hogs sold at $10.70@10.80, with the bulk of the good grades at $10.75 and higher. Pigs continued to meet with a brisk call from eastern shippers and the small sprinkling of desirable strongweight lots on the market found a ready outlet at $10.60@10.70. Stags sold briskly, but boars were a drug on the market, with buyers not daring to risk the government inspection and keeping out of the trade. Quotations:

SHEEP.

Receipts were posted at 5,000 head, but the supply on the market at the opening was so small that traders did not believe the run would fill out and the buyers set to work filling orders as stock was taken out of the cars. Two of the packers staid out of the deal because they did not believe they could get a sufficient number of head for a day's kill, but their absence was not felt, and prices were rigidly sustained at an advance of 25@50c over last week's closing figures.

Most of the offerings at hand were of mediocre quality and this precluded the possibility of breaking more price records, but one string of shorn lambs cleared at $9.80, the new mark hung up Thursday. Only one string of good Colorado woolskins showed up and it sold at $10.15. Best sheep at hand made $9.00 for woolskins and $8.50 for clippers. Odd lots of native ewes cleared at $6.00@8.25, with bucks at $5.75@6.50 for shorn lots and $7.50 for woolskins. Ewes and yearlings mixed made $7.50, with shorn yearlings at $8.75. Quotations:

Receipts for March 26 were estimated at 3,000 cattle, 5,000 hogs, and 1,000 sheep, against actual arrivals of 361 cattle, 7,088 hogs, and 1,551 sheep for Saturday, March 27, 1909.

STOCKYARDS GOSSIP.

Few hogs remained in first hands at the close of business, but scalpers had many loads and it was believed that hogs bought on country orders nearly two weeks ago were still being held for higher prices.

Eastern dealers have been unable to dispose of fresh dressed meat with usual celerity this week and they have curtailed their purchases of cattle, the total outgo from this market for five days being 3,000 head short of the preceding week's, in spite of an increase in marketings.

Many cattle traders expressed the opinion that the upward tendency of cattle prices was to be permanently checked and that much lower figures would be seen before another bull campaign was experienced.

Armour & Co. had 320 hogs in direct from an outside point and bought only 1,600 head here.

Eastern shippers showed less hesitancy in buying hogs at the prices than on any previous day so far this week.

Hogs left over from Thursday were officially counted at 7,461 head.

Chicago Horse Market.

Closing transactions in the market for horses were made at firm prices, with commission men disposing of the few animals left from earlier in the week through retail channels at more satisfactory figures than were obtainable in the auction ring a few days ago. Buyers seemed to have more orders than they could fill and they displayed little hesitancy in paying firm values whenever they had an opportunity to amass a full load of suitable offerings. Drafters sold at $175.00@250.00, with odd lots of extra fancy, stall fed offerings at $275.00 and higher. Expressers made $160.00@215.00, and drivers cleared at $150.00@300.00. Farm mares and chunks were in urgent demand at $140.00@175.00, and the supply was not sufficient to meet all the requirements of the trade. Receipts for the week thus far, 2,220, against 2,340 a week ago, and 2,877 a year ago.

BROOMCORN.

CHICAGO, March 25.—Offerings were moderate and prices firm at $200@240 for all varieties.

Groceries.

CHICAGO, March 25.—Warm weather had a tendency to intimidate dried fruit buyers and jobbers reported the trade exceedingly quiet for this season of the year. Prices were not affected, however, and sellers appeared confident of sufficient demand to clear present holdings before the final close of the season, which will not be until the latter part of May. Supplies here and at producing centers were reported short of the large and small sized prunes and liberal of the intermediate grades. This was reflected in the bullish sentiment which pervaded the trade in extreme sizes, and dealers said they looked for prices to go higher, as the export and domestic demand was steadily eating into the California holdings. Peaches and apricots are expected to come in for a brisk spring demand and desirable offerings are held with confidence.

Sugar and Coffee.

SUGAR.

CHICAGO, March 25.—Firmness pervaded the market for refined sugars and higher prices were expected. Following were the ruling prices in wholesale circles, quotations being on 100 lb lots: Standard granulated, beet and cane, $5.47@5.57; cut loaf, H. & E., $6.57; standard powdered, $6.00; extra C, $5.25; canary, $5.00; pure milk sugar, 12½@16c per lb in brl lots.

COFFEE.

CHICAGO, March 25.—Demand for spot roasted coffees was quiet, but offerings were not burdensome and values remained at a firm level. Cost and freight offerings were held with confidence. No cables were received from Brazil.

Dry Goods.

CHICAGO, March 25.—Marshall Field & Co., in a weekly review of the trade, said: "The healthy state of business in all sections of the country is emphasized in the reports from traveling salesmen. Road sales for the last week have been gratifying. Spring suits and coats in silk, coverts, and mixtures, as well as broadcloth capes, continue in good demand. Misses' hats have moved freely, due to the unusually favorable weather and an early Easter. A curtailed domestic production of fashioned hosiery and a prohibitive duty on the cheap and medium imported grades indicate that there undoubtedly will be a marked scarcity in these lines in the near future. The demand for colored hosiery for spring and summer wear is much larger than was anticipated, vertical stripes and jacquard ideas being especially good. Hosiery in color to match the gown, belt, parasol, and shoes is popular. Lace hosiery in black and colors, which has not been much in demand for several seasons, is again meeting with popular approval."

Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods business, said: "With the advent of Easter such lines as silk petticoats, silk and fancy hosiery, gloves, ribbons, neckwear, and other dress accessories were naturally most prominent. In dress goods the sheer light weight and light colored fabrics are attracting more attention as the season advances, the unusual weather materially stimulating the demand. The volume of both road and mail orders for immediate delivery which is now being experienced shows conclusively that early expectations are fully realized. Late buyers, of which there are still in market a goodly number, found stocks in a satisfactory condition, urgent demand upon primary markets for merchandise earlier in the season having resulted in greatly improved deliveries."

COURT ORDER OPENS VAULT IN OFFICE OF J. J. WEST.

Mining Broker Takes Clothing and Departs, While the Receiver Retains His Important Papers.

James J. West, mining broker, with the permission of the Bankruptcy court and the receiver in charge of his office, took his clothes and departed from the office yesterday.

As a necessary preliminary some hours were spent in releasing the red tape and steel bars that confined the personal effects and business papers of Mr. West. West locked the vault when his office was raided Wednesday afternoon, but professed to be unable to unlock it when ordered to do so by Judge Landis. An attempt was made to induce the officers of the building to open it, but they refused to do so until a certified copy of the order of court was served on them.

The contents of the vault were then divided, Mr. West taking his wearing apparel and other personal property, while the American Trust and Savings bank, the receiver, took possession of the important papers. These will be examined pending the hearing on Wednesday before Referee Frank L. Wean. It is hoped the examination of the papers will reveal West's assets.

MAYWOOD LAND IS PUT ON BLOCK

Seventeen Parcels of Improved Property Will Be Sold This Afternoon.

BASEBALL SITE TO GO.

Ground Occupied by Leland Giants Club Figures in Partition Suit.

Seventeen parcels of improved Maywood residence property belonging to the Maywood Land association, now in process of liquidation, will be sold at auction this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the auction room of the Chicago real estate board.

The association owned a large amount of vacant as well as improved property, but divided the former among the members of the association. This plan did not seem practicable in connection with the improved properties, and it was decided to offer them at public auction.

They are located upon Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Nineteenth, and Twenty-first avenues and will be sold subject to the special assessments, payable in 1910 and thereafter, and to the taxes of 1910, payable in 1911. The dwellings are of different designs, two stories and two stories and attic, and are all detached. They are of frame and brick construction.

Ball Club Site to Be Sold.

The ground occupied by the Leland Giants baseball club at the southeast corner of Vincennes road and Seventy-ninth street, together with contiguous property comprising altogether about twenty-five acres, is to be offered at partition sale in proceedings instituted by the Old People's home, which was given an interest in the property several years ago.

The sale will be held as the result of a decree entered by the Superior court authorizing Master in Chancery John F. Holland to make the sale. The commissioners appointed by the court as appraisers placed a value of $58,000 upon it, and it is necessary that a bid be secured for at least two-thirds of this amount. The sale cannot be held before April 15.

The property in California avenue, fifty-six feet north of Fourteenth street, with 52x150 feet of ground, west front, with store and flat improvements, has been sold by Samuel Polakow to Benjamin Sacks and Meyer N. Finder for $20,000, subject to an incumbrance of $10,500, assumed.

Record was made of the lease of the property at the southwest corner of North Clark and Chestnut streets, comprising the premises 830-838 North Clark and 109-113 Chestnut streets, for a term of twenty years at a total rent of $142,500. The lease is made by Harold A. Howard, as trustee for George W. Ewing, Bettie S. Ewing, Charlotte E. Webb, William F. Webb, and Minnesota E. Tytus, to John Refarker, and it is provided that the premises are to be occupied for business and residence purposes and no others. The rent is made payable on the basis of $593.75 on the first day of each month in advance up to Dec. 1, 1910, and $1,781.25 quarterly thereafter. The lessee is to pay all taxes and to make improvements costing not less than $5,000 before April 1, 1911.

Bank to Have Bigger Quarters.

As the result of a lease just closed by [illegible]eshire & Shotwell, the South Side State [illegible]k is to have more than double the size of [illegible] present quarters at the northeast corner of Cottage Grove avenue and Forty-third street. The lease covers the entire main floor and basement at the place named and runs for a term of ten years. The work of remodeling the floor to meet the requirements of the bank will commence May 1.

Louis Feder, the owner of an undivided half interest in the property in Milwaukee avenue, 150 feet southeast of Lincoln street, with 160x118 feet of ground on the southwest side of the avenue, has purchased from L. Milton Eichberg the remaining half interest in the property for $45,000, which is at the rate of $90,000 for the entire holding.

The sale is subject to an incumbrance of $30,000. Present improvements consist of a two story and basement flat and office building, but upon the expiration of existing leases, which have two years to run, it is the purpose of Mr. Feder to improve with an eight story and basement apartment building the cost of which is estimated at about $200,000.

The Chicago Title and Trust company is trustee in a loan of $30,000, six years, at 5 per cent, to Mary E. Clancy and William Clancy, her husband, secured by the property at the northeast corner of Green and Fifty-sixth streets, 53x122 feet, with brick improvements.

Harry Shanberg has purchased from Thomas Gardner the property in Division street, seventy-three feet east of Wood street, with 25x125 feet of ground, north front, with brick improvements, for $12,000.

Plans are being prepared by Architect E. J. Ohrenstein for a three story and basement store, flat, and office building at the northeast corner of Douglas boulevard and Kedzie avenue, 93x144 feet, to cost about $90,000.

LARGER AMOUNTS IN SAME PROPORTION. NATIONAL FINANCE COMPANY, Suite 431, 108 La Salle-st. Branch office: Room 7, 9215 Commercial-av., South Chicago.

I APPRECIATE ACCOUNTS OF HONORABLE people [men employed or in business, ladies with allowances from their husbands, or incomes from other sources], who want large or small sums, confidentially, with or without security. My location [30 min. from loop district], and my being the president of a large wholesale vehicle establishment [Bradstreet's and other agencies show its standing], and not a professional money lender, assures a privacy not possible to those who deal with brokers in downtown office buildings where money lenders congregate. My customer's name and address are known only to me; my employes know accounts only by serial number. Professional lenders demand high rates, usually asking so much that the average straightforward citizen realizes that exorbitant charges for any time are burdensome. My average price, all charges positively included, is never more than 1, 2, or 3 per cent monthly, often less, depending on risk and amount loaned. Individual waiting rooms. Ask for WILLCOXE care The Englewood Co. 1101-1105 E. 63d-st., corner Greenwood-av. Telephone Hyde Park 4383.

Our dealings are confidential and we give a written guarantee not to enforce payment through your firm. LONG ESTABLISHED AND RELIABLE. Come and see us when you want a loan. MASON FINANCIAL CO., 134 Monroe-st., Room 502. Southwest corner Clark. Telephone Central 3516.

All our charges included are within the very MINIMUM WHICH YOUR PERSONALITY FIXES and consistent with justice. Dress Accessories

As a number of the highest class makers send their choicest designs to our hair ornament department for a premiere showing, something new and distinctive in combs, fancy pins, barrettes, etc., is always to be found here exclusively.

Handsome Large Pins—The picture shows one in shell color, with tiny French cut rhinestones, which are very brilliant. Each stone is set separately, showing a bit of shell between, making a very effective and beautiful design. Price $7.90.
In larger size, hand etched and inlaid with gold, $14.50.

Loop Pins—Nothing could confine the coiffure in place more securely or more comfortably than the loop pins. The teeth are made short to prevent hurting the head, while the bent-over top seems to fairly clinch the hair without the least discomfort. Single loop pins in shell color, set with French rhinestones, to match large pins, $5.

A wonderfully rich and becoming effect is achieved by using these pins to hold a gold, silver or colored ribbon in bandeau style, like illustration.

Two Neckwear Specials of Great Merit

Irish Lace Dutch Collar—We are showing an imported lace Dutch Collar, like cut, in a very pretty floral pattern of heavy Irish crochet and baby Irish combined, priced very specially at $3.95.

Fine Baby Irish Jabot—The jabot shown in the cut with collar is made of very fine mull, extremely sheer, in three tabs, each one trimmed with dainty baby Irish lace. Very special, $3.95.

Perrin Paris Gloves—Two pearl clasp, extra quality, hand finished light weight real kid gloves, black, white and colors, $2 a pair.

2 clasp La Mure overseam real kid, black, white and colors. The extreme care used in selecting the skins and finishing this glove makes it both dressy and durable. Price $1.50 a pair.

Washable chamois gloves for boys and misses, one clasp, $1.

1 clasp medium weight English walking gloves, suitable for boys and misses, $1.

Wonderfoot Hose—As the name implies, truly a wonder. The foot is protected against wear through an interweaving of lisle thread on the sole, heel and toe, which does not show on the outerside; the deep garter hem is secured in the same way to keep the top from breaking and running. Price $2 pr. Women's fine black silk hosiery, extra spliced soles, heels and toes and wide garter hem, $1.25 and $1.50. Misses' fine silk lisle hosiery, sizes 6 to 9, 35c or 3 pairs for $1.
Children's extra quality black cotton Stockings, 25c.

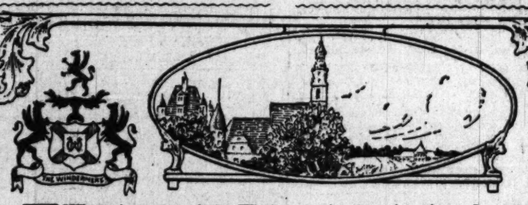
RESORTS AND HOTELS RESORTS AND HOTELS



THE environment of the Windermere is most charming. Just now across the street in front the grass in Jackson Park is growing green. The ice has disappeared from Lake Michigan and from the side of the house you can hear the swash of the waves on the beach. The air out there is as bracing as a tonic. The food is as pure as gold. The service is metropolitan and the rooms light, airy and cosy. You might imagine yourself in a hotel at Atlantic City because of the proximity of the lake and the magnificent promenades in the Old World's Fair Grounds. Yet it is but nine minutes to the heart of the retail district. Your rooms should be chosen now.
